HITLER BACKS AIMS OF DUCE

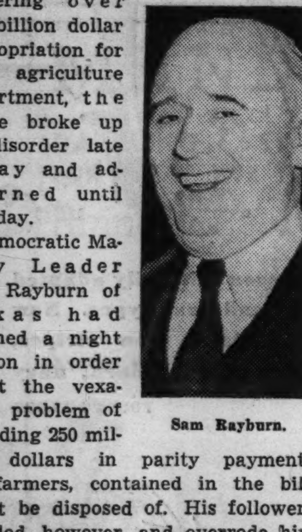
DEFIANT HOUSE QUITS IN MIDST OF WPA BATTLE

Rebels at Plan for Night Session.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—Weary after five hours of bickering over the billion dollar appropriation for the agriculture department, the house broke up in disorder late today and adjourned until Monday.



Sam Rayburn.

Democratic Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas had planned a night session in order that the vexatious problem of awarding 250 million dollars in parity payments for farmers, contained in the bill, might be disposed of. His followers rebelled, however, and overrode him by voting for a motion offered by Representative C. Arthur Anderson [D., Mo.], which forced adjournment.

Vote Traders Wrangle.

Anderson's maneuver ended a day of wrangling in which vote trading reached new heights. Administration leaders were busy in the cloak rooms offering support of the quarter billion fund for parity payments in return for pledges to support President Roosevelt's 150 million dollar WPA appropriation when it comes before the house next week.

It was log rolling on a grand scale with 400 million dollars of the taxpayers' money in the balance. Opposition to the parity payments appeared to be growing at the end of the day, but none could forecast just what action the house would take.

[Parity payments are bounties given to growers of wheat, cotton, corn, rice, and tobacco, which aim at raising the level of the farmer's income to that he enjoyed in the five year period between 1909-1914, when farmers were prosperous.]

Legislators Resentful.

Points of order to various provisions in the bill brought parliamentary tangles which slowed action on the measure. The legislators, not accustomed to working Saturdays and resentful of missing the pleasures of a perfect spring day outside, grew restless.

The farm bloc and the WPA bloc were openly hostile. It was a fight between the congressmen from large cities who want WPA pay rolls kept at their present levels and the representatives from the rural districts to whom the appropriations for work-relief are not so important.

Delegations from New York, Chicago, Detroit, and other big cities met and decided to vote againt parity payments. They had been unable to get what they wanted — specific pledges from the farm group members that they would not attempt to slash the President's WPA fund.

Leader Rayburn Defeated.

Rayburn, however, was intent upon getting the farm bill out of the way. He had just sent word to the press that is was planned to pass the bill tonight when Representative Anderson jumped to his feet and moved that "the committee arise." There was a bellow of acclamation. On a standing vote the motion was carried, 109 to 84, and when Rayburn demanded tellers the count stood 129 to 104 for the motion. There was nothing left for the leadership but a motion to adjourn until Monday. Members whistled and cheered as they surged for the exists.

Advocates of economy found themselves in a hopeless minority today. Members of the farm bloc, usually strong for economy, worked for the 250 million dollar parity payments fund which not even President Roosevelt has indorsed. The administration forces, never strong for economy, used the situation for the sole purpose of lining up votes for the 150 million dollar WPA fund.

Wants Currency Expansion.

Representative John E. Rankin [D., Miss.] called upon President Roosevelt to exercise his power to expand the currency and "raise commodity prices back to their normal levels."

"The President can reëlect himself or name his successor if he does this," he told the house. "No President has ever been defeated when the price of farm products was high."

PRIVATE PARTY

Butcher Defies Armed Robber and Kills Him

Edward J. Lawall, 56 years old, runs a butcher shop at 3152 West 111th street. On Saturday nights, when he closes later than usual, his sons, Philip, 30, and Leroy, 26, generally call for him in an auto and drive him home. Lawall lives at 11148 South Homan avenue and the neighborhood is not well lighted. As a result, bandits are a constant menace.

The sons called for Lawall last night according to their custom. Before locking up, Lawall stuck a revolver in his pocket. As he and his sons approached his home they noticed a strange car, with lights out, parked in front.

Bandits Leap from Auto.

Philip Lawall, who lives at 11221 South Spaulding avenue, drove into the driveway of his father's home. "Be careful, dad," he cautioned, pointing to the strange car. The elder Lawall said nothing. But he put his hand into his revolver pocket. He and Leroy, who lives with him, stepped out.

At the same moment two men jumped out of the strange car. They ran up to Lawall and Leroy. "Put your hands up, we're bandits," shouted one of the men. He pointed a snub nosed gun at the elder Lawall.

Lawall disdained the warning and the gun. He whipped out his own weapon. The bandit pulled the trigger of his gun twice, but it missed fire. Lawall's gun didn't miss. It roared six times. One bullet tore through the robber's right arm. Another struck him between the eyes, killing him instantly. His companion ran to the waiting car. A third man at the wheel stepped on the accelerator. They escaped.

Slain Robber Unidentified.

The dead bandit was about 23 years old. He carried no marks of identification. Instead of a coat he wore a brown zipper sweater. He also wore a glove on his right hand, evidently so as not to leave finger prints. The robber was still unidentified early today.

According to Lieut. Frank Stevens of the Morgan Park station, the gunman evidently hoped to rob Lawall of his Saturday receipts. He died in vain. Lawall had locked the receipts in the safe in his store.

All he was carrying at the time of the attempted robbery was 50 cents.

Gift Kitten Saves Life of Mistress First Week

Cherryvale, Kas., March 25.—(AP)—A Persian kitten given to her a week ago today saved the life of Mrs. Sadie Hils, 64 years old. Awakened by the pet's mewing, Mrs. Hills, a semi-invalid, found her home in flames. She and the kiten escaped and the house was destroyed.

PRAYER OF BOY, 4, FOR RETURN OF HIS PET DOG ANSWERED

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 25.—(AP)—Wiggles, a dog, was left behind when the D. C. Riedel family moved the 150 miles from Erie, Pa., to Pittsburgh on Oct. 1, 1938. Nightly 4 year old Donald Riedel prayed for the return of his dog. A couple of days ago Mrs. Riedel found the dog, that never had been in Pittsburgh, sleeping on the back porch, worn out from months of wandering. The animal had been given to an Erie resident, who reported it missing two days later.

AMHERST'S QUIET UNBROKEN; FIRE ALARM IS PENNED

Amherst, Mass., March 25.—(AP)—Amherst firemen received a written invitation to a fire at the home of Murray Goodhind. The message, delivered by Goodhind's daughter, read:

"We have a chimney fire in out kitchen. It's very quiet and has been going on since yesterday, but just found it out. There is water in the cellar, so you will need boots."

Steamship Sends Out SOS; Ashore Off Pacific Coast

San Francisco, Cal., March 26 [Sunday].—(AP)—The Radio Corporation of America coastal station at Marshall, Cal., reported tonight receipt of the following message at 2:04 a. m. Chicago time today: "Steamship Point Vincente in distress. Reported grounded at Bona Island near Balboa, Canal Zone. Vessel reported breaking up." The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce marine department reported the ship carried no passengers but usually was manned by a crew of about 35. The cargo was general merchandise.

Ice Peril Told Before Flying Boat Crashed

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—Twenty-four hours before the Imperial airways flying boat Cavalier plunged into the Atlantic ocean on a flight from New York to Bermuda on Jan. 21 with the loss of three lives, Capt. M. R. Alderson reported trouble with carburetor icing, the British air ministry revealed today.

"They fail inherently," were the words used by Capt. C. C. Pirie, air attaché of the British ministry here, in describing the difficulty experienced with carburetor heating systems

The ministry report, which absolved the crew of all blame for the accident, was made public here by Capt. Pirie. The report, issued by Wing Commander Vernon Brown, chief inspector for the air ministry, laid the disaster to ice-clogged carburetor intakes which stopped two of the four motors of the plane and crippled the others.

Survivors Rescued by Tanker.

The Cavalier sank after a forced descent 285 miles southeast of Long Island. Two of the eight passengers and one of the crew of five were drowned. Six passengers and four members of the crew after being in the water for hours were picked up by a tanker.

In releasing the report of the accident, Capt. Pirie revealed that Alderson, the day before the wreck of the Cavalier, had expressed concern over the unsatisfactory functioning of Cavalier's engines due to icing under certain conditions.

"It is not easy to believe," said Pirie, "that this [icing] can occur when hot air is being used for the intakes, but I am now certain that it does.

Sea Conditions Severe.

"The carburetor heating systems on Cavalier have been checked repeatedly for correct functioning, but it seems that they fail inherently."

The report also stated that at the time of the disaster the "sea conditions were too severe to make a good landing possible. As a result of the damage caused to the hull in alighting, the cabins were quickly flooded, and about fifteen minutes later the Cavalier broke in half and sank."

The passengers who died in the crash were Donald Miller, Lincoln, Neb., and John Noakes, Malba, N. Y. The third victim was R. Spence, steward on the Cavalier.

Fire! They Call Snowplow and Save Their Home

Hancock, Mich., March 25.—(AP)—It was a snowplow, not the fire department, that they called when Harry Thomas' house caught fire. The snowplow, which was clearing a road near Thomas' home, was driven into a snowbank beside the house. Its revolving blades tossed snow onto the roof, extinguishing the fire.

SENDS PLEDGE OF HELP; ROME SUPPRESSES IT

Await Mussolini's Speech Today.

ROME, Italy, March 26 [Sunday].—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler yesterday sent a strongly worded message of support to Premier Mussolini, his partner in the Rome-Berlin axis. Despite this pledge of solidarity with the aims of Italy, Fascists expected a conciliatory speech from Il Duce today at the celebration of their party's twentieth anniversary.

Count Galeazzo Ciano [Italian foreign minister].

The text of the German dictator's message to Mussolini was known only to a few in Rome because, contrary to the usual practice, it was not made public. It was learned, however, that the message said:

"On the twentieth anniversary of the foundation of the Fascist fighting units I think of you in hearty and true friendship as the victorious creator of a proud new Italy.

Pledges German Support.

"Filled with the same ideals, the German people stand shoulder to shoulder with the battle-proved Italian nation in defense against all hateful and incomprehensible attempts to restrict the justified will for living of our two peoples and to shake the peace of the world."

Concern in Rome over the European situation has eased somewhat amid signs that Italy and France might come to terms on Fascist claims for colonial concessions.

Among those Fascists who were familiar with the tenor of Hitler's communication the fact that it was not published was considered a clear indication that Mussolini's remarks would not be bellicose.

Hint at Possible Friction.

A brief statement said only that the prince of Hesse, son-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel, had brought Il Duce an anniversary message from Hitler in which the Fuehrer expressed his participation in the ceremonies in the name of the German people.

The opinion was expressed that greatest prominence would have been given the message if it had been entirely harmonious with the line Mussolini had planned to take.

Observers believed that either Mussolini desired to announce the message personally in his speech or that he wished to avoid the impression that Hitler was sounding the keynote.

Expected to Reaffirm Axis.

Diplomats who intend to hear Mussolini address a great massmeeting expected him to reaffirm his partnership with Hitler in the Rome-Berlin axis, perhaps to denounce the hostility of the democracies to Fascist methods, and possibly to declare himself again for "peace with justice"—the axis formula for territorial expansion. But they looked for nothing that would further complicate the nervous situation in Europe.

Sir Noel Charles, British chargé d'affaires, called on Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano yesterday for the second time in two days to discuss "current matters."

Italy was decorated with flags and banners for Fascism's celebration, which was postponed from the real anniversary of last Thursday to avoid interruption of military preparations. Everywhere people were called upon to gather in public squares this morning to hear Il Duce's words by radio.

Charges Duce Covets Serbia.

PARIS, March 26 [Sunday].—[U. P.]—Genevieve Tabouis, writing in the newspaper L'Oeuvre, predicted today that Premier Mussolini's speech in Rome would claim not only "vital rights" from France, but would discuss the problem of Jugo-Slavia, which, the writer said, Il Duce would like to solve by methods analagous to Hitler's treatment of Czecho-Slovakia.

This procedure, the writer said, would take the form of a protectorate tantamount to annexation. She asserted that military measures have been taken on the Jugo-Slavian border.

FRANCO BRINGS A NEW TYPE TO DICTATORSHIPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BURGOS, Spain, March 25.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who is about to become Europe's newest and youngest dictator, is unlike its other dictators in origin, personality, and training. And, unlike them, he came to power by chance.

When the Nationalist [Fascist] revolt began in Spain Franco was intended to play a comparatively minor part. He was not one of the original plotters. He was not even to be the military commander.

An assassination in Madrid, a plane crash on the outskirts of Lisbon, and Franco's ability to seize an opportunity and ruthlessly make the most of it catapulted him into the dictatorship that now seems only a few hours away.

A Descendant of Heroes.

Unlike Stalin, Hitler, and Mussolini, Franco was well born, the descendant of military heroes. He was trained to give commands. He was in turn Spain's youngest lieutenant, youngest captain, and youngest general. [Mussolini was a corporal, Hitler was a corporal, and Stalin was a private, and their military experiences were brief at best.]

Francisco Franco came into the world as a puny baby in 1892 while his father, Admiral Nicolas Franco, was commandant of the naval base of Ferrol, in Galicia. The puniness lingered throughout Francisco's boyhood, stunting his growth. Even now he is just over five feet tall.

Admiral Franco decided to send this son into the army instead of the navy, to which his eldest son, Nicolas Jr., already had gone. Francisco, therefore, went to military school in the Alcazar, ancient Toledo's citadel, when he was 14 years old. There he so distinguished himself that at 17 he was a lieutenant on his way to Spanish Morocco to help subdue the barbaric tribesmen.

Never Attended University.

Because of the early start of his military career, Franco never attended a university, but he acquired an education through reading. Many of the books available ir the desert fortresses were military in nature, and his rise thus was accelerated.

After a few years' stay in Morocco Franco became a captain. In his first campaign after he received the promotion a musket ball lodged in his stomach after carrying away part of a lung.

Recovering, to the amazement of army curgeons, Franco was made a major, and at 27 was second to Gen. Millan Astray in command of the famous Tercio [3d] brigade. In 1923, four years later, he succeeded Gen. Astray.

Spain's Youngest General.

At the age of 34 Franco became the country's youngest general and was made commandant of the military school at Saragossa.

When King Alfonso abdicated in 1931 Franco gave no sign that he felt deeply about it. He took the oath of the new republic. But something he said or did led to his being put on a military shelf. For two years the young general was idle.

Then came the bloody Asturian revolt at Oviedo in 1934. The government needed a tough, ruthless campaigner to crush it. Franco did so with appalling thoroughness. His friend, Maria Gil Robles, the Catholic leader, made him chief of staf of the army.

Revolt Breaks Out.

In the sweeping leftist victory at the polls in February, 1936, Gil Robles lost his power. The leftists remembered Franco's merciless work at Oviedo and transferred him to a minor post in the Canary Islands.

While Franco's boat was still at sea the plot that was to plunge Spain into civil war was being hatched. Gil Robles, now Franco's envoy to Portugal, shaped it. The monarchist-fascist deputy, José Calvo Sotelo, was to be the dictator when the revolt succeeded. Gen. José Sanjurjo was to

SWISS STRENGTHEN GUARD ON GERMAN BORDER; SET MINES

BERNE, Switzerland, March 25.—(AP)—Orders calling up frontier reserves to guard Switzerland's German border were executed swiftly today after the Swiss government announced all border posts were to be reinforced.

Mines at strategic points such as tunnels, bridges and passes were being charged, meanwhile, on all frontiers. At Basel, trucks were requisitioned from private industries to move troops to garrisons along the Swiss-German boundary.

MADRID AGREES TO REBEL TERMS FOR SURRENDER

Turns Over Air Fleet to Nationalists.

BURGOS, Spain, March 25.—(AP)—Nationalists maintained silence tonight on developments at Madrid, but there were reports that Republicans already had decided on unconditional surrender.

The unconfirmed reports also said Republicans had handed over their air force to the nationalists. The newspaper Espana said twelve Republican planes had left Madrid for an undisclosed destination, and that one of the planes carried seventeen Republican leaders.

Informed sources reiterated that occupation of Madrid was only a question of days, but the nationalist government declined to confirm or deny reports that Franco had sent the Republican government an ultimatum demanding surrender within forty-eight hours.

Prepare Madrid for Surrender.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], March 25.—(AP)—The historic siege of Madrid tonight showed increasing signs its end was near as advices from both sides in the Spanish civil war said peace negotiations were almost completed.

Dispatches from the Republican zone reported that railroad lines, idle since the Nationalist siege began in November, 1936, were being repaired, and there were other indications that life soon might surge back to the hungry, beleaguered capital.

Its capitulation, and with it the crumbling of the last one-fourth of Spain still under Republican rule, was believed by border observers to be a matter of days at most.

Turn Over Planes.

In Rome the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia reported from Nationalist Spain that the Madrid government's unconditional surrender already was arranged, and that a Nationalist army of occupation probably would enter the city tomorrow.

The Italian dispatch said that Gen. José Miaja, head of the Republican defense council, had agreed to deliver Madrid's entire air force of forty-five war planes tonight as the first act of submission and to disarm government militiamen.

[In Paris it was announced that the French government had agreed to turn over to Generalissimo Francisco Franco's régime the Spanish loyalist fleet which had taken refuge in the Tunisian port of Bizerte, French North African naval base. The British government, pursuing a similar course, turned over to Franco the Republican destroyer José Luis Diez, which was at Gibraltar.]

Information from the Spanish Nationalists said that envoys of Gen. Miaja, who flew to Burgos Thursday for peace negotiations, were received coolly in Generalissimo Franco's capital.

Doubt Miaja's Control.

The major concern of Nationalist negotiators, reports said, was whether Miaja himself had sufficient control in his territory to be able to turn it over to Franco.

The Nationalists even professed an attitude of unconcern over the deliberations, asserting that they quickly could reduce the Republican zone's last resistance by force if its surrender were not soon forthcoming.

The Madrid junta, which met last night after the return of its emissaries, was reported to have radioed Franco's general staf today, carrying on the negotiations.

Populace Ready for Peace.

Observers expressed belief that Madrid may have given the Nationalists assurance that Miaja was firmly in command and the Republican populace was ready for peace after ousting the bitter end government of former Premier Juan Negrin and crushing the insurrection of die-hard communists.

Surrender of the city of 1,000,000 population, however, presented other problems which it was expected might require further exchanges of messages. Among the difficulties, for instance, was the question of turning over arms to the victorious Nationalists and the points at which Franco's army would enter Madrid.

The dispatches to the Giornale d'Italia said large units of Nationalists were expected to take strategic positions in Madrid as a vanguard, followed by the remainder of Franco's army of occupation.

Should an eleventh hour hitch in-

RIGORS OF WAR FAIL TO SHOW IN SAN SEBASTIAN

Spanish Town Retains Resort Touch.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, March 7.—[By Mail.]—Once past the elaborate frontier formalities made necessary by a state of war, a traveler finds little in this northwestern part of Spain except the crowds of soldiers in the streets and cafes to remind him the country is at war at all.

Coming by car from France, only half an hour away, the first stop is the border town of Irun, where ruined buildings are reminders of bitter fighting before the town was taken by Nationalist troops.

At the international bridge passport and luggage are examined, the safe conduct [taking the place of a visa] must be shown, and on the first trip the visitor must be photographed and fingerprinted. All money must be declared and noted on the passport, since otherwise none of it can be taken out of Spain again.

Books Are Examined.

Books and papers must be examined and passed by the military censor.

When all that has been done, travel is normal and simple.

San Sebastian always was Spain's aristocratic summer resort, with the former king's summer palace lying just outside the town on the coast.

Now it is as crowded as at the height of any other season. The only difference is that most of the men are in uniform, many of them recovering from wounds.

In the streets the crowds show no signs of the worries of war. In the restaurants good food and drink are not lacking. Prices are reasonable and the shops are well stocked.

At noon time the main street is packed with strollers and the cafe terraces are overflowing.

But back of all those surface impressions, there is plenty of evidence that the people are well aware they are at war. It is confidence and determination, not nonchalance that makes everything seem so normal.

Notices everywhere remind soldiers on leave that the war has not entirely ended and that any careless talk may reveal important information.

A special tax for "aid to the fighters" is levied on nearly every purchase, to provide funds for any necessary aid to soldiers' families. Stamps canceled and presented with the bill show that it has been paid.

Nearly everything, except real necessities, is subject to the tax. Card players in cafes pay one peseta [now about 10 cents] in tax on each game. So do chess and parcheesi players. For Mah Jongg the tax is one peseta a player.

Easy to Forget War.

There is a 20 per cent tax on all entertainments, on all radios or radio accessories and on all cameras and photographic materials. On automobiles it is 10 per cent, and 10 percent on taxi fares.

It is easy to sit in San Sebastian, far from the fighting, and enjoy the sun at a café table while young officers and pretty girls stroll by and fill the surrounding tables, and to forget that everything is not normal.

It is when the handsome young officer at the next table shakes hands with his left hand because his right arm is missing, and when three strapping young lads in uniform go by together, all on crutches because each has lost a leg, that the visitor is suddenly reminded of the struggle going on.

That is the proof of remarkable organization and of great strength here, that while the fighting has gone on and men and food have been poured into the front line, and while huge quantities of food are being shipped to Catalonia for distribution, everything can seem so normal in San Sebastian.

JUDGE JAILS RECEIVER INDEFINITLY IN $4,700 SHORTAGE OF ACCOUNT

Charles Mayer, 40 years old, a real estate agent, was sentenced to the county jail for an indefinite term for contempt of court by Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday when he failed to explain a $4,700 fund shortage satisfactorily.

Charles Mayer.

Mayer lives with his wife and three children at 5706 West 23d street, Cicero. His troubles began in 1933 when he was appointed receiver for a steel supply plant site at 23-29 North May street pending settlement of foreclosure litigation between Arnold K. Marks, a mortgage banker, and the property owner, Attorney Nicholas A. Pope. Last Feb. 25 the Supreme court held Marks entitled to foreclose.

Money collected by Mayer was ordered turned over to Marks. Questioned by Marks' attorney, Milton A. Gordon, yesterday, Mayer said he was $4,700 short. "I and my family had to live," was his only explanation. Judge McKinlay sentenced him until such time as he gives an accounting.

The circumstances recalled the case of Raymond Prochnow, forgotten man of the county jail who served nearly four years for debt.

MADRID AGREES TO REBEL TERMS FOR SURRENDER

Hands Over Its Air Force to Nationalists.

terfere with the plan, the newspaper's correspondent with the Nationalists said, hundreds of thousands of troops and thousands of guns were ready to launch an immediate offensive.

Franco, who has insisted since the start of the war on July 18, 1936, that only unconditional surrender or the complete defeat of the Republican government could end the strife, held to this stand.

Negrin and his ministers, whose prosecution of the war for two years incurred the bitterest Nationalist enmity, already are safely in France. Other Republican leaders have been fleeing by airplane and ship to French North Africa.

MILLIONS SEEK SAFETY

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ABOARD BRITISH FREIGHTER SEABRANK SPRAY, OFF VALENCIA, March 25.—There are 7,000,000 Spaniards still in the narrow wedge of country that runs from the Mediterranean to Madrid and is still described as Republican Spain. It may no longer be Republican Spain tomorrow or the day after, for no one is thinking of further resistance to Gen. Francisco Franco. Everybody who has any interest in the future is thinking only of terms of surrender and what will happen afterward, whatever the terms may be.

The second thought in every mind is how to get out, how to escape from this uncertainty into safety. Half of these 7,000,000 are frantically waiting to get away but few will ever be able to do so.

Hunger and Misery.

Within Spain there is hunger and misery that cannot be understood by those who have not known what it is to live in a country where every service has completely broken down and no organization or direction is left.

Even if these Republicans wanted to resist, they could not. It is futile to talk about surrendering on conditions. There is nothing with which to fight, or even to live.

Communications do not exist. Railroads are not running because there is no coal. There is no motor transport for there is no fuel. To get anywhere one must walk or, at best, drive in late nineteenth century vehicles drawn by horses that are almost too emaciated to be worth killing for food for this starving population.

GUEST CONFESSES POISONING LIQUOR WHICH KILLED 2

Keene, N. H., March 25.—(AP)—Alfred Wojehick, 30 years old of Brattleboro, Vt., town employé, tonight confessed poisoning the liquor which caused the death of Mrs. Julia Wheaton, 30, and Edgar Smart, 28, at a party last night at Ashuelot, N. H. Wojehick was one of the guests.

Solicitor John R. Goodnow said Wojehick had signed a four page confession and that warants charging him with the slayings would be served tomorrow. Wojehick is in jail. Goodnow said he would reveal the contents of the confession tomorrow. He said he believed the poisoned liquor was intended for some one else.

Mrs. Wheaton and Smart collapsed after drinking from the same glass.

FRANCO BRINGS A NEW TYPE TO DICTATORSHIPS

Europe Scans His Past for Hint of Future.

On July 12, 1936, Sotelo was dragged from his Madrid home and murdered, supposedly by government order. In six days garrisons were in revolt over all Spain.

On July 18 Franco flew to Morocco. He found the Strait of Gibraltar blockaded. In Madrid and several other cities the coup d'état had failed. The rebellion was all but checked. Franco, however, found a means to break the blockade. Italian planes were furnished by Premier Mussolini. In them, Franco flew to the mainland the Moroccan troops that had joined the revolt. These included the Foreign legion and company after company of bloodthirsty Moors, Spain's ancient enemies. Franco then used the planes to drive loyalist warships from between the Pillars of Hercules [the two sides of the Strait of Gibraltar] and open up the strait for the passage of materials the rebels needed.

Three days later Gen. Sanjurjo's plane fell near Lisbon, killing the military genius of the revolt. Without hesitation Franco proclaimed himself generalissimo. Since that day his name has been symbolical of the Spanish rebellion.

What the Man Is Like.

Now, after almost three years of bloodshed, atrocity, and horror, the war is near an end. The world wonders what sort of man is this Franco?

At 46 he is younger than the other dictators. Hitler is 49, Mussolini 56, and Stalin 60.

Tall men might call Franco a midget. His hands and feet appear small even in relation to his stature.

He has a strange face when viewed feature by feature. The high forehead of the philosopher is belied by the hooked, beaklike nose of the conqueror. The jaw is strong, but it tapers surprisingly to a pointed little chin.

Those who have talked with Franco agree that his glance is timid, that his manner is sometimes naïve. One of these, however, the Gen. Jouart who was military attaché at the French embassy in Madrid in the days of the republic, remembers Franco thus:

"There is a certain timidity, yes; but this timidity intimidates the visitor considerably, since underneath it one can see the prudent observer."

An earnest French reporter, Rene Banjamin of the Paris Candide, wrote a description of this timidness extreme enough to be a caricature:

"His glance is unforgettable, like that of all rare beings; a troubled and trembling glance, full of sweetness. The man is delicious and mysterious. He is a miracle of tenderness and energy. The ravishing thing about Franco is his purity."

He's the Life of the Party.

Those who know this new dictator declare he is devoted to his wife and his daughter. No domestic scandal, they say, has ever touched his name. With friends he becomes lively, leads the conversation, and is the life of the party. He jokes brilliantly.

Comrades of Moroccan days remember Franco as an officer who preferred to reflect thoroughly on a problem, then act with stunning suddenness.

It was apparent to all observers that not only the dark skinned legionnaires but the barbarians as well worshiped the little man with the beak nose, gentle voice, and the timid glance. They had seen him in action.

Franco once was asked:

"Do you think that bringing in the barbaric Moors will help to pacify Spain?"

"It was necessary," Franco replied in a dreamy voice. "And there is precedent for it. Azana [the Loyalist president, now resigned and a fugitive] brought them in 1932 to quell the revolt of Gen. Sanjurjo."

He offered no other justification for turning the Moors against those of his own faith. He is a devout Roman Catholic.

When the revolt was a year old Gen. Franco named himself El Caudillo [the chief]. It means about the same in Spanish as Hitler's Der Fuehrer in German and Mussolini's Il Duce in Italian. He merged all rebel parties and factions and followed the dictator pattern.

It was about this time that his ability as an organizer, business man, and civil politician began manifesting itself.

Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, late of the British army, found Franco establishing swift order in the territory he held. Writing in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Maj. Gen. Fuller told of seeing business going on almost normally, of food with plenty of wine readily available at reasonable prices, and of the disappearance of fear. He saw lovers strolling in the twilight.

Franco Gags the Press.

During May, 1938, Franco made a move that indicated he may be a dictator of the Stalin-Hitler-Mussolini stripe. He gagged the press and took it over.

"Journalism," he said, "cannot be permitted to live alongside the state."

Europe today wonders what kind of dictator Franco will make. When the impersonal mask of war drops from him his basic character may begin to influence his public acts. His intimates insist, and are thankful, that he has few if any eccentricities or affectations such as distinguish Hitler and Mussolini—no Fuehrer hysteria, no Duce bombast.

Franco has not been made austere by military service. He lives quietly and happily with his family when his duties permit. [He married the charming Senorita Carmen Palo between two of his Moroccan campaigns and they have a daughter, Carmencita, 12 years old.] The general enjoys good food, but he is neither a gourmet nor a glutton. He drinks moderately of native wines and brandies, among the world's best.

He is, however, a military man to the bone, and history shows that few military men made good statesmen or rulers. Finally, while Europe is prepared to admit that on the battlefield Franco is an iron man, it wonders whether he will be strong enough to stand against Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini, whose experience in the dictator business far overshadows his own.

FRANCE TO TURN LOYALIST FLEET OVER TO FRANCO

See Deal to Buy Off Duce Behind Move.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 25.—France has agreed to turn over to Gen. Francisco Franco three cruisers and eight destroyers of the Republican fleet now lying at anchor in Bizerte, French North African naval base, near Tunis, THE TRIBUNE learned tonight.

Coming at the moment when the European situation is judged so grave and the Swiss are charging mines under their frontier bridges and highways, this first break in the Franco-British uncompromising attitude toward the dictatorships caused a sensation in diplomatic circles.

Trying to Buy Mussolini?

The first obvious interpretation that it was a desperate attempt by France to buy Franco's neutrality should the present crisis lead to war soon was overshadowed by the possibility that it was Premier Mussolini rather than Franco whom the French mainly were trying to buy off. The British, also, were thought by many to be pursuing the same course, since the destroyer José Luis Diez was turned over to the Franco fleet at Gibraltar today.

It was recalled that when the Republican fleet fled from Cartagena to Bizerte on March 6 Il Duce's mouthpiece, Virginio Gayda, launched a powerful blast in the Italian press, declaring it was a grave menace to Sicily for the French to keep these ships at Bizerte.

"The fleet must be immediately disarmed and the ships handed over to Franco," Gayda wrote, "because Italy will not tolerate their remaining too long near Sicily."

Duce Exerts Pressure.

The French apparently intended to keep the Republican fleet at Bizerte until the end of the Spanish civil war and settlement of all questions pending between Franco and the Paris government.

In political circles it was pointed out that France could not afford to let Franco have these ships until it was sure whether or not he would be Italy's ally in case of war. In the meantime, it was very handy for France to have this addition to its navy if war should be declared.

However, Franco, presumably at Mussolini's instigation, insisted on having the ships immediately, although he had expressed himself as willing to await the end of the war to recover other republican armaments. He refused to receive the French ambassador, Marshal Henri Petain, until an agreement was reached on this point.

Three Explanations.

Yesterday, Franco received Marshal Petain—very honorably and cordially—and today it was announced that Franco would get the fleet. Also, tomorrow Mussolini will speak and the latest news from Italy is that he will follow pretty much the lines of King Victor Emmanuel's speech of Thursday, which left the door open for negotiations with France.

In the circumstances, political observers could see only three possible explanations. First, the French have gone crazy. Second, Franco has sold out Mussolini. Third, very highpowered negotiations for Franco-Italian rapprochement are going on already and this is part of the deal.

The first two possibilities are considered unlikely, so that, pending evidence to the contrary, the third looks pretty serious.

Eight Drown as Ice Goes Out of Canadian River

VICTORIA, B. C., March 25.—[U. P.]—Eight persons were drowned today and many others were made homeless by floods when ice broke up in the East Pine river, according to reports received by provincial police. The scene of the flood damage was thirty miles from Dawson creek in the Peace river district.

POLAND SNAGS BRITAIN'S DRIVE TO STOP HITLER

Fight on Chamberlain Policy Grows.

LONDON, March 25.—(AP)—Great Britain's attempt to build a ring of steel around expanding Germany waited today on Poland and Italy. It waited on Poland to decide where to seek to bolster her threatened security and on Premier Mussolini of Italy to show how much he still counts on the Rome-Berlin axis to give him belated rewards.

Growing impatience meanwhile was manifest in political quarters at the government's delay in bringing out a vigorous new collective security policy to replace Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's discarded appeasement program.

Urge Military Commitments.

Critics of the government blamed delay in constituting the proposed anti-aggression front on its apparent unwillingness to take these steps:

1. Give definite military commitments to eastern European countries to gain adherents for a "Stop Hitler" bloc.

2. Impose some form of conscription immediately to show Britain's intention to play a full part in resisting possible aggression.

3. Broaden the base of the national government to bring in ministers with strong convictions about collective security, such as former Foreign Ministers Anthony Eden and Winston Churchill.

Poland Wants Proof.

While soviet Russia, after the first hesitations, appeared ready to join Britain and France in an anti-aggression declaration, Poland held out for more concrete proof of mutual aid.

The British cabinet was believed divided on the issue whether to embark on a course involving a promise to launch hostilities against Germany on the west in event of an attack on Poland.

Britain tonight waited with mixed hopes and apprehension for Mussolini's speech tomorrow to indicate how events in central Europe have affected his end of the Rome-Berlin axis. Fears were based on the possibility that Mussolini might advance officially broad territorial demands on France.

Hopes were founded on the view that he might instead indicate a willingness to accept moderate concessions from France and negotiate on a friendly basis to get them.

FRENCH PLAN TO HALT ELECTION; UP TO DALADIER

Frenchmen in Chicago were interested yesterday in a dispatch from Paris stating that plans were afoot to postpone the election of a successor to President Albert Lebrun. The senate and chamber of deputies have been called to meet April 5 to pick a new president, but some deputies were reported planning to present a petition urging that Lebrun remain in office "throughout the dangerous European situation."

Well informed Frenchmen here said postponement of the election would not be a coup d'état. They added that a postponement could be ordered under the dictatorial powers granted last week to Premier Edouard Daladier. The premier has been invested with these powers until Nov. 30.

It is possible, however, for President Lebrun to be reëlected for another seven year term, but few French presidents have served two terms.

CZECH MINISTER IN RUSSIA DEFIES CHIEFS IN PRAGUE

MOSCOW, March 25.—[U. P.]—Zdenek Fierlinger, former Czecho-Slovak minister, who resigned when Germany annexed Bohemia, today hoisted the Czecho-Slovak flag over the legation building and informed the diplomatic corps that he would continue to act on behalf of a "free Czecho-Slovakia."

Frantisek Chvalkovsky, Czech foreign minister, wired Fierlinger from Prague, threatening severe punishment unless he submitted immediately to the German ambassador, to which Fierlinger replied: "You and Hacha [President Hacha] are traitors. Long live a free Czecho-Slovakia."

Soviet Russia has refused to recognize the German annexation.

EUROPE ALARMED AGAIN; NAZI MOVE ON SERBIA FEARED

German Leaders Called to Berlin for Parley.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 25.—The atmosphere of crisis still hangs over central Europe.

Foreign diplomats learned today that leaders of the German minority groups in Jugo-Slavia had come to Berlin. Alarm was expressed in Belgrade. The German minority leaders in Jugo-Slavia, like the leaders of all German groups throughout the world, form a part of the Association of Germans Living Abroad and receive their orders from Berlin.

Belgrade feared that the Germans in Jugo-Slavia now are receiving their orders to imitate the actions of the German minorities in Czecho-Slovakia which led to the dismemberment of that state and the subjugation under German rule of the Czech population, which is racially akin to the Serbs.

Report Troops Ready to March.

Rumors persisted that German troops were massed near the Jugo-Slav border. This was officially denied. High officers admitted, however, that "quite a number of officers are spending their winter leave in the former Austrian region."

In Polish circles the fear of new conflicts with the German minority groups also kept the tension at high pitch. Many Poles living in Berlin are thinking seriously of sending their families back to Poland.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi minister of aviation and Reichsfuehrer Hitler's right hand man, is preparing to fly next week to Libya, Italian African possession, to return the visit to Berlin of Marshal Italo Balbo, governor of Libya. Goering is now in Italy recovering from a strenuous reducing Franco May Fly to Rome.

After visiting Libya, Goering plans to return to Rome for a conference with Mussolini. If towards the end of next week Gen. Francisco Franco is master of Madrid, the Spanish nationalist leader may fly to Rome to join the Mussolini-Goering conversations and help formulate the Mediterranean policy of the dictator powers.

All German consular authorities have been instructed to inform German conscripts of the 1920 class residing abroad that they must return to Germany for two and one-half years to serve in the labor service and the armed forces. Conscripts of this class will start to serve in the labor service April 1, 1940.

The great number of men serving in the armed forces is partly responsible for the shortage of labor in Germany. Announcing that Germany henceforth would not publish unemployment figures, Dr. Friedrich Syrup, state secretary in the ministry of labor, declared that "Germany could easily find work for a million additional workers within a fortnight. The Austrian reserves of workers are exhausted, since Austrian industries are running at full speed. Lack of foreign currencies forbids us to employ more foreigners. The only possibility of lessening the labor shortage to a considerable degree is to employ more women."

Poland Masses Troops.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, March 25.—(AP)—Polish troops estimated by Germans to number "more than 10,000" today took positions in the Polish harbor city of Gdynia, on Danzig's western frontier.

Although Polish officials declined to comment, semi-official German sources said they had confirmed reports of Polish troop movements, which also had been received by the United States consulate general and other foreign consulates.

The troops were said to have been moving in small groups up through the Polish corridor, which gives Poland a Baltic outlet and separates east Prussia from the rest of Germany.

There also were unconfirmed reports of German troop concentrations in east Prussia and along the corridor's western frontier.

Danzig Asks: When Is Our Turn?

Danzig citizens, wondering "When does our turn come?" in Hitler map remaking, showed little excitement over the military reports. They were more concerned, however, with Poland's order withdrawing surplus railway equipment from Danzig and the corridor, which they feared would hamper shipping activities.

Danzig formerly was German territory and almost every German expects confidently that the Free City as well as Pomore [the Polish corridor] will become part of greater Germany some day. They say that separation of east Prussia from the rest of Germany by Danzig and the corridor is "unnatural."

An exchange of notes between German and Lithuanian governments was announced today providing protection for Lithuanians in Memel, who opposed Hitler's annexation of that Baltic region on March 23.

Mrs. Hilda Zurke with her two children, Robert Jr. and Ruth, in Judge Finnegan's court yesterday.

Mrs. Robert Zurke, wife of the swing pianist in Bob Crosby's orchestra, now playing in a loop restaurant, was awarded $37.50 a week support money for herself and two children yesterday by Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

Mrs. Zurke has a separate maintenance suit pending. Zurke told the court he made $78 a week. Mrs. Zurke's attorney, Norman Becker, contended the figure was closer to $150 a week and the court set April 11 for a hearing to establish the actual amount.

$100,000 ASKED FOR CONTROL OF AID TO WALLACE

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—Representative John C. Schafer [R., Wis.] asked the house today to provide "$100,000 for the control of Mordecai Ezekiel," economic adviser to Secretary Wallace. The fund was suggested as the house was wrangling over insect control funds. Schafer said Ezekiel was responsible for "brain-trust, half-baked, soviet controls of the department of agriculture."

SLOVAK-MAGYAR WARFARE ENDED; TOWNS BOMBED

Hungarians Claim Seven Planes Shot Down.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 25.—(AP)—The Hungarian and Slovak governments agreed tonight to settle by negotiation their frontier dispute, which had brought land and air forces into warfare.

A Slovak commission is scheduled to come to Budapest Monday to fix the border between German-protected Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia], the former Czecho-Slovak province annexed by Hungary. An armistice was reported to have been ordered and both sides were said to be holding their positions pending the negotiations.

Hungarians asserted the airfield at Iglo, in Slovakia, had been bombed last night by Hungarian planes in reprisal for Slovak bombings of Hungarian cities. Except for damages by air bombs, the only losses admitted by the Hungarians were two men they said were captured when they drove by mistake across the line into Slovakia. The Hungarians said seven Slovak planes had been shot down.

Anti-aircraft guns were mounted on railway stations and bridges over the Danube as a precaution against air raids and day and nigh tair patrols over Budapest were orered.

Bombings Laid to Both Sides.

IGLO, Slovakia, March 25.—(AP)—Air and land fighting between Hungarian and Slovak troops was reported today in the Ung river valley, claimed by Hungary as her new frontier line.

Bombings of towns and villages behind the fighting zone was attributed to both sides. Losses of life as well as property damage was reported.

A Slovak aviation squadron based here took off to bomb Kosice in retaliation for a Hungarian air attack on this town in which, authorities said, 10 civilians were killed and 27 wounded.

Slovak troops, part of the well trained former Czecho-Slovak army, were moving eastward toward the Ung river valley along Slovakia's uncertain eastern frontiers.

Bombed Town in Mourning.

Five Hungarian bombers were accused by Slovaks of dropping 18 bombs on Iglo last night. Today closed shops were draped in black. Anti-aircraft guns were mounted on Iglo roofs.

Slovak flyers yesterday bombed Ungvar, which Hungary has made the capital of Carpatho-Ukraine. Some loss of life was reported. Slovak planes also bombed Rozsnyo, a city of 6,000 in the territory Hungary won by the first partition of Czecho-Slovakia.

NAZI-RUMANIAN TREATY BLOW TO BRITISH, FRENCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 24.—The new German-Rumanian trade treaty gives the reich economic advantages that threaten to undermine the "economic offensive" which Britain and France have been waging in central Europe, it was ruefully admitted today in economic circles here.

The most striking feature of the pact is the section giving the Germans freedom to invade Rumanian production in order to increase output. The increase will, of course, go 100 per cent to meet the needs of German economy.

QUEEN OF ALBANIA EXPECTS HER BABY WITHIN NEXT WEEK

TIRANA, Albania, March 25.—(AP)—All arrangements, even to announcement cards, have been made for the expected birth of a first child to King Zog of Albania and his American-Hungarian queen, Geraldine, within the next week.

Albania's 1,000,000 inhabitants eagerly are awaiting the birth, for if the child is a boy he will be heir to their country's throne. If it is a boy his name will be Skander, Albanian for Alexander; if a girl, Donica.

Mrs. Gladys Stewart Girault, American mother of Queen Geraldine, is expected soon from her home in southern France to be with her daughter, who is 23 years old. She was married to King Zog last April 27. The queen's father was the late Count Julius Nagy-Apponyi of Hungary.

HITLER ATTENDS VAUDEVILLE; SEES CHICAGO DANCERS

BERLIN, March 25.—[U. P.]—Three men slipped unobtrusively into a vaudeville theater last night and sat in a private box. No one noticed them. They were Reichsfuehrer Hitler, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, and Adjt. Friedrich Wilhelm Brueckner, just returned from a business trip to Memelland.

Two Chicago tap dancers, billed as "Lavalle and McKay," were on the stage.

[The team of Lavalle and McKay was identified by theatrical agents in Chicago as a "comedy drunk team." Agents said they were "pure Aryan."]

Bullitt Entertains for French President Lebrun

PARIS, March 25.—(AP)—Ambassador William C. Bullitt entertained sixty-five guests tonight at a dinner-dance in honor of President and Mme. Albert Lebrun. Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, wife of the ambassador to London, came to Paris to act as Bullitt's hostess. Before the dinner, held in the American embassy residence, Bullitt conferred at the foreign office with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

JAPAN CONFIDENT IT WILL BUILD A BETTER ASIA

Spends Wildly, but Puts Faith in Its People.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 25.—A big question in the western Pacific is whether Japan can carry out her tremendous task of creating and dominating a flourishing economic, industrial, and agricultural entity in east Asia.

Based on her phenomenal rise in less than fifty years from a "comic opera country" to a world power, many observers believe that if any nation can do it it is Japan. Ninety-nine per cent of the people are convinced of this.

Her greatest danger is overanxiety and her terrific rush. She stands the risk of being caught too far out on the limb of her continental adventure. She is spending entirely too much money too quickly, observers declare.

Many of Japan's grandiose plans remain, of course, in the blueprint stage. But factories, office buildings and cheap abodes are sprouting up like toadstools in Manchuria and have started rising in North China, giving the impression of a fly-by-night boom. This is in stark contrast with the gradual development of Corea and Formosa, Japan's two colonial possessions.

Energy Called Vital Factor.

One of this country's great industrialists, Ginjiro Fujihara, declares:

"To Americans it may be natural to imagine that for Japan, poor in financial resources, the work of reconstructing China is beyond her power. But in construction and development the human element counts more than money."

That is one reason for believing that Japan will achieve her aims. This country, although poor in terms of money, is rich in human energy and enterprise.

Many Japanese, however, do not seem to share Fujihara's views about money. They apparently have the idea that cash and plenty of it is a prerequisite for successful empire building. And so they are spending money freely, expecting that foreign capital will come to the rescue.

Nation on Spending Spree.

Japan is on a spending spree at home and on the Asiatic continent such as she has not known since the boom days of the world war. Much of the money is in investments of a sort—power transmitting stations, industrial plants, railways, roads, and harbors—but the returns are not likely to start coming in for at least ten years, more likely twenty.

After twenty years there is little doubt, barring catastrophies, that Japan will start profiting in a big way on her Chinese adventure. But that is a long time from now.

Japan is convinced that China can not be conquered in the sense that England conquered India. She also realizes that she can not move into China as did the Mongol hordes under Ghengis Khan; that even if she did, she would, like the Mongols, probably be absorbed.

Force Backs "New Order."

She believes in what she calls "a new order in East Asia"—the economic, industrial, and agricultural development of Japan, China, and Manchukuo for the mutual benefit of the people of the three countries.

Coöperation between China and Manchukuo is to be enforced. This was indicated by the announcement of War Minister Gen. Seishiro Itagaki in the diet [parliament] that the army's core will hereafter be on the Asiatic continent.

Despite this, there can be little doubt that if the problem works out in the way Japan wants it to it will be for the ultimate welfare of the peoples of Asia. This is because, if Japan's program fails Japan will crush the Chinese or the Chinese will crush Japan. That probably would mean almost total ruin of each country.

A return to conditions existing prior to the present hostilities must be regarded impossible unless Japan goes to war with soviet Russia. Even then, unless Japan is defeated, any change that occurs probably will be temporary.

Neighbor's Call Brings Police, Who Nab Burglar

An alert neighbor called Austin police last night to 1257 North Mason avenue. He reported there was a burglar in the first floor apartment. Sergt. Robert Rinearson and a squad responded. They seized a young man coming out the door. He was Stanley Gerchus, 20 years old, 1733 South Desplaines street. Police found two watches and three rings in his pockets. He admitted burglarizing the apartment and confessed two other recent burglaries, police said.

Russia's Population Put at 170 Million by Census

MOSCOW, March 25.—[U. P.]—Soviet Russia has a population of 170,126,000, according to preliminary figures of the census taken Jan. 17 and published today by the state planning commission. Final figures will be established in April.

Steel Woman Weds

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
MR. AND MRS. FRED I. MILLS.

Mrs. Jean O'Haver Shassere voluntarily gave up her unique position as the only woman steel salesman in the world yesterday. She was married to Fred L. Mills, a merchant of Robinson, Ill., in the Rogers Park Methodist church, 7050 North Ashland avenue. The Rev. Allison McCracken, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Shassere has long been known as one of the most capable sellers of steel in the world. Among the buildings for which she handled deals are the Merchandise Mart, the Passavant hospital, and the new Field building in the loop.

'It's all been lots of fun," she said after the wedding ceremony. "But I'm not sorry to leave it. I may still sell a little steel now and then, but I'm going to be busy with my new home." The couple will live in Robinson after a brief honeymoon.

TRIES TO SLAY EX-WIFE, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Ernest Anderson, 34 years old, shot and killed himself last night after making an unsuccessful attempt to kill his former wife, Mary, in her home at 156 Wellington avenue, Elgin. Anderson was a watch repairman and had recently been employed in Chicago.

Mrs. Anderson got a divorce in the Circuit court at Geneva last week on a charge of desertion. She had been living with her mother since, and had rejected Anderson's offers for a reconciliation. She has custody of their three children.

Standing outside the house last night, he fired a rifle bullet through a kitchen window. Mrs. Anderson was unhurt, but fell to the floor. Authorities thought Anderson fired a second bullet into his own head in the belief that he had killed her. A card in his pocket showed he had lived in the Northern Pacific hotel, 440 Sherman street, Chicago.

Two Novellos, Noted Aerial Team, Are Thieves' Victims

Frederico Canestelli and his wife Herma, who are known in the circus circuit as the Two Novellos, aerial experts, were the victims of thieves last night. While they were going through a vaudeville act at the Kedzie theater, 3210 Madison street, the thieves stole their car, which was parked in the neighborhood. The car contained $500 worth of civilian clothes, costumes and equipment for their act. Police found the car in a nearby alley, but the clothing was missing.

HINT NAZIS, JAPS PLAN WAR PACT AGAINST RUSSIA

TOKIO, March 26 [Sunday].—(AP)—An authoritative source reported today the possibility of a German-Japanese defensive pact against soviet Russia.

This source said the government had refused to join an unconditional military alliance with Germany and Italy, but might enter an agreement by which Japan would support the Nazis if Russia "attacks Germany without provocation."

The comment followed the closing business sessions yesterday of the seventhy-fourth parliament in which minority groups, which have 106 out of 466 seats, presented a resolution advocating conversion of the anti-comintern pact into a military alliance.

The resolution, which was handed to the premier, Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, declared "a tri-partite military alliance between Japan, Germany and Italy should be concluded against Britain and France who are obstructing accomplishment of imperial aims in the present sacred war [in China]."

[In Berlin, informed German circles asserted it was the Japanese, not the Germans, who were trying to make an outright alliance out of the anti-comintern pact, whose signatories include Hungary and Manchukuo as well as Germany, Italy, and Japan. German experts on the far east expressed doubt of the value to Germany of a military alliance with Japan.]

Battles Rage in China.

SHANGHAI, March 25.—(AP)—Japanese today reported recent battles along the Han river's east shore in Hupeh province had cost Chinese forces 4,740 dead, but Japanese admitted they had been unable to cross the river in their drive northwest of Hankow. Fierce hand to hand fighting raged on the Siao river front 100 miles south of Hankow, where heavy Japanese forces are attempting to encircle Nanchang, Kiangsi province capital.

GENERAL MOTORS' SECOND LOWEST-PRICED CAR

It's easy to convince people that Pontiac is one of the few great cars built today. A look and a ride do that. But persuading people that Pontiac is priced within a few dollars of the lowest—that's something else again! Motorists can't understand how a car so fine can sell at a price so low.

Here's your answer: The Pontiac engineering staff has pioneered no less than 90 basic improvements in automotive design. They're master engineers, every one—past masters at getting better results for less money.

That's why the 1939 Pontiac looms so high above its field in quality, value, comfort, performance, luxury and safety. No car on earth is better engineered. And that means—no other car is so well able to make you proud and save you money!

DRASTIC POWERS PROPOSED IN NEW STATE WAGE BILL

Thousands Now Exempted Would Be Included.

Martin P. Durkin.

Hundreds of thousands of Illinois employés not covered by the federal wages and hours act will be included under its provisions if a bill introduced in the house of representatives at Springfield last week becomes a law.

The act would cover such businesses as department stores, laundries, cleaning plants, barber shops, restaurants, drug stores, theaters, groceries and hotels. Employés in such organizations are deemed to be engaged in intrastate commerce. They do not come under provisions of federal legislation, which covers interstate commerce only.

Copies of the measure arrived in Chicago yesterday and were studied closely. It was difficult to estimate the number of employés who would be affected. The "hundreds of thousands" was the closest approximation Martin P. Durkin, state director of labor, could make.

Labor Behind Bill.

Under terms of the bill, introduced by two Springfield representatives, William J. Lawler [R.] and Andy O'Neill [D.], at the instigation of the state federation of labor, the term "employé" would cover "any individual employed by an employer, but shall not include any individual employed in a bona fide executive or professional capacity; in agriculture, and in domestic service in a private home."

The measure gives broad powers to the director of labor, but Durkin said he already has the same sort of authority under the unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation acts.

For example, one section reads as follows:

"The director or his authorized representative may investigate and gather data regarding the wages, hours, and other conditions and practices of employment in the state. He may enter and inspect such places and such records [and make transcriptions thereof], question such employés, and investigate such facts, conditions, practices, or matters as he may deem necessary or appropriate to determine whether any person has violated any provision of this act or which may aid in the enforcement of the provisions of this act, or in connection with the recommendation of further legislation."

May Inspect Books.

Another section requires employers to keep on hand records showing the nature of occupation of each employé, their pay and hours. This information would be furnished the director at his command, together with a sworn statement as to its accuracy.

Another power granted the director is that of subpenaing witnesses and placing them under oath and of requiring the production of books and records. Failure to comply with this provision would result in contempt of court proceedings before the Circuit or Superior courts.

The federal wages and hours provisions have been written into the Illinois bill, as follows:

Fines for Violations.

For the first year covered by the bill, a 44 hour week is established, thereafter—or after Nov. 1, 1941, all at not more than 8 hours per day work. The second year the total is cut to 42 hours and for the third and employés would be on a 40 hour week, with time and one-half for overtime.

Employers violating these provisions would be subject to a fine of from $25 to $500, imprisonment for from 10 to 90 days, or both. Each day during which a violation continues would constitute a separate offense.

Adoption Battle

Mrs. Anne Harrison holds her sister, Hilda Pantel, 7 years old, during yesterday's hearing on Mrs. Harrison's petition to adopt her sister. Their mother, Mrs. Emma Pantel, is contesting the action. The hearing was continued.

New Political Science Professor Named at U. of I.

The board of trustees of the University of Illinois announced yesterday that Dr. Francis G. Wilson of the University of Washington has been appointed associate professor of political science at the Urbana institution. He will succeed Dr. James W. Garner, who died.

GROWN DAUGHTER FIGHTS PARENTS TO ADOPT SISTER

Threats Fly in Legal Row Over Child, 7.

Mother and sister vied in County court yesterday for the right to rear slim, curly-haired Hilda Pantel, 7 years old.

For the last five years Hilda has lived with her sister, Mrs. Anne Harrison, 909 Wilson avenue. Now Mrs. Harrison and her husband, Walter, a clerk at the Palmer House, want to adopt the little girl as their daughter. Thus Mrs. Harrison would be foster mother to her own sister.

The adoption petition was filed last Sept. 28 by the Harrisons' attorney, Emerson C. Whitney. Yesterday at the adoption hearing Hilda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pantel of Detroit, appeared with Attorney Arthur K. Young to fight the adoption move.

Calls Her Sister Mamma.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki's task was made even more complicated by the fact that Hilda calls her sister, Mrs. Harrison, "Mamma" and calls her brother-in-law, Mr. Harrison, "Daddy." The girl paid scant attention in court to her real father and mother.

Pantel is a WPA worker making $66 a month. He and his wife, Emma, have seven children besides Hilda and Mrs. Harrison. Three, it was testified, live at home. Two of them are working.

Attorney Whitney argued that the Harrisons, having no children of their own, are much better able to support Hilda. Attorney Young contended on the other hand that no court should take the Pantels' "own flesh and blood" away from them.

Warns Father Against Threats.

Mrs. Pantel wept. Pantel muttered, "I'll get that child in some way or other." Judge Jarecki called him to the bench and gave him a tongue lashing.

"Don't you forget that this child is in the custody of the court," Jarecki said sternly. "We want no threats."

The judge continued the hearing to May 26. In the meantime Hilda will continue to live with the Harrisons.

3,120 IN A ROW— IT'S HIS MARK AT SUNDAY SCHOOL

Washington, N. J., March 25.—(AP)— When Herman K. Petty, world's No. 1 Sunday school attender, arrives at the Methodist Episcopal church here tomorrow he will establish a sixty years' perfect attendance record— 3,120 consecutive Sundays.

The church wanted to stage a celebration, but Petty, 70 years old, waved away the suggestion. "I don't see any reason for it," he said. "Wait until 1954, when I'll really have a record—seventy-five years."

Marshall Field & Company
presents here each day observations intended to be of value to those it seeks to serve.

MAN AND HIS WORLD

By CALEB

BROUGHT into being without his knowledge or consent, earliest Man found two subjects for enormous wonder: his living self—and surrounding that self, a world where, by brute strength and cunning, he must contrive to survive or quickly perish. A wonder he would never cease to explore—yet never wholly understand! . . .

One is irresistibly struck by reflections like these, the moment he enters the vast central hall to one of the half-dozen finest institutions of its kind in the world—Field Museum of Natural History. For this imposing marble structure, modeled on classic Greek lines, is not merely dedicated to the satisfying of man's questions about himself and his bewildering world—but offers a complete and informative panorama of natural and human evolution which, in itself, constitutes a liberal education.

Founded by Marshall Field in the year of the Columbian Exposition, this outstanding cultural and architectural landmark has been ideally located to command a composite vista of far blue waters and inspiring skyline. The building proper is valued at more than $7,000,000; the myriad collections it houses at more than $50,000,000 additional. In interest and appeal, the range of its exhibits embraces every man, woman or child with eyes to see and a mind to imbibe.

Here the scholar, novelist, artist, designer, engineer, builder, historian, musician, poet, craftsman and businessman alike can find each his own specialty enhanced by lore gathered from every part of the penetrable world. Yet the profusion, novelty and fascination of natural-history facts presented in these halls equally enthrall the eager child or casual man-of-the-street.

The secret is, that Facts here become vital segments of the four great divisions into which all basic study of the history of man and his world subdivides: anthropology, botany, geology and zoology . . . Racial facts, plant-life facts, earth-structure facts, and animal creation facts. For these and their adequate visualization, separate halls and galleries provide ideal space and setting. Hours can be devoted to the thrilling details of a single subject. Whether Tibetan masks, Oriental gems and temples, prehistoric monsters, plant replicas, or any of the countless group-restorations of earliest man in his native environment—unlimited scope and opportunity are provided for entertainment and enlightenment combined.

Last year over 1,250,000 residents and city visitors paused from the concerns of routine living to find, in Field Museum, new answers to eternal questions—new paths for the ancient quest—centered in comprehension of our planet's picturesque past and peoples.

STUBBORN RHEUMATIC PAIN

Due To Excess Uric Acid

Three weeks ago he was laid up with misery—the piercing rheumatic pains almost drove him mad—then came a bottle of ALLENRU—a present from a neighbor. In 2 days the agony started to go—no wonder gloom changed to joy in that modest home.

Within 24 hours after you begin to take ALLENRU for rheumatic pains, backache, neuritis or lumbago due to excess uric acid or other circulating poisons, the acid should start to leave your body and, as a result, in 48 hours the terrible agony is often stopped.

No powders—no opiates—nothing harmful—ask any live druggist in America for 8 ounces swift and safe ALLENRU prescription—a liquid—costs about 85 cents—save this notice.

NEW WARSHIPS BIGGER, FASTER, BETTER ARMED

Subs and Planes Lead to Sweeping Changes.

(Turn to page 7 of the Graphic Section for vivid photograph of U. S. battleships at sea.)

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—Naval construction is in a period of revolution, occasioned by the development of the submarine and airplane, which has brought about the greatest number of changes in design since the introduction of steam and armor plate.

Naval experts attribute the tendency to larger ships of all classes, development of new fighting craft and new weapons, the introduction of heavy armament and changes in engineering features to the introduction of undersea and air craft.

The United States, Great Britain, Germany, and Japan are feverishly building 35,000 ton battleships, the largest thus far attempted, and have plans calling for mighty floating fortresses of up to 50,000 tons.

Carry More Guns.

These increases in tonnage are directly attributable to submarines and airplanes. The new weapons of warfare have forced heavier armament and more guns. To carry and operate these at increased speeds more engines and generators and other machinery have been made essential, and thus the increase in size of vessels.

On its older vessels the American navy has increased deck and waterline armament. Below the waterline, "blisters"—a third skin of watertight compartments—have been added as defense against submarine torpedoes. The heavier armament, of course, adds to defense against shells from other surface craft, but it was added primarily as defense against bombs and torpedoes.

Vessels of the Rodney type in the British navy carry turret armament 16 inches thick. The main armor which belts the ship's hull is 14 inches thick. The armor which protects the deck is 6¼ inches thick. On the King George V. and the Prince of Wales, under construction, deck armor is expected to approach 12 inches in thickness and armor protecting the turrets 2 feet.

Use Quadruple Turrets.

On the new vessels the British have adopted for the first time quadruple turrets in order to concentrate turret armament of ten 14 inch guns in fewer turrets. The George V. and the Prince of Wales each will have two four-gun and one two-gun turrets. In other capital ships now in service the majority of turrets house two guns and a few three guns.

The new ships have engine rooms and boiler rooms arranged alternately so that one bomb might not incapacitate all the machinery or all the boilers. All navies are swinging to electric motors.

The airplane and submarine have brought streamlining in the bridge and fire control stations. These are to come in single towers.

Modernization Work Costly.

Heavier armament, new machinery, and blisters have been added to all the American battleships within an eight year period. This modernization has cost 100 million dollars.

All have deck armament about 4 inches thick. On new vessels this is to be increased to more than 6 inches. The vessels will have three skins below the waterline and a belt of armor at the waterline at least 16 inches thick. Turret armament is to be even heavier.

Armor of the new battleships being built by Germany and Japan is expected to be as strong, if not stronger, than that on American and British men of war.

Naval experts have been interested by photographs of the launching of the newest German capital ship, the Bismarck, which show it to have a bulbous bow as against the V type bow on the King George V. The German development may have come in the interests of streamlining, but more likely was adopted to permit greater strengthening of the bow.

CHILE'S POPULAR FRONT COALITION FACES SHOWDOWN

Extremists, Moderates Fight Over Power.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 25.—After three months of popular front government of Chile everything points to an early showdown between the extremists and moderates.

Pedro Aguirre.

Chile's popular front combination is made up of radicals [say liberals] in the great majority and Socialists and communists in the minority. And, as has been the case with such leftist coalitions in European countries, it is the extremist minority which appears to be calling the tune.

Leftists Get Control.

On paper the radicals, whose leader, Pedro Aguirre, is president of the republic, have a majority of cabinet and other posts. But the Socialists and communists have concentrated on getting the key jobs, especially in the provinces, to complete an administrative purge before launching on their "economic program."

As Chile was almost a burocracy before the leftists won power it has been comparatively easy for them to get quick control over every department of national life. Replacements of ideologically unreliable personnel have run into thousands, affecting the armed services and police, as well as routine departments. The government was determined to consolidate its position before launching on a "new deal" against monopolies and imperialism.

Quake Causes Crisis.

The earthquake in the southern agricultural belt threatened to disrupt calculations. It would have represented a big problem for any government. On Socialist initiative, however, the national willingness to sacrifice in the cause of relief and reconstruction has been exploited.

Approximately $100,000,000 will be allotted for these purposes, which have been linked with "stimulation of production." Business opposition disliked this, but was not keen on combating what it believed to be an uneconomic scheme when national sentiment was aroused over a great disaster.

The popular front administration, therefore, was in a position successfully to argue that it was bad to raise reconstruction loans at home or abroad without stimulating extra production to pay for interest and amortization. The majority of the country agreed and the leftists will have $100,000,000 to spend. This sum is double the annual national income.

Young Hitch-Hiker Kills Iowa Autoist; Captured

Des Moines, Ia., March 25.—(AP)—W. L. Lowe, Des Moines Salvation Army publicity man, was shot to death today in his automobile near Ankeny, Ia., ten miles north of here. A hitch-hiker who had been riding with Lowe confessed the killing, said Ward Ellison, deputy sherif. The slayer, who identified himself as Glenn Kidwell, 17 years old, of Kelley, Ia., said he wanted to take Lowe's car.

OHIO DISMISSES WARDEN IN QUIZ ON PRISON RULE

Woodard Prepares Fight on Discharge.

Columbus, O., March 25.—[Special.]—James C. Woodard, warden of Ohio state penitentiary since 1934, was discharged today by Charles L. Sherwood, state welfare director. His counsel said he would fight the discharge, which is effective April 1.

James C. Woodard.

In twenty-two charges filed with the state civil service commission, Sherwood accused Woodard of showing favoritism to wealthy or politically powerful inmates, failing to instruct or arm guards adequately, permitting high stake gambling and illicit trafic in alcohol and narcotics among prisoners, and allowing convict jobs to be bought and sold.

Woodard was charge specifically with granting special privileges to Kenyon V. Painter and C. Stirling Smith, Cleveland bankers formerly confined at the prison for misapplying funds, and Thomas [Yonnie] Licavoli, former Toledo gangster serving a life sentence for murder.

Woodard was suspended on March 2. His removal climaxed an investigation started on Jan. 10, the day after John W. Bricker, Republican, became governor.

Republicans swept the Democrats out of office in Ohio last November with pledges to economize and to correct evils in the Democratic administration of Martin L. Davey, who had been governor for two terms.

How! Many Times!

Chief Eli Red Eagle trying to figure out how many times he has been in jail in the last 22 years. The police say the answer is 36.

Eli Red Eagle, whose taste for the white man's firewater often has led him to stray from the Oneida Indian reservation near Green Bay, Wis., was arrested yesterday for the thirty-sixth time in twenty-two years.

Detective Martin Connors picked up Eli at Des Plaines and Madison streets. The Indian again had been trading his wampum for evil spirits.

Eli's first arrest was in Kansas City in 1917 as a robbery suspect. Other charges placed against him in succeeding moons were vagrancy, tampering with an automobile, strong arm robbery, larceny, and disorderly conduct.

Eli gets into just as much trouble by any other name. His quiver of aliases includes James Gymauduin, James Mazium, Jesse Powless, Donneson Wheelock, Frank Woods, Jay King, Frank Rising, and John Lonedeer.

JUDGE REMOVED IN BROOKLYN IN BAIL BOND QUIZ

Justices See Link with Confessed Crook.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Magistrate Mark Rudich, an appointee of Tammany Mayor James J. Walker, was removed from office today by a unanimous decision of the Brooklyn Appellate division, which found that his connections with Louis Kassman, confessed bail bond crook, proved him unfit to administer justice.

Rudich's was the first official head to fall in Special Prosecutor John Harlan Amen's investigation of official corruption over law enforcement in Brooklyn. The charges were the first involving any officeholder to be made public.

Fail to Pass on Charges.

The five Appellate justices in their decision did not pass on the five specific charges of accepting bribes, which were contained in the grand jury's presentment against Rudich and were testified to by Kassman and others during the hearing this week.

"We have arrived at a conclusion which makes unnecessary passing judgment separately on each of the several charges," the decision said.

The court's decision referred to Kassman as having been known in the magistrate's courts "as a notoriously unreliable, undependable, and recklessly dishonest individual."

See Link with Kassman.

"The evidence discloses over a considerable period of time a series of instances in which, with a knowledge of Kassman's character, the respondent made himself unduly accessible to Kassman and indulged in cooperation with Kassman to an extent that enabled Kassman successfully to carry on his nefarious activities," the decision said.

The decision went on to state that Rudich's further presence on the bench was inconsistent with the honest administration of justice.

The charges arose out of Rudich's handling of a number of cases involving shoplifters and prostitutes whose dismissals in court were regarded as unwaranted.

LABOR BOARD AID UNDER FIRE GETS HIS PLACE BACK

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—The labor relations board reinstated Dr. Towne Nylander today as regional director of the twenty-first region at Los Angeles.

He was suspended Feb. 27 "pending an investigation of the accuracy" of newspaper accounts of an address he made at Inglewood, Cal., on Feb. 6.

The Inglewood News quoted the regional director as saying, "When we go into a hearing the employer hasn't got a chance." Nylander contended that what he had said was misinterpreted by the paper's reporter. Nylander explained he meant there isn't a scintilla of doubt as to the employer's guilt when the evidence has been found sufficient for the filing of a complaint.

ARMY TO TRAIN 4,000 COLLEGE BOYS AS FLYERS

Boards Will Recruit in 600 Schools.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—The war department today announced a plan to speed up training of pilots for its expanded air force and to encourage enrollment in the army air corps.

Five boards of army officers have been named to tour all colleges and universities to sell the air corps to young men. The officers will build up a list of applicants for training when funds are made available for the expansion. About 600 institutions are to be visited before the school year ends in June.

The boards will pay especial attention to military schools and schools with ROTC units, because the war department feels that young men who have an interest in army life should be particularly encouraged to enroll in the air corps.

Chicago Area Board.

The board for the Chicagoland area includes Maj. R. L. Williamson, who is stationed at Bowman Field, Ky.; Lieut. William J. Bell of Scott Field, Ill., and Capt. J. F. Gamel of the medical corps.

It was pointed out by the war department that this program is not to be confused with the pilot training program of the civil aeronautics authority, but is designed to train for the air force as many pilots as possible within the next two years.

At total of 4,000 enrollees is being sought, on the assumption that half of these will graduate from the nine months' training course to be offered and receive commissions in the air corps reserve.

The training program itself is being revised to accommodate the large number of youths to be instructed. If funds are voted by congress for the start of the next fiscal year, Randolph field, Texas, has received its last class of "green" recruits. All applicants hereafter, whether obtained as a result of the visits to colleges or by other means, will spend their first three months' training at civilian flying schools.

Officer at Each School.

A list of these schools is being compiled, and when it is determined what schools will be available for primary training the instructors at them will be given a period of instruction by army officials in what the air corps demands of its pilots, so that they may return to their schools fully acquainted with the standards of performance they must exact of pupils.

An army officer will be detailed to each school in an administrative capacity and to make checks on the progress of the students. Students will be taught in the standard government flying planes which will be supplied to the schools.

The primary course will be similar to that now taught at Randolph field, but will be reduced from four to three months, with a consequent reduction in the sixty-five flying hours now attained in the first course.

After successful completion of this first course, the enrollees then will go to Randolph field for a second three months' course. Due to elimination of the primary course, Randolph field without expansion of present facilities, will be able to care for twice the number of students that can now be accommodated. Following completion of that course, the final three months of flying training will be given at Kelly field.

It was pointed out that the visiting boards set up this week will give physical examinations and qualifying tests on college campuses so applications of the successful candidates may be forwarded to Washington and the applicants placed on an eligible list for assignment to one or another of the civilian flying schools nearest their respective residences.

Candidates will be furnished transportation from their place of enrollment to the schools and will be paid $75 a month while under training. Clothing, uniforms and food will be furnished. Applicants must pass a rigid physical examination, must be unmarried and between 20 and 26 years of age. Those who have not completed successfully two years' of college work must pass an examination.

She'll Ask Divorce

[Associated Press Photo.]

MRS. HELENE REYNOLDS.

Richmond, Va., March 25.—(AP)—Vivacious 25 year old Helene Fortescue Reynolds and her husband, Julian Louis Reynolds, agreed here today to seek an end to their three year old marriage in a Reno divorce court.

Reynolds said his wife came here yesterday from New York with her attorney and that all arrangements were made for her to ask a "friendly divorce" at Reno, Nev.

Mrs. Reynolds left for New York and will fly to Reno tomorrow to establish residence. She is a daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Granville R. Fortescue and a sister of Mrs. Thalia Massie, central figure in the Massie murder trial in Hawaii several years ago.

Reynolds, a manufacturer of tobacco tinfoil, said he had made a settlement on his wife, but declined to divulge the amount.

3 NEW GIANT AIR CLIPPERS GO INTO USE WEDNESDAY

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—One of the six seventy-four passenger Boeing flying boats that Pan-American Airways recently bought for regular trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific flights will be put into service between New York and Bermuda next Wednesday, to help transport the unusually heavy passenger bookings of the easter season.

The craft is a sister ship of the Yankee Clipper, which is scheduled to take off from Baltimore tomorrow for an inspection flight over the company's Atlantic route to England.

The airline announced that two of the new Boeing planes, the California Clipper and the Honolulu Clipper, will go into regular trans-Pacific passenger and mail service on the same day. The company said a 20 per cent reduction in fares will go into effect with their first flight.

MOVES TO INSURE U. S. MONEY FOR CHICAGO AIRPORT

Demands House Earmark Funds for Project.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—[Special.]—Representative Leo E. Allen [R., Ill.] today announced that he will seek to earmark from any federal funds voted for airport improvements a sum sufficient to give Chicago an island airport.

The Civil Aeronautics authority yesterday submitted to congress an extensive report on the nation's airport needs, setting forth a long range program calling for a total expenditure of 435 million dollars. The report urged that congress appropriate 125 million dollars immediately to start the program.

Allen said he will seek to earmark between 8½ and 10 million dollars for an airport off Chicago's loop. Although he is not a Chicagoan, the congressman is convinced that the island is a necessity not only to Chicago but aviation generally.

Mail and Passenger Center.

"Chicago has been neglected in the distribution of funds for airport improvement," Allen said. "In the last allotments of the WPA, Chicago got $2,136,255 of a total of $56,027,283. This represented but 3.8 of the authorized total.

"And Chicago is the nation's air center. Twenty per cent of all air passengers enter and leave the city. It handles almost the same percentage of air mail."

Allen pointed out that the government is financing the building of New York's airport. The project, which is to cost 30 million dollars, is getting 20 million dollars from the government.

"This is more than twice as much as the Chicago airport would cost," Allen said. "And the Chicago island would be a much finer air terminal because of its location."

Recalls Long Struggle.

Allen recalled that Chicago has tried unsuccessfully for four years to get federal funds either from PWA or WPA, for the island. Despite the fact that the project has received the full approval of all United States engineers who have been called in to consider it the money has not been forthcoming.

Just recently engineers for the Civil Aeronautics authority found the project sound and said they would support the city's request for federal assistance to build the island off 16th street.

"It is my intention to translate this approval into actual construction," Allen said. "If the project is so sound as to receive approval from all quarters, it should be built."

AIR GROUPS UNITE TO LINK CITY WITH ATLANTIC PLANES

Seek Aid of U. S. in Clearing Hurdles.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Representatives of two commercial air lines and a civic group announced here yesterday that appeals will be made this week to Illinois congressmen in Washington for assistance in making Chicago a world airport. Aid in obtaining a direct air connection from Chicago to the Canadian bases of the projected trans-Atlantic airway will be sought.

The Illinois legislators will be asked to direct the attention of the Civil Aeronautics authority and the state department to the lack of such a service. These federal agencies will be asked to exert efforts to break the deadlock in negotiations between Canadian officials and some of this country's commercial air transport operators.

Three Lines Available.

Any one of the larger American transport air lines could provide the service if negotiations for rights to fly over both American and Canadian soil were successful. American Air-lines, United Air Lines, and Trans-continental and Western Air, all three of which fly daily from Chicago airport, have the equipment and pilots to create the link.

The direct great circle course from Chicago to either Shediac, N. B., or Botwood, Newfoundland—they are to be the terminals for the 1,500 mile ocean jump between Canada and Ireland—is only 1,550 miles long. This is only 350 miles longer, or less than two hours' flying time in a modern airliner, than the New York to Botwood route.

The Chicago-Botwood course is 450 miles less than the long way around—from Chicago to New York and thence to Botwood. That course is 2,000 miles.

The Canadian government has built a modern airway with lights and radio range beacons all the way from Vancouver to New Brunswick. Thus the question of ground facilities for the Canadian portion of the route is solved.

Furthermore, one of the world's finest airports has just been completed in Newfoundland awaiting air trafic. This field is on a plateau 514 feet above sea level in a section of northern Newfoundland that is practically free from fog. It is more than a square mile in area, with four great runways each 600 feet wide by 6,000 feet long, and paved with asphalt.

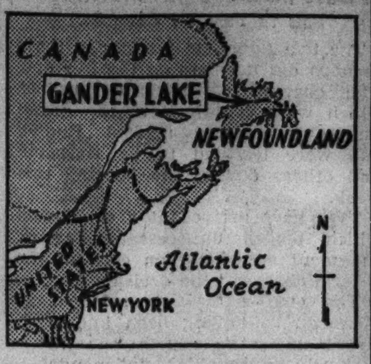
Probably Will Be Main Base.

This field, rivaling any in the world in its unobstructed approaches, was built by the Canadian government for the day when land machines will be used to fly the Atlantic. Two miles away is Gander lake, thirty miles long and three miles wide at its narrowest point. It is 1,000 feet deep in places.

Gander lake probably will be the main base for flying boats and the airport for land planes. Passengers who arrive at the airport—now called Hattie's camp—by land plane can switch to flying boat and vice versa.

"We've got to move quickly and without waiting for a complete organization of pressure groups in Chicago," said one of the members of the civic group that is to ask for assistance from Washington. "Flying on the trans-Atlantic routes will begin next month. If Chicago is to become a world airport something must be done to connect this city directly to the Canadian ocean air bases. The state department and the CAA seem to be our only hopes."

Site of Airport



One of the finest airports in the world has just been completed at Hattie's Camp, near Gander lake, Newfoundland. The airport is expected to be the principal base for trans-Atlantic flying.

Inaugurate Airline Service from East to West Canada

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 25.—[U. P.]—A Trans-Canada Airlines passenger plane arrived here today to inaugurate informally the beginning of passenger service by the line between British Columbia and eastern Canada. The plane left Montreal last night with a party of government officials from Ottawa aboard. During the trip for 600 miles, from Winnipeg to Lethbridge, the plane flew above clouds at 8,000 feet. In going over the Canadian Rocky mountains the ship flew at 16,000 feet.

POLICE MAY RULE JUVENILE CRIME, M'KINLEY WARNS

Delay in Reform Will Force Step, Says Judge.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court, one of the veterans of the judiciary, served notice yesterday that something must be done immediately to solve the juvenile crime situation.

Otherwise, he said, the police, the state's attorney, and the criminal courts will be forced to take exclusive jurisdiction of young offenders and deal with them in the Criminal courts.

His views were echoed by Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, and by James P. Allman, commissioner of police. They said that a police department rule is all that gives the Juvenile court jurisdiction over youthful offenders, and that this rule might be altered.

Speedy Action Urged.

Chief Justice McKinley said the legislature holds the key to the problem and that no time should be lost by State Senator Thomas P. Gunning [R., Princeton] and his committee, which was delegated to investigate conditions in the St. Charles Training School for Boys, in recommending necessary legislation to establish a walled institution for young criminals.

The St. Charles school, now the dumping ground for young criminals, has been the scene of many scandals and escapes in recent years.

Judge McKinley also criticized the so-called sob sister type of social worker who is working toward the passage of a law which would raise the juvenile delinquency age limit so that youths under 18 years of age could not be prosecuted in Criminal court except, possibly, on charges of murder or rape.

Legislature Has Sole Power.

"The legislature has exclusive power to provide the remedies to correct the juvenile crime situation in this state," said Judge McKinley. "Immediate action should be taken by that body to provide the means to make the necessary corrections. It is their responsibility and should be acted on promptly.

"Misguided social workers and those of the uninformed type, who are advocating a law the effect of which practically would eliminate youth from being capable of committing crime, except murder and rape, are not helping to solve the problems. Every criminal court judge of recent years knows many of the vicious crimes are committed by the younger criminal element.

"This type of boy criminal certainly does not belong in the juvenile court. It is difficult in this day and age to draw an age limit. The youths of today must be separated according to their criminal acts and inclinations rather than by age.

Court Rulings Cited.

"The Supreme court in several decisions ruled the criminal court has jurisdiction over youths committing crime and this jurisdiction cannot be usurped by the Juvenile court even with legislative sanction. Passage of the law advocated by the misguided social worker would in my judgment be unconstitutional and could not be effective without a change in the constitution.

"The criminal courts, the state's attorney and the police have the power to handle the situation if the legislature will provide the proper institutions to incarcerate the criminal youths. If the legislature will do its part in providing the proper kind of institution, the police, state's attorney and the judges, I am sure, are willing and the judges, I am sure, will assume their share of the responsibility in handling the juvenile crime problem."

Three Courses Open.

Judge McKinley said that at present judges can do only one of three things—send a youth to St. Charles, to the penitentiary, or place him on probation.

"Incarceration in the penitentiary protects society for the length of time such a youth is incarcerated," he said. "Society, however, is endangered the minute he is released after his contact with hardened criminals. If this type of youth was placed in a walled institution where he would get plenty of fresh air and a proper vocational training under a qualified superintendent, I dare say many of these youthful criminals could be salvaged and would become useful and respected citizens."

Prosecutor Crowley said he indorsed Judge McKinley's views and added that if the Juvenile court by its pampering forced the Criminal courts to step in, his office was ready to assume the burden. He said, however, he hoped this additional burden would not be forced into the Criminal court if a new walled institution was built. Commissioner Allman said he was watching the controversy closely and that his department was ready to follow the orders of the courts.

DIES OF BURNS IN KEWANEE.

Kewanee, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Alex Buchanan, 84 years old, pioneer resident of Henry and Stark counties, died of burns this morning in Kewanee Public hospital. The burns were incurred when his clothing ignited accidentally while he was trying to put out a fire in a hedge fence.

Twenty Springs Pass in Review

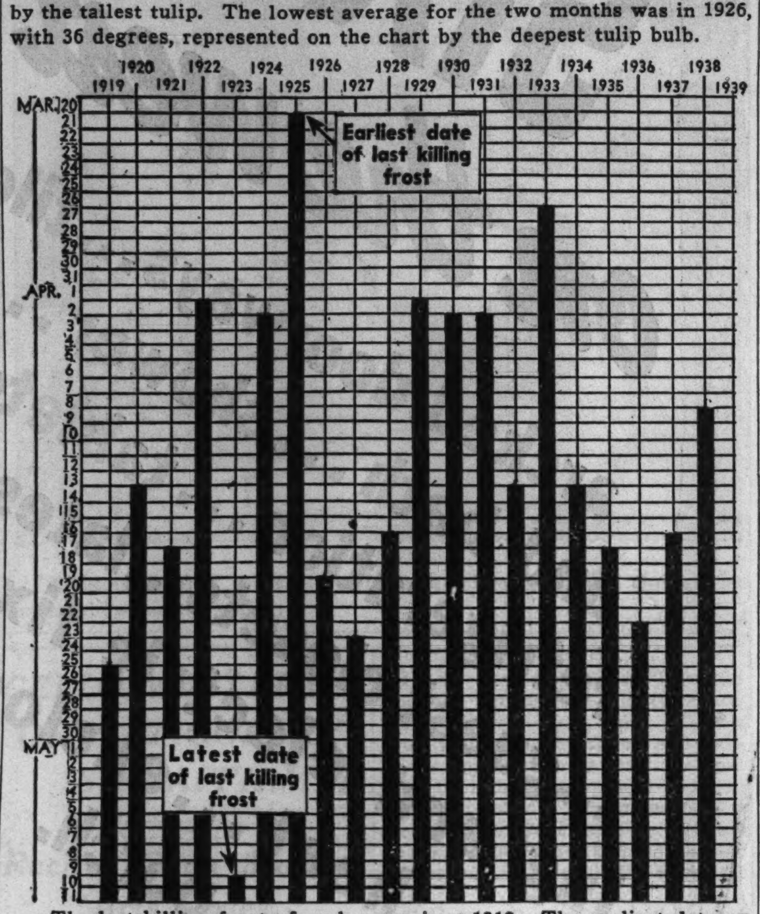
The tulips show what spring has been like in Chicago since 1919. Their development in each column represents the mildness of the months of March and April each year. The normal average mean temperature for the two months is 41.1 degrees. The highest average attained in the last twenty years was 50.5 degrees, in 1921, represented by the tallest tulip. The lowest average for the two months was in 1926, with 36 degrees, represented on the chart by the deepest tulip bulb.



The last killing frost of each year since 1919. The earliest date on which this happy event fell was March 20, in 1925, and the longest that winter has stayed with us in the period was just two years before, in 1923, when the last killing frost came on May 9. Most people reckon early or late springs by the average temperatures and by the dates of the last killing frost.

BETTER BE WARY OF SPRING; SHE'S A GAY DECEIVER

Summer-like temperatures have caused a decline in the red flannel market the last few days, but don't be fooled. It's too early yet to talk about an early spring. Chicago had better wait until the end of April to see what happens, according to Forecaster J. R. Lloyd.

The reason, he said, is that whether spring is early or late generally is conceded to be a matter of average temperature. Even though warm weather may lead you to believe spring has come early, seasonal reverses sometimes occur, bringing killing frosts as late as May 1.

The normal average temperature for March in this area is 35.3 degrees, Lloyd said. For April it is 46.9 degrees. For the two months it is 41.1 degrees.

On the basis of monthly average temperatures only, 1921 had the earliest spring in the last twenty years. The temperature in March that year was 11.7 degrees above normal. March of last year ran a close second, the temperature being 9.7 degrees above normal.

The earliest killing frost in the last twenty years was March 20, 1925. The latest date of a killing frost in that period was May 9, 1923.

BANDIT DISARMS POLICEMAN IN STORE ROBBERY

Park Policeman Ray Kussman's revolver was taken from him yesterday by one of two bandits who took $110 from a drug store at 2000 Addison street. The proprietor, William Lubar, 3632 North Hamilton avenue, and two customers had been herded into the basement by the bandits when the policeman entered to buy cigarets.

Kussman, who did not know that the store was being held up was looking into a display case. One of the bandits, his gun concealed, walked out of a rear room as though to leave. Suddenly he seized Kussman's left hand, jabbed a revolver against his back, and took the policeman's gun from its holster.

Kussman was forced to join the others in the basement. The robbers warned them to remain there for a few minutes.

CONVICTS STUDY LAW IN ALCATRAZ TO FREE SELVES

File Own Petitions in Federal Courts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 25.—[Special.]—The desperadoes in Alcatraz penitentiary, the island fortress reserved for America's toughest convicts, have become students. As may be expected, they are studying ways by which they might escape; but more than that, they are seeking legal methods.

The laws they flouted with disastrous consequences have become a subject of high interest to these hardened convicts. They are, in fact, becoming lawyers capable of preparing their own petitions for rehearings which they hope will lead to their release.

A prime motive in the acquisition of legal knowledge is their infinitesimal chance to escape in the face of sharpshooting guards and deadly currents that swirl about "The Rock." Having plenty of time on their hands and ready access to the prison library, they have turned to the law books there as presenting the only possibility of obtaining their release.

Concentrate Like College Men.

Books in the library and legal publications which the prisoners are permitted to receive, although censored, provide the principal sources of their information. Into these records they delve on every opportunity, concentrating as hard as any college student.

They draw up their own petitions for writs of habeas corpus and turn them over to prison authorities for mailing to courts. During the last week more than a dozen such petitions have been presented and at least as many more are expected to be handed prison authorities in the next week.

While men in prison have been studying law books almost as long as such volumes have existed, the present wave of study at Alcatraz is unprecedented. Behind it lies the recent court victory of a prison inmate, Harold M. Brest, a Pennsylvania kidnaper, serving a life sentence.

Harold M. Brest. [Acme Photo.]

On March 11 Brest won a writ of habeas corpus in federal district court on testimony that authorities had not told him at the time of his trial in Pittsburgh in 1937 that he had the right to be represented by an attorney. As a result of his petition Brest will get away from "The Rock," at least temporarily, for he is to be returned to Pittsburgh for retrial.

Success Spurs Others to Try.

When news of Brest's success circulated about the prison his fellow inmates went to work on the law books. Three convicts filed similar suits within the next few days, each contending he should be set free because he was not advised of his constitutional right to have legal counsel in court.

The three were Selvie Welles, a Texas bank robber serving ninety-nine years; Ernest Verheul, a South Dakota bank robber sentenced to a term of twenty-five years, and Clint Smith, serving nine years for robbery.

Their actions were immediately followed by the petitions of others, including Harry [Sputz] Logan, who was convicted with Brest; Richard Neumer, a Tennessee robber; John Strong, sentenced from Michigan, and James McNealy, a postal robber who operated in Florida and Alabama.

Logan already has won a hearing on his petition. He will be brought into court on April 10 before Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure.

MICHIGAN MAPS RIGID REVISION OF LIQUOR STATUTES

Lansing, Mich., March 25.—[Special.]—Senator Carl F. Delano [R., Kalamazoo] and Representative Charles R. Feenstra [R., Grand Rapids], chairmen of the liquor committees of the senate and house, revealed today that a 12:30 a. m. "curfew" for sale of intoxicants is being considered for Michigan. The present closing hour for sales is 2 a. m.

In line with recommendations of Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, who favors a liquor trafic cleanup throughout the state, the liquor committees are arranging for a joint conference with the liquor control commission to discuss the whole problem.

Feenstra indicated that the program will be a rigid one. "The rule of decency must be imposed on the liquor industry," he said, "and we can't employ half measures."

Among probable changes will be: Mandatory cancelation of licenses of establishments violating closing hour restrictions; placing partial responsibility on individuals for violations of the law prohibiting sale to minors by making it a misdemeanor for a person under age to misrepresent his status; abolition of drinking establishment outside incorporated areas.

CROWDS SWARM LIKE BEES TO FLOWER EXHIBIT

13th Annual Show Opens on Navy Pier.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Thousands of home gardeners and city apartment dwellers streamed onto Navy pier yesterday for the opening of the thirteenth annual Chicago flower show. The opening day's attendance was 18,500.

The show, prepared by women members of the Garden Club of Illinois and planned to reveal the history of gardening and home architecture in the state, will be open to the public each day from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. through next Sunday.

Interest centered yesterday in the historical scene which shows houses and gardens of Galena about ninety years old. This display has been awarded the silver medal of the Garden Club of America as being the outstanding exhibit of the show. The Galena display was prepared by six suburban garden clubs.

Junior Gardeners Attend.

Many of the visitors yesterday were school children, many of whom had helped build the exhibits of the junior garden clubs.

The show management has made special provisions for the comfort of visitors as they make the long trip down the pier, viewing the exhibits. Displays are arranged to give more room and easier access to points of interest than in former years. There are park benches along the way and soft music reaches all parts of the exhibiton hall over a public address system.

The large displays of cut flowers will be kept fresh throughout the show by adding new blooms. The arrangements of some of these displays will be changed daily. They have been assembled to form mass effects without making it difficult to see and study the individual bouquets.

From Pot Plants to Big Gardens.

Educational features show every type of planting and arrangement from pot plants and small window boxes to large formal gardens.

Special delegations from downstate garden clubs will attend the show tomorrow. Among them will be more than 300 members of the Springfield Civic Garden association.

Included in tomorrow's out of town guests will be 150 delegates to a regional meting of the National Council of State Garden Clubs. They will come from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Missouri. Mrs. O. W. Dynes of Hinsdale, general chairman of the flower show, is president of the national council.

AT 103, HE ADMITS HE IS GETTING ALONG IN YEARS

A good cigar and a glass of beer. That's the life for Arpad Sabados, who claims to be 103 years old. Last night he celebrated his birthday with a party of friends and relatives at 7359 South Paulina street.

Arpad Sabados.

But, he mused, as he blew a cloud of smoke from the corner of his mouth and flicked the ashes from his cigar, "I think I'm getting along in years." Despite his age—Sabados tells doubters he was born March 25, 1836, in a little village in Hungary—he walks erect and still has his own teeth. He weighs 241 pounds.

As a youth, he said, he fought as a soldier in several foreign armies. After he came to the United States he took up farming. Since his wife died six years ago at the age of 85, he has been living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mihalovich at 3717 West 68th place. He has two daughters.

CIVIC WEEK URGED TO TEACH LESSON OF GOVERNMENT

Nathaniel Leverone, Chicago business leader, yesterday urged a civic week for the city. A message from him was read before the final session of the National Council on Education for Character and Citizenship at the University of Chicago. Leverone said that the coöperation of all educational agencies would give Chicagoans a better understanding of what honest, democratic government means.

CELLO MASTERY OF PIATIGORSKY IS REAFFIRMED

Recital Ends Musical Arts Series.

BY CECIL SMITH.

A stirring violoncello recital by Gregor Piatigorsky in Orchestra hall last night brought to a finish the 1938-'39 Musical Arts concert series, sponsored by the Adult Education council. Both in sheer technical brilliance and in sustained musical interest the recital was one of the most spectacular events of its kind Chicago has heard in many seasons.

Mr. Piatigorsky must inevitably be rated one of the most commanding masters of a stringed instrument in this present generation. Possibly he is not always faithful to the highest perfection of which he is capable—either in dexterity or in musical taste. But despite momentary lapses in which he did not quite see the necessity of putting in all the notes in rapid passage work [although he could have been completely accurate if he had cared to be], his playing still remained the most exhilarating of any cellist today.

Maintains Constant Interest.

The constant interest inherent in Mr. Piatigorsky's playing lies chiefly in the fact that he requires every phrase, every measure to explain itself to his audience. There are no dead spots, no places in which he simply plays along waiting for something striking to attract his special attention. His phrasing is always plastic and full of variety. His tone is multicolored and ranges in dynamics from a whisper of a pianissimo to a tremendous full-bodied eloquence.

There may be other cellists whose taste runs to a purer classicism and who disdain the touch of theatricalism which tinges everything Mr. Piatigorsky does. But for the musical public in general I doubt whether any other cellist possesses an equal gift of keeping every measure he plays wide awake, vivid, and communicative.

Program Is Well Built.

Last night's program displayed a commendable tendency to stay away from trite war horses of the cellist's too cramped répertoire. Sonatas by Handel, Mozart, and Beethoven began the list. Chopin's youthful Introduction and Polonaise Brillante, a stupidly written piece, and Weber's equally questionable Theme and Variations, profited from Mr. Piatigorsky's lively imagination and immense rhythmic impact. The program also included a student piece by Debussy and an Intermezzo, rescued by the soloist from an antiquarian shop last year.

Valentin Pavlovsky collaborated magnificently at the piano, supplying some of the year's best accompaniments.

Bohemian Lawyers Honor Judge Kerner with Dinner

Judge Otto Kerner of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, was honored last night in a testimonial dinner given by the Bohemian Lawyers' association at the Bohemian club. Attorney Frank A. Novak is president of the association.

FACTOR'S INCOME IS OVERASSESSED; REBATE GRANTED

The internal revenue department announced yesterday at Washington that John Factor and his wife, Rella, had been overassessed $375,984 in income taxes. The government refunded only $14,028, because the remainder of the taxes never was paid.

Factor, a former west side barber, made a fortune in the financial markets of this country and England. In 1932 he was kidnaped for ransom by a gang, three of whose members went to prison. The Factors are now living in Los Angeles, Cal.

The government bureau stated that methods used in its audit overstated the true net income of the Factors for the years 1923, 1924 ,1925, and 1932. At one time the government claimed $528,423 in tax deficiencies, penalties, and interest. Last fall Factor settled for $120,029.

OUST POLICEMAN ARRESTED AFTER ROW IN BUILDING

Policeman Charles Evans of the Englewood station was suspended temporarily by Commissioner Allman yesterday several hours after Evans and a companion were arrested in a disturbance in the Hearst building, 326 Madison street.

John Cleary, a watchman, told Central police that Evans and his companion, Martin Suchor, 4059 South Maplewood avenue, had entered a room on the second floor, and that when he attempted to question them they struck him.

Evans denied the charge. He asserted that several truck drivers attacked him and his friend.

Evans and Suchor will be arraigned tomorrow in State street court on charges of disorderly conduct. Evans was suspended on recommendation of Capt. Walter Healy.

NOT YET THE HEMLOC.

From time to time in the last five years we have yerned to leven this page by tossing a couple of well waranted editorial missils at cotilions. Unfortunately the young ladies of the society department have provided scarcely a crum of news upon which to feed the editorial quil and not even the most skilful of writers can operate without at least a bagatel to work on. Accordingly we have been obliged to direct our attention to such matters as tarifs, etiquet, sherifs, and drouths. Occasionally we have noted derths [though not of bailifs, burocracy, or tonsilitis] and there are no doubt many subscribers who can recall our lacrimose observations about pedagogs.

For seven hundred years English spelling has been an unspeakable offense against common sense. No one who is really fond of children can approve it. From time to time humanitarians have attempted to do something about it, but without success. Five years ago this February we turned [perhaps we should say we definitly and genuinly turned] humanitarian only to discover, as so many reformers have in the past, that the rifraf does not appreciate efforts put forward in its behalf. Even the staf was agast.

We gave our simplified spelling the best kind of a start. The task of choosing the words was entrusted to the greatly beloved and scholarly James O'Donnell Bennett. He chose his words wisely and well. He presented them in small and, as we thought, palatable doses. Every one of his improved spellings had its etymological justification. There was rime and reason for every alteration.

And yet we were deluged with protests. We stood our ground. We defended our course in the columns of this journal. We wrote letters to Indignant Subscriber, carefully explaining why herse was an improvement on hearse and hefer on heifer. We demonstrated beyond possibility of doubt that spelling is arbitrary and we argued that it might better be intelligently arbitrary than unintelligently so. We showed, as, indeed, Mr. Bennett had done, that spelling has undergone vast changes over the centuries and that our innovations were therefore not without their sound precedent.

A few of our readers, to be sure, wrote, as one of them said, to thanc us, and he didn't mean to be funny. After a while the uproar died down, but from time to time it has flared anew. We were not distraut and stood pat except on iland and we dropped that because we couldn't convince ourselves that it was something surrounded by water; it always looked like something bounding across the veldt.

We stood pat for five years [the list as published in an adjoining column was completed on March 25, 1934], but now we cannot overlook the obvious fact that everybody except us continues to write heifer and leather and that goes for those who applauded as well as those who cursed the innovations.

We have stood for a good deal of lether lunged laughter in our bailiwic, but we've got an intern in the house and we can take it. What's more, we can take it with tranquility.

HANDCUFFED TO RELIEF.

Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court has put his finger on one of the sorest spots of the existing administration of WPA and relief. It was only after he had threatened Harold K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA administrator, with jail for contempt that Seltzer promised to work out some plan for reinstating WPA workers who have lost their assignments because of jury service in Judge McKinley's court.

This defect in administration is of long standing. It has been pointed out repeatedly in the past, not in connection with jury service, but in connection with the difficulty that men who take private employment of a temporary nature have in getting public assistance when their private employment ends.

The natural result of this difficulty is that reliefers and WPA workers are reluctant to take a private job. Relief and WPA rolls remain unnecessarily swelled. Repeatedly administrators of these two activities have either denied that the condition exists or have promised reformation. The case before Judge McKinley, in which was demonstrated that even absence to perform a statutory duty of citizenship imperils the support of WPA workers, indicates what faith may be put in these promises.

Relief and WPA are temporary expedients. They have been accepted by the public as such. They were represented by the Roosevelt administration as such. But there is increasing evidence that the administration representations have been made with intent to deceive. It is becoming apparent that the real objective is to cement by arbitrary administrative procedure the bonds of a new caste, economic serfs of the government. The refusal of WPA to let the swing Mikado company take private employment comes to mind.

Judge McKinley is a man of force and courage. He may be depended upon to see that the vicious practices of the WPA administration are ended so far as they apply to men called for jury service. Far more serious is the matter of discouraging men from accepting private employment. This should be of prime concern to the congressional committee that is to investigate WPA.

BUILD DEATHPROOF HIGHWAYS.

On plank No. 2 in THE TRIBUNE'S Platform for the Middle West, Build Deathproof Highways, we can report optimistically. It has been receiving practical support that promises results. Public demand is steadily growing and progressive officials are taking definite steps.

Mayor Kelly is sponsoring a $100,000,000 superhighway construction program for Chicago. He is responding to a public demand. In the last year scores of civic groups and local improvement associations have addressed petitions to him asking for elevated highways. Enabling legislation is pending at Springfield.

President Clayton F. Smith of the Cook county board likewise is responding to public demand. At his suggestion, the chairman of the board's committee on roads and bridges, Daniel Ryan, has called city, county, and state officials to confer on a plan for sharing the costs of deathproof highway construction in Chicago.

Acting Gov. John Stelle has recognized the state-wide benefits of safe and rapid automobile entrances into Chicago. He has indorsed Mayor Kelly's proposal, adding a $40,000,000 program for downstate construction to balance the state's construction work.

Stelle also approved creation of a joint legislative committee to draft the future highway policy for Illinois. A resolution to establish such a committee was introduced a couple of weeks ago by Senator Nicholas Hubbard of Mount Pulaski. It passed the senate with Republican as well as Democratic votes. This committee can be expected to recommend state-wide construction of deathproof highways. The data supporting such a conclusion were published in a series of articles by THE TRIBUNE'S automobile editor. He found that such construction is needed not only to reduce the accident toll but also for reasons economic. Modern roads are needed on the main routes to maintain the highway department's revenue from the gasoline tax.

A national movement for deathproof construction was reported last week from San Francisco. The American Road Builders' association, in convention there, petitioned congress to establish a billion dollar revolving fund for superhighway work. Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan, president of the association, pointed out that with few exceptions every city in America over 50,000 population needs a modernization of its trafic facilities. He suggested a 1 cent increase in the federal gasoline tax to produce $195,000,000 a year for this work.

Illinois should keep in the forefront of this movement. It is one of the most important in the country. As THE TRIBUNE has shown, it means the saving of thousands of lives in the only way in which we can be certain of saving them. And unlike so many of the pretentious public works that have been imposed upon the heavily burdened taxpayers of the nation it will save money if honestly carried out.

THE ELM IN DANGER.

As the war on the Dutch elm disease proceeds we learn that a new enemy of our cherished tree, the American elm, has appeared. This new foe is caused by a filtrable virus and is not connected with the Dutch elm disease. It was first reported to the division of forest pathology from Ohio, where in three years it killed a thousand elms out of 1,800 in Chillicothe. The magazine Science reports that it is rampant in Columbus and was considered a city disease until found among forest trees in West Virginia, northern Kentucky, and southern Indiana and Illinois. The worst ravages of the Dutch elm disease have been in New England, New York, and other eastern states, although it has reached at least as far west as Indianapolis.

These diseases must be attacked persistently unless the American landscape is to be robbed of one of its chief beauties. In New England the havoc wrought by the Dutch elm disease, and before that by other deadly parasites, has taught us what irreparable losses come from these epidemics and it is easy to visualize what would happen to our towns and villages, to say nothing of the countryside, if the elm were destroyed. The plumelike beauty of the elm is irreplaceable. It should be jealously guarded in all communities.

The symptoms of the newly discovered affliction are: First, a slight shriveling and brittleness of the leaves; then a rotting of the roots and the inner bark of the trunk. Within a few months the infected tree will die.

WARS RETARD PARAGUAY

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay.—[By Air Mail.]—Where war and bad management infest a government, poverty afflicts its people. Paraguay had the misfortune of experiencing two costly wars and much unsound management within a century.

Bolivia and Paraguay, the only completely landlocked countries of South America, fought the recent Chaco war and after the war Paraguay emerged with an estimated area of 173,700 square miles and 915,000 population. But, considering the Chaco jungleland which Paraguay won, an observer wonders what Paraguay and Bolivia found in it to justify three and a half years of war that neither side could afford. Perhaps yet undiscovered resources will pay the bill.

At present Paraguay is in a state of great political unrest. President Dr. D. Felix Paiva took office after the revolution of Aug. 15, 1937. Now a new revolution and a change of presidents is expected daily. Gen. José Felix Estigarribia, commander of Paraguay's forces in the Chaco war, is expected to be Paiva's successor. The wartime army is supposed to be demobilized, but its officers are the political force in the country.

Officially, Paraguayan spokesmen voice friendship for all South American republics, but old timers point out that there is a traditional hate of Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay for their part in Paraguay's two great wars.

In 1865 Uruguay was having a fight with Brazil. President Gen. Francisco Solano Lopez, who was educated in Europe, was ambitious to outdo Napoleon and jumped into the war to aid Uruguay.

Argentina refused to give the Paraguayan army permission to march over its territory, but Lopez wouldn't take "No" for an answer, so Argentina immediately joined Brazil. Uruguay quickly settled her trouble with Brazil and joined the two big powers against Paraguay. Paraguay is estimated to have lost 500,000 men—four-fifths of her male population—in the war. Gen. Lopez was killed at Cerro Cora on March 1, 1870, in the last battle of the war.

In seventy years Paraguay recovered only about half her previous physical and economic strength. Then in 1932 she got into war with Bolivia over the Chaco. Though Paraguay won some ground, after the war her development was retarded and there was a rash of revolts and ousting of presidents.

At present Paraguay maintains a peacetime army of 5,000 men which has French instructors and requires conscription of males over 18 years of age. Paraguay solves its relief problem by putting its idle in the army. The air force has twelve new Italian fighting planes and fifteen old planes made in America, France and Italy. Thirty-eight more Italian bombers and fighting planes are under contract. Italy furnishes Paraguay's air instructors. The navy consists of two river gunboats.

There are many Germans here and a few Italians, Japanese, Poles, British and Americans, but foreign propagandists exert little effort in Paraguay because of its isolation and poverty. The Italians seem to have the edge in trade relations.

Paraguay is divided by the Paraguay river into two well defined zones. The eastern, or oriental, zone is gently rolling and forested and its 61,647 square miles is the principal producing region of the country. The western, or occidental, zone contains the Chaco jungle as well as some grassy plains.

The forest clearings are exceptionally fertile and the plains furnish excellent grazing. Paraguay is largely self-supporting and its exports and imports, which are practically balanced, are the smallest of any South American nation. Nearly all exports, made up of 28 per cent forest products, 40 per cent agricultural products, and 32 per cent animal products, go to Argentina.

Live stock, timber, tannin, tobacco, cotton, and yerba mate [Paraguay tea] are the principal products. The yerba mate tree grows wild in the forests and the gathering, preparation and transportation of the beverage product has been one of the most lucrative industries of the country. Paraguay is now importing some modern farm machinery and the government has started a botanical school.

Labor standards are low, with the common workman getting about 15 cents a day, American money.

Health conditions in the country are comparatively poor. Tuberculosis is the worst enemy and hookworm the commonest. For Asuncion, the capital, the latest statistics showed a death rate of 21 per 1,000 and birth rate of 34 per 1,000. Infant mortality is high.

Asuncion, the principal city, which was founded in 1537 and has a population of nearly 100,000, is located about half way from north to south on the western edge of the country. The Paraguay river flows slowly along Asuncion's western edge. It was named for the feast of the assumption, the day of its founding.

Coming in from the south, a traveler may come by boat from Buenos Aires in four days, by train in two and a half days, or by nonstop plane in four hours.

The city appears backward, though it has a modern street car system and a number of American automobiles. Most of the freight is moved by two wheel carts drawn by two or four steers or three or six small mules hitched three abreast.

The streets have very little pavement, and that is of cobblestones. Car drivers have become quite expert in driving on the street car tracks. A battle of wits often decides which one gives way in passing.

The general architecture of the city is a mixture of Spanish Moorish type of stucco, brick, concrete and frame. One and two stories are popular, with many inside courts combined with sizable yards. Patios and fountains are common. Red tile, orange blossoms and roses add considerably to the effective coloring.

A tourist gets an unpleasant surprise in leaning against one of the trees. The trunk and limbs are covered, about one every square inch, with perfect little conical spikes an inch long and razor sharp. The natives call it the "drunk stick," because, like a human who does not practice temperance in food and drink, its trunk bulges out half way from the ground to the limbs after a few years' growth.

The city is tropical, with no elevation or sea breeze. It is plenty hot, with the nights little better than the days. An old line German hotel with good food saves the day.

Editorial of the Day

HINES' OFFENSE.

[Detroit News.]

In the closing minutes of a long address to the jury in the Hines racket protection case, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey compressed in a few sentences the significance of the prosecution and of the later outcome of the trial:

"You are good New Yorkers and you love your city. You want your city to become better and cleaner. You want to remove cancers that grow at the heart of your government, wreck the morale of your police force, wreck the morale of your courts, and wreck the morale of any public official who has to come within the contaminating influence of a politician operating with gangster money.

"Here is the very thing which makes organized crime possible. Without it there couldn't be organized crime for five minutes in this country—without the paralyzing hand of a crooked politician available to break an honest cop, or to tell a magistrate what to do, or to use gangster funds to elect a public prosecutor who is under his control."

CONGENITAL EYE DEFECTS.

POETS describe the eyes as the windows of the soul. This may be a fanciful conception, yet there can be no argument as to the importance of these structures. But whether they are good, bad, indifferent, beautiful, or lacking in sparkle depends upon the start which was given them long before birth. Their mechanism is more complicated, hence more delicate, than any other in the body. We can understand that during fetal life—if the mother was badly nourished or was suffering from a disease—something might happen to the ocular apparatus. What are termed malformations are often responsible for marked reduction in vision and sometimes total blindness.

One type of "accident" is that in which the lens—which focuses light upon the retina—becomes cloudy instead of crystal clear. When this occurs we say that the infant has congenital cataracts. Every now and then we read accounts of the restoration of sight to a ten or fifteen year old lad who was "born blind." In such cases the cataracts have been removed and suitable glasses provided.

Occasionally a tot will come into the world minus the normal amount of coloring matter. This is the disorder known as albinism. Albinos have no pigment in the iris and rarely in the posterior or back part of the eye. In consequence, the optics appear pink because light shines through the transparent portion. As a rule, vision is defective, but these children are by no means blind. The abnormality is often accompanied by peculiar shaking [to and fro] movements of the eyeballs [nystagmus]. This is accounted for by the absence of pigment in the retina and means that these persons do not perceive clearly when they gaze directly at an object, hence constant rotating motions are made. No treatment is of value except to rectify nearsightedness or astigmatism which are often present. Tinted glasses are generally advised, as bright illumination is not well tolerated.

The commonest defects are errors of refraction. Very few of us are one hundred per cent perfect in this respect. Included in this category are nearsightedness, farsightedness, and astigmatism. These result from slight modifications in the shape or curvature of the organ so that rays of light do not focus in the proper places. In these minor deficiencies the patient can see well, as a rule, with spectacles. Such aids, however, are not curative. They merely realign the beams.

Crossed eyes—or, as the condition is technically termed, squint—has a congenital basis. The muscle balance has gone wrong or perhaps that section of the brain which supplies the impulses is very slightly out of adjustment. Now and then a nerve will be lacking entirely or unable to function. Children with squint, therefore, should be examined when quite young to determine the cause if possible. The sooner the better, inasmuch as exercises and lenses may lead to correction without operation. A slight surgical procedure, if need be, may be employed to shorten or lengthen one of the muscles and bring the orb into true position.

The same rule holds good for trouble with vision as for any other ailment. If the fault can be identified early more can be done for relief. If the eyeball is out of shape, no one is to blame. Nothing that the mother, the father, or the child can do will remedy the state of affairs. In fact it may not be noticed until the report cards sent home from school indicate that the pupil is doing poor work. An examination may show that he cannot read the lessons on the blackboard. No social stigma now attaches to the wearing of glasses and youngsters get accustomed to them even on the playground.

LUNG ABSCESS.

J. A. writes: What is a lung abscess? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

An area in the lung in which the tissue has softened and liquefied. This leaves a cavity which may be empty or partially or wholly filled with pus. Treatment consists in an attempt to drain the area by gravity, aided by posture. At the same time vaccines and a reserve building régime may be employed. If this fails, some type of surgery may be resorted to.

WHY? YOU'RE DOING FINE.

H. R. writes: About two months ago I gave up smoking. Formerly I averaged twenty or more cigarets daily. I feel no ill effects from breaking the habit. Do you think I should have a physical examination?

REPLY.

Congratulations. Despite forebodings and dire prophesies, abstinence from tobacco is usually attended with a sense of well being. There is no need for a "medico."

BABY'S TEETH DELAYED.

H. L. S. writes: What, if anything, is indicated if a normal child does not have any teeth at the age of 10 months? He has displayed symptoms of cutting teeth for several months.

REPLY.

This type of delayed dentition may be of no significance. If the teeth do not make their appearance in another few months, an X-ray is advised. Make certain that the babe is receiving enough vitamins A and D.

RHEUMATISM AND ARTHRITIS.

R. V. writes: What is the difference between rheumatism and arthritis?

REPLY.

The terms are used loosely and interchangeably. The former is characterized by pain in the muscles or joints or both. Arthritis affects the joints and is attended with changes in the cartilage and bones. One may recover completely from an attack of acute rheumatic fever. Chronic arthritis, on the other hand, is a slowly progressive ailment.

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

ESTATE SETTLEMENT.

Chicago, March 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am heir to an estate consisting of money in bank and real estate. My brother is administrator of same and does not want to close it after a year and a half in Probate court.

1. How can heirs force him to close estate so the bills will all be paid and the property become property of heirs as tenants in common? There is plenty of cash to cover all bills.

2. The administrator has occupied the house of the deceased and taken in all income from property and does not pay any rent for the house. Does he have to bring up the accounts to date and when?

3. Can an heir bring partition suit to sell property before it is brought up in court and closed?

4. Deceased had valuable diamond ring of which he has taken possession without consent of other heirs. Does he have to put that down as an asset of the estate?

5. If he closes the estate and doesn't mention it what can we do? G. N.

1. Ask the clerk of the Probate court to bring pressure to bear on him to close the estate.
2. Yes, see 1.
3. Yes.
4. If he refuses you can raise it as an objection to his final account.
5. See 4.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEED TO FARM PROPERTY.

Niles, Mich., March 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Husband and wife own a farm on a joint deed. Husband fears that after his death when farm becomes property of wife same will be neglected so that when the wife dies there will be nothing left for the children. Husband wishes to deed his one-half interest to the children now.

1. Can this be done without signature of wife?

2. If so, what form of deed is used?

R. P. N.

1. If it is occupied as a homestead her signature would be necessary on this basis.
2. Presumably a quit claim deed if you go ahead at all, but in general we advise the employment of an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SURETY BOND.

Maywood, Ill., March 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In taking out bond on an employment agency, is it necessary for one to own property?

2. Can you be compelled to make your husband sign with wife?

3. Would that make your property guaranteed for any losses? V. V.

1. If you mean that you are embarking on such a business and are supplying a bond, you will have to satisfy the requirements of the administrative officials with whom you are dealing. In general, where a bond is required it must be either signed by a surety company or by an owner of real estate.
2. We do not understand the question.
3. The effect of the instrument depends on its wording.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SECURITY FOR LOANS.

Chicago, March 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister, who died last fall, owned a home. She left no will. I loaned her money to keep up taxes and also to live but have nothing to show for it. About seven years ago my sister, in order to protect me, gave me a mortgage on her home. The mortgage is recorded but [1] I have none of the papers in connection with the mortgage.

2. I asked my sister to keep all papers in her safety deposit box in the bank because I did not wish to force any payment so long as my sister was living. After my sister's death in November all papers naturally fell into the hands of her husband, who does not seem inclined to reimburse me for any of the money which I loaned to her.

3. Is there anything I can do, through the mortgage, to get the money which I loaned to her? J. D.

1. In general, the creditor should hold the papers.
2. We would not consider this wise.
3. You may have trouble proving that the mortgage was ever validly delivered during her lifetime, but your chances are good enough to warant placing your claim in the hands of an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, March 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In making out a will is the signature of two outside witnesses considered legal without having an attorney?

2. Do you have to retain a lawyer to draw it up and make it legal?

3. In case there are six children and the mother wishes to will two-thirds of her money to each of the three children at home, who keep up the home, and one-third each to three married children, how would one designate that in the will?

4. Would you mention the two-thirds to each of the three children at home first, or does it matter how the wording is in the will in that regard? R. C.

1. Yes, as far as this point is concerned, but the employment of an attorney makes more certain that other statutory requirements will be complied with.
2. No, but see 1.
3. Where there is to be discrimination between children, this is additional reason making it advisable to employ an attorney.
4. Any clear expression of the intent would be sufficient, but see preceding answers.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—Japanese movie censors who clip kisses, nudes, revolutions, and, in fact, almost anything that is objectionable to anybody from motion pictures, have run up against a new problem.

They have been asked by the French embassy to clip scenes from a picture which, it is alleged, insults France. So far so good. If the picture were American, or British or Russian there would be no problem. But it is German and Japan is on very, very friendly terms with the reich.

If the censors refuse to use their shears the French threaten to retaliate by permitting the showing of anti-Japanese pictures, which they have thus far refrained from doing. If they use their shears the Germans may be offended and that would be worse.

Recently the censors deleted all objectionable reference to Germany in the American picture, "Hell's Angels." This was at the request of the German embassy.

With this as a precedent, the French embassy has requested the foreign office to ban showing of "Accursed Ship," a German film.

The censors are withholding action pending a thorough investigation of the diplomatic angle of the problem. The present case, they state, is one of the most embarrassing they have encountered and has greatly dampened their zeal.

The question confronting them is whether to clip or not to clip. In either case they face the threat of international diplomatic reaction.

SHE WAS AN ILLEGITIMATE CHILD.

Chicago, March 17.—Please publish my letter. It is true, and it may help some unmarried mother solve her problem, "Shall I keep my baby?"

I was an illegitimate child. That is why I believe the statement made by Mrs. Walrath, founder of the Cradle in Evanston, in last Sunday's TRIBUNE: "Every normal child, born under circumstances society frowns upon, has the right to a normal home, and the love of two parents."

The first question an unmarried mother should ask herself, therefore, is: "Have I the right to keep my child if by keeping him I deprive him of a normal home life and a father?"

My poor mother told me that she loved me too much to part with me, and in consequence practically ruined her life as well as my own.

When a woman has to work all day to support herself as well as her child, she cannot give to that child the love and understanding the child needs. Then, too, there is great danger that a resentment will develop against the illegitimate child, which innocently proves so great a handicap in the mother's life.

I was placed in the care of my widowed grandmother until the age of 5. As a tiny tot I used to stand with other little ones who waited for their daddys' homecoming. I could never understand why none of the daddies would pick me up and love me, and used to run to my grandmother crying: "Where is my daddy? I want a daddy, too." Even in those days grandmother's explanations never rang true.

At the age of 5 I went to live with my mother, who had married. Perhaps it is difficult for some husbands to accept a wife's illegitimate child, and this difficulty was the reason my stepfather treated us so cruelly that my mother left him.

Again she went to work, clerking in a department store. She was nervous about my playing in the streets after school, so that she exacted my promise that I would immediately on my return go up to our two room home and remain there until her return, which in those days was seldom before 8 or 9 at night. Naturally, having so little contact with other children was bad for me.

When I was 9 I was sent to a boarding school. Hearing the girls talk happily about their homes and parents, I used to invent stories about my lovely father and mother and our beautiful home life. When the children found out that I was "storying" they thought me queer, and again I was left alone.

All this time I held to the secret hope that some day, like a knight of old, my daddy would come home and take mother and me into his arms and everything would be all right.

Doubtless my constant questioning about my father was very difficult for my poor mother. When I was 12 she explained to me that my father had not wanted me, that he came to see me only once when I was a tiny baby, and that he had decided not to marry her. She had suffered so much herself that she was entirely blind to the fact that she was causing terrible suffering to her child. To this day she has refused to admit, or failed to understand, the effect illegitimacy has had on my life. For years I could not face the fact that the father I had so longed for just had not wanted me. Sometimes in the company of others I would be quite happy until some one innocently would remark something about children born out of wedlock, and I would begin to wonder whether they would care to have me associate with them if they knew that I was illegitimate.

I was still in grammar school when my mother's nerves became completely "frazzled," and she developed into a bitter, nonunderstanding, domineering, suspicious woman. Mine was a very affectionate, emotional nature, and at that time I loved her devotedly and used to pray that I might meet my father so that I could curse him, or perhaps kill him.

All through my adult life I have had to flinch again and again, for one cannot sign an application blank for employment, insurance, a bank account, club membership or anything without being asked "What is your father's name?"

Had my mother permitted some kind man and woman to adopt me, and I had been given their name, the feeling of not having been wanted would never have existed. I would have grown into a happier, better woman, and had I learned her story, would doubtless have thought of her only with affectionate sympathy, without the terrible bitterness that has so often come between us. J. E. B.

DEMOCRACY IN THE DEMOCRACIES.

Chicago, March 18.—If the lovers of democracy and representative government would dry their tears long enough to read the following figures it might assuage their grief:

Herewith is a list of some "democracies" and their subject peoples. It takes no account of those citizens for whom there is even theoretical representation, but includes only those subjects for whom there is not even this pretense.

Country—	Subject population.	Subject territory, sq. miles.
Great Britain, excluding Canada, Australia, Union of South Africa	400,000,000	6,000,000
France	69,000,000	4,500,000
Netherlands	60,000,000	700,000
Belgium	14,000,000	900,000
United States	14,000,000	700,000

Were we to add to these figures those citizens of these "democracies" who for one reason or another are excluded or prohibited from voting because of race, sex, or financial condition, it might be that our grief on the plight of the subjects of the dictators would not entirely overwhelm us. Lithuania and France will soon be found "Red." LEONARD VERNON.

ILLINOIS SEEKS TO BUILD STATE POWER PLANTS

Plan One, Two, or Three on Waterway.

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—State construction of one—and possibly three—power plants at dam sites along the Illinois waterway is under consideration by the department of public works.

To that end application has been made to the federal power commission for authority to construct the plant or plants, Charles P. Casey, assistant director, said today.

Casey explained that Illinois does not propose another "Little TVA," such as Gov. Julius P. Heil successfully opposed before the Wisconsin legislature. The state has no thought of promoting public ownership, but, on the contrary, would sell its surplus power to private utilities.

Safeguards Planned.

Should the federal commission grant permission for construction of the power plants, the department of public works would have to seek legislative permission to issue revenue bonds for the projects. These would be retired through the sale of electricity. When and if this measure came before the general assembly safeguards would be sought to prevent future administrations from selling this power in competition with private utilities.

Two purposes lie behind the request for permission to build plants at Brandon road, Dresden Island or Starved Rock, or at all three points, Casey said. They are:

1. The protection of the rights of the state to construct power developments, so that no private interest can obtain them.

2. The production of power for charitable and penal institutions which now costs the state about $100,000 annually.

Wide Field for Output.

In its application to the power commission the department of public works estimated the Brandon road development would cost $1,118,150 and would produce 59,918,400 kilowatt hours, Dresden Island $1,579,929 and 57,818,000 kilowatt hours, and Starved Rock $2,328,674 and 56,516,800 kilowatt hours.

Casey pointed out that any power generated would be convenient to Aurora, Lockport, Joliet, Morris, Seneca, Marseilles, Ottawa, Utica, La Salle, Peru, and Chicago and its 122 suburban cities.

UTILITIES' STAND IN DOUBT.

Plans for state water power development will require careful study before the public utility companies can determine their attitude toward the project, Benjamin Alschuler, vice president and general counsel for the Western United Gas and Electric company, said last night.

"My guess is that after serving its institutions, the state would not have enough 'firm' power left to cause any concern to the utility companies," Mr. Alschuler said. "Because of the topography of Illinois, we never have been concerned about water power in this state."

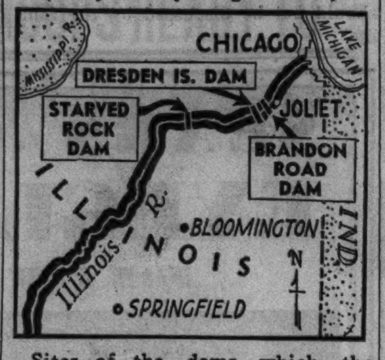
["Firm power" is the minimum constant power available at all times, regardless of river or other conditions.]

DIES OF MONOXIDE FUMES.

Champaign, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Carbon monoxide fumes from the exhaust of his automobile today caused the death of Isaac C. Funkhouser, 57 years old, of Champaign. He was repairing the car in his garage. The garage doors were closed.

Proposed Dams

(Story in adjoining column.)



Sites of the dams which the state department of public works is proposing to provide power, which would be sold to private utilities. Application has been made to the federal power commission for authority to construct a power plant or plants along the Illinois waterway.

SECOND TRIAL OF KONKOWSKI UP TO COURTNEY

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said yesterday that State's Attorney Courtney will decide whether to try Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [26th] and a political aid on a second indictment.

The alderman and Stephen Idzikowski, former captain of the 7th precinct in the 26th ward, were acquitted early yesterday by a Criminal court jury in connection with charges they had accepted bribes for promises of police jobs. The specific charge against them was that they had accepted $600 from George Fronskawicz, 2432 North Springfield avenue.

Prosecutor Crowley said that if a new trial were held it would be based on the same type of evidence in the case of another alleged victim of fraud.

Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Bugan, who prosecuted the trial ending yesterday, exclaimed after the verdict was read: "What's the use of trying these cases if the public and the juries feel this way?"

MALONE HOME FROM PRISON TO HERO'S FETE

Park Ridge Neighbors Hail Him at Reception.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

William H. Malone, who was convicted of withholding $59,574 in income taxes, came home to Park Ridge yesterday. He got a hero's welcome.

Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, still is regarded as one of the suburb's first citizens, the welcomers said. They made no mention of the fact that he was found guilty of concealing $330,000 in income in 1929 and 1930. The plea which won freedom from the government parole board after Malone had served nine months of a two year sentence was that he had a bad heart.

Yesterday his step was jaunty, his countenance ruddy. His voice was as suave as when he spun his story from the witness stand. There he declared that his income was not subject to tax because it represented campaign funds intrusted to him years before.

300 on Hand to Greet Him.

More than three hundred residents of the suburb were on hand to greet him. Many were his one-time tenants and debtors, for Malone for years was the financial and political godfather of Park Ridge. They brought flowers and cakes to Malone's large, colonial style home.

Malone was scheduled to arrive at his home at 201 Grand boulevard in the suburb at 3:15 p. m. He was only five minutes late.

Malone rode up in a large sedan with his wife, Hilda Mildred, and her nephew, Norman Johnson, who had brought him from the United States medical center in Springfield, Mo.

Girls Sing Salute.

There was a burst of handclapping as he stepped from the car and was escorted to the threshold. The twenty-five girls of the Park Ridge private girls' school glee club burst into song:

"How do you do, Mr. Malone, how do you do,
How do you do, Mr. Malone, how are you?
We are glad you are here, and we welcome you with cheer.

Malone's smile was in contrast with his downcast appearance on July 29, 1937, when Federal Judge William Holly, in pronouncing sentence, said: "This case is very simple. It hinges on the testimony of three witnesses who turned over money to Malone while he was chairman of the tax commission. This money had all the earmarks and appearances of bribes."

A testimonial composed by Park Ridge neighbors was read at Malone's homecoming. It said in part: "Your offense, if any, was in resisting what you believed to be an unjust tax." The government's testimony at the trial was different—that Malone's concealed income came from three corporation lawyers who split fees with him during political campaigns.

Malone said he will go to French Lick, Ind., for a few weeks' rest and then to the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., for an operation on a rupture.

ROOSEVELT'S SON RAPS BOETTIGER THIRD TERM TALK

Pinehurst, N. C., March 25.—(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, addressed an open letter tonight to his brother-in-law, John Boettiger, Seattle newspaper publisher, expressing the view that a third term is not a subject for the family to argue publicly.

Young Roosevelt, in a Fort Worth, Tex., radio broadcast last Monday, described Vice President John Garner as being "in the driver's seat" as a likely Democratic presidential candidate.

Today, in an open letter printed on page one of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, of which he is publisher, Boettiger poked gentle jibes at young Roosevelt for his broadcast.

Boettiger commented that "regardless of how the family might feel about it, the fact of the matter is that out here you can't stop people insisting that your pa has got to stand for a third term."

Young Roosevelt wrote him in reply that "I have no way, nor do you, of knowing whether the President would run for a third term," and added:

"When he makes up his mind he will announce, not through you or me, but to the world at large. What the family thinks or feels has no bearing on his decision, and therefore should not be discussed by the family."

BOBCAT TOO GREEDY.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo.—[U. P.]—A 29 pound bobcat which tired of chasing a rabbit after reaching the city limits made a mistake when it turned to Paul Seabaugh's chicken yard for diversion. After it had disposed of 20 of his chickens, Seabaugh shot the bobcat.

U. S. REPORT RAPS POLITICAL BIAS OF NATION'S JUDGES

Assails "Unscientific" Criminal Rulings.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—Politics and personal bias, instead of scientific jurisprudence, often dominate the decisions of many of the nation's criminal court judges, both federal and state.

This conclusion was reached by the department of justice in a survey of judicial practices made public today by Attorney General Frank Murphy. It covered 270 federal, state, municipal, and county court judges.

Urges Social Science Studies.

"That fact should be recognized by more judges, as well as by the public at large," the report said, "that on the whole a very unscientific job of determining what treatment should be imposed upon those convicted of crime is being done by most judges.

"One of the most striking impressions gained from this study is that Criminal court judges need much more specialized training in those sciences that are making significant contributions to the study of human behavior, if they are to exercise a dominant power in determining what treatment shall be given persons convicted of crime."

Judges Admit Political Consideration.

With regard to political influences bearing on the bench, the survey said that of the 270 judges, 207 had held political office prior to their judgeships, most of them having been prosecutors.

Investigators, it was said, "gained the impression that many of the judges are very conscious of the political features of the tenure of their office."

"Some of the judges," the report continued, "related that a frequent use of probation by them, even though every case was a deserving one, would jeopardize their positions at the next election."

Seek Hoodlums Who Fired Into Tavern; 2 Wounded

Police were searching last night for two young hoodlums who early yesterday fired shots through the windows of a tavern at 817 West 123d street, Calumet Park, and wounded two patrons. The men wounded were Charles Palumbo, 24 years old, 243 East 115th street, Calumet Park, shot in the left leg, and Pasquale Esposito, 32, of 2201 Vermont street, Blue Island, shot in the right foot. The tavern is owned by Leonard Cicierski.

POLITICAL NOTES

Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for mayor, yesterday said he is sending letters to all labor unions in Chicago making clear his attitude toward organized labor. In the letters he will repeat his platform pledge to do everything in his power to assure working men and women a higher standard of living. He will also commit himself to dealing with city employés through their union representatives.

Last Friday THE TRIBUNE published a release from Green mayoral headquarters listing a number of former officers of the police department as supporting the Republican nominee. Several of them say their names were used without permission. They include William F. Russell, former commissioner, former Capts. Patrick J. Gallery, Max Danner, and James M. Johnson, former Lieut. Make Mills and former Sergt. George Chatt. Former Lieut. Stephen J. Barry, whose name was on the list, is dead. Green headquarters said the list was supplied by former Capt. Dennis M. Malloy.

Four parades, three of which will be automobile processions, will precede the rally for Mayor Kelly in the Chicago Stadium tonight arranged by the Flat Janitors' union. An attendance of 25,000 is predicted. The mayor will speak.

Among indorsements received by Green yesterday were those of Leonard T. Porzak, president of the Knights of the Polish Roman Catholic union, and Louis L. Cohen and Louis L. Lilienthal, directors of the Loop synagogue.

Dr. George L. Scherger, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, a Republican and a leader among German-American citizens, has indorsed Mayor Kelly. "I am a great admirer of Mayor Kelly both as a man and as a mayor," his statement read. "I have ever found him to be just and fair. His courtesy has been unfailing and attention to the most minute details has been astonishing."

Mayor Kelly today will be urged to use his influence at Washington to bring to Chicago one of the fourteen civilian aviation training centers provided for in the new air defense plans. The request will be presented by a delegation of Negroes interested in the training of Negro pilots. It will be led by Edgar G. Brown, president of the United Government Employés of Washington, Cornelius R. Coffey, president of the National Negro Airmen's association, Dale White, and Dr. H. R. Renfro.

The Rev. Ralph Wakefield, president of the Chicago Church federation, has sent to all ministers connected with the organization letters asking them to urge their congregations to vote as a patriotic privilege and a Christian duty.

KELLY ASKS OPEN DEBATE IN HOUSE ON CITY MANAGER

Mayor Kelly yesterday went on record as favoring free and open discussion of the city manager bills by the house of representatives in Springfield. The bills would permit municipalities to vote on adoption of the city manager plan.

Last Tuesday the house municipalities committee voted, 16 to 14, that it recommend to the house that the bills do not pass. It is expected that on Tuesday a motion will be made by one of the advocates of the measures that the house deny concurrence with the committee report.

"The city manager bills should come out on the floor of the house," said Mayor Kelly. "I believe that any question so debatable should be subjected to debate by the whole house."

The mayor's statement followed a request Friday by the advisory board of the Chicago city manager committee that he urge Cook county Democratic legislators to support the proposed legislation. The mayor did not discuss his own views on the issue.

Bandit Shoots Cab Driver for $9 in Kidnap-Robbery

Pekin police yesterday sought a well dressed bandit who early in the day shot and seriously wounded Edward Greenberg, a cab driver, after robbing him of $9. The robber hired Greenberg's cab at 606 South State street and forced him to drive to 29th street and Prairie avenue, where he shot him. Greenberg, who is 28 years old, was taken to the Mercy hospital. He lives at 2737 Evergreen avenue.

SIX LEGISLATIVE GROUPS READY TO WAR ON WASTE

G. O. P. to Dissect Illinois Appropriations.

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Six committees have been created in the Illinois legislature, at the instance of the Republican bloc, to deal with the problems of governmental waste and retrenchment. Some of these agencies are expected to get busy this week and all will concern themselves with Democratic appropriation requests.

Considered the most important of the committees is the joint group which, while it will have an equal proportion of seven Republicans and seven Democrats, is destined to have a Republican chairman. Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield is the probable choice. The committee will hold its first meeting on Tuesday.

Has G. O. P. Majority.

The second most important agency is the house appropriations committee which has a G. O. P. majority under Chairman Hugh Green of Jacksonville. This group will give primary consideration to about half of the Democratic appropriation bills, the remaining half having been introduced in the senate, where the appropriations committee has a Democratic majority.

Any cuts made in committee are, of course, subject to revision by the entire house or senate, but rarely are committee cuts completely restored.

Steering Groups Named.

In addition to these two committees, the Republican leaders of both chambers have named steering committees and committees to dissect the Democratic appropriation bills. The duty of the steering committees is to recommend party action on controversial measures, which could include any appropriations thought to be unnecessarily high.

It will be the task of the appropriation dissecting committees to carry the G. O. P. economy fight to the floor of each house when the measures are under consideration.

Economy is the prime Republican aim in the 61st session of the legislature and the G. O. P. leaders believe they have made a good start at organizing their drive.

ADVISES LETTING CHILDREN LEARN SEX FROM BOOKS

The way to teach youngsters about sex is to let them read about it in books. Dr. Louis Shores, director of the library school at Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., gave this advice yesterday to 370 Chicago school principals meeting with Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson in the Art institute. By having children read about the problems of sex parents and teachers sidestep an explanation, Dr. Shores said.

They Fool Even the Judges

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

It doesn't do any good to say "left" or "right" under this picture. All we can say is that these four persons are Dorothy and Doris Bland and Victor and Virgil Robertson. The twins look so much like each other that even the judges at a Waco, Tex., twins' convention can't tell them apart.

Convention in Texas

Waco, Tex., March 25.—[Special.]—The twins' convention here moved today to Galveston, where it became the world's first quadruplets' convention. The Keys sisters, 23 years old, of Hollis, Okla., and the Perricone brothers, 9 years old, of Beaumont, Tex., went to Galveston, where they convened with the Badgett babies, 52 days old, who live there.

NAB ONE "DIRTY FACED" BANDIT; HE CONFESSES

James McQuaid, 22 years old, 815 Garfield boulevard, was held last night by Englewood police as a confessed member of the so-called "dirty face" bandit gang that has committed more than fifty robberies on the south side during the last month.

His arrest was brought about by Park Policeman Robert McLennan, who suspected him from description.

Later police arrested William Swartz, 19, of 815 East 39th street, for questioning as a suspect. He denied being a bandit. Police said McQuaid admitted ten holdups and seven automobile thefts. He named his two accomplices.

POISON KILLS HOUSEWIFE.

Mrs. Grace Matuz, 19 years old, 4330 South Paulina street, died in the Southtown hospital yesterday of poison. Her husband, Frank, 22, a janitor, told New City police she took the poison after a family quarrel.

GOVERNOR DROPS 400 FROM STATE JOBS IN GEORGIA

Atlanta, Ga., March 25.—(AP)—Gov. E. D. Rivers struck more than 400 names from the state pay roll today in the first of a series of moves designed to bring his "little new deal" spending more nearly in line with actual revenue.

"I am scaling down the salary schedules—especially in the higher bracket pay—and cutting personnel in other departments," he said. He expressed disappointment at the refusal of the legislature, which adjourned last week, to find $8,500,000 additional tax money he asked to carry on his program.

Economy-minded legislators fought off all efforts to alter either existing taxes or the $96,000,000 state budget in force since 1937.

Meanwhile the state's public schools pegged their hopes for keeping their doors open upon three possible sources—an extra session of the legislature, the federal government, and home town banks. School superintendents and trustees decided to dispatch a delegation to Washington soon to ask for federal emergency funds to pay teachers.

The governor said any surplus realized from his budget pruning would go to paying teachers and aiding public welfare department functions.

GIRL GAINS; MAY TELL GRAND JURY OF BLAST IN AUTO

Other Surprise Witnesses Ready to Testify.

Elizabethtown, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—When State's Attorney Clarence E. Soward goes before a Hardin county grand jury Monday to ask a murder indictment against Mrs. Alice Austin and Ted Simmons he will present three or four surprise witnesses. Mrs. Austin and Simmons are accused of causing the dynamite death of Earl Austin last Monday.

One of the witnesses Soward may be able to present to the grand jury is Miss Lacene McDowell, 24 years old, whose left leg was blown off by the explosion which killed Austin. when they were riding in his truck. Miss McDowell is in a hospital in Rosiclare. Her condition was greatly improved today.

Quarrels Told at Inquest.

Yesterday a coroner's jury heard several witnesses describe the quarrels between Austin and his wife in the last two years since their separation. Austin's divorce suit and his wife's counter suit were to have been heard Monday in the courtroom where the coroner's jury sat.

One of the most damaging witnesses heard by the coroner's jury is Hester Beaver of Cave-in-Rock. She testified she found Mrs. Austin hiding behind her home several months ago and holding a pistol. The Beaver home is across the street from headquarters of the National Youth administration of which Austin was superintendent.

Miss Beaver said she spoke to Mrs. Austin at the time and asked her what she was doing there. "I'm going to blow their heads off," the girl quoted Mrs. Austin.

Brother Repeats Accusation.

Charles Austin, a half brother of Earl, told the coroner's jury that Earl accused "the Simmons boys" in his dying words. Ted Simmons worked for Mrs. Austin for the last two years.

Will Angleton, a farmer near whose home the blast occurred, was the first to reach the dying man and injured girl. He told the coroner's jury about their pleas for help.

Mrs. Austin and Simmons are in the Saline county jail in Harrisburg for safekeeping. They declined to testify at the inquest. The coroner's jury adjourned until April 1.

A PHOTO FINISH SENDS EDWARD TO A COZY STALL

Mrs. Ethel Tyler brought a handful of photographs to Wabash avenue court yesterday when her husband, Fdward, 47 years old, came before Judge Leon Edelman on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"He's a painter and decorator," said Mrs. Tyler. "Here are samples of his work when he's been drinking." She handed up the photographs. They showed splintered furniture and the wrecked interior of their home at 2927 South Canal street.

Tyler denied smashing the furniture, but Judge Edelman sent him to the Bridewell to work out a $200 fine.

U. S. AGENTS HUNT WRITER OF NOTES DEMANDING $5,000

Belvidere, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Another attempt to extort money from a wealthy Boone county farmer was reported today. George McIntyre, who lives near Poplar Grove, is said to have received two letters, both mailed at Poplar Grove, demanding that he leave $5,000 in a package at a lonely spot. The letters were tuurned over to federal authorities and government agents tried to trap the writer.

About a month ago Seymour Winne received a note demanding he leave $15,000 near a cemetery. No arrests have been made in that case.

BODY TAKEN FROM LAKE.

The body of Stanley Voldrich, 48 years old, was taken from the lake yesterday at the foot of Congress street. Employés at the Wabash Avenue hotel, 27 East Harrison street, where he lived, said he had appeared morose when he left the hotel earlier in the day.

MOTHER APPEALS $20,000 REVERSAL IN DRAM ACT SUIT

Mrs. Anne O'Connor, 2344 Congress street, appealed to the Illinois Supreme court yesterday from an Appellate court decision which voided an award of $20,000 to her under the dram shop act. Mrs. O'Connor's son, Joseph, 33 years old, was slain on June 24, 1934, in a fight in a tavern at 3447 Madison street.

Mrs. O'Connor was awarded $35,000—later reduced to $20,000—by a Circuit court jury which heard her suit against Frank C. Rathje, president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company, and two other perscns. At the time of the slaying Rathje was successor trustee for property on which the tavern was located.

A successor trustee is one named to replace the original trustee of a property. The First District Appellate court last Feb. 1 held that successor trustees are not liable for damages awarded in dram shop lawsuits involving the property for which they are acting.

FEAR NO POLITICS, MAYOR TELLS 66 NEW POLICEMEN

Don't be afraid of politicians, Mayor Kelly yesterday told sixty-six new policemen who had just completed ten weeks of training in the police preparatory school.

Mayor Kelly assured the rookies that the day when politicians could cause policemen to be transferred to outlying stations was over. The mayor outlined certain rules of conduct for the guidance of policemen. He urged them to be especially considerate of youth. He said that policemen who lend a helping hand to boys can often steer them away from wrongdoing.

Promotion awaits deserving policemen, he said. Some, he added, might later find great success in business outside the department. He pointed out that the son of a policeman became mayor. The reference was to himself. Mayor Kelly lauded Commissioner Allman as an "iron man" noted for his intelligence and integrity.

SLAYER OF WIFE PUTS HIS HOPE IN INSANITY PLEA

Vitcim's Body Taken from Grave in Ditch.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 25.—[Special.]—Counsel for Roger Cunningham, who last night confessed the slaying of his wife, Eudora, whose body had been hunted for ten days, said today he would fight a murder charge with a plea of insanity.

The murder charge was filed this morning by County Attorney Lewis R. Morris. He said Cunningham, 33 years old and an inspector for the Federal Housing authority, had been under observation for sanity in a Norman, Okla., hospital on two occasions.

Cunningham last night told where he buried the body of his wife in a ditch 8 feet deep after killing her on March 6. He drew a crude map of the scene of the grave, near two homes here, and then dropped into a sound sleep.

Laborers Dig Up Victim.

Laborers dug in the ditch for several hours, under the light of flares, and found the body, which was fully clothed.

Cunningham said he and his wife had been quarreling for more than a year. She was 30 years old and employed as librarian at Foster High school. On the night of the slaying, he said, they had gone motoring and she was berating him for working long hours and neglecting her.

He got out in a rage and stood in the ditch. His wife got out and he strangled her.

Inquiry Started by Telegram.

When Mrs. Cunningham's absence became generally known, Cunningham told her mother, Mrs. Joel P. Stokes, wife of a wealthy real estate dealer, that her daughter had deserted him and gone to California.

Mrs. Stokes later received a telegram stating her daughter was safe. The daughter's name was misspelled, and Mrs. Stokes caused an inquiry to be opened.

Cunningham soon was entangled in a net of conflicting stories.

Cunningham was the son of Dr. Sam R. Cunningham, who before his death was chief orthopedic surgeon in the Oklahoma Crippled Children's hospital here.

HAIL NEW DRUG AS AID IN FIGHT ON GONORRHEA

Doctors Praise Effective Use of Sulfanilamide.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, consultant on venereal diseases for the board of health, reported yesterday that after several months of use in the treatment of gonorrhea, sulfanilamide has proved highly successful.

"It's one of those things that shouldn't be sold over the counter," Dr. Schmidt said, "because of its side effects, which, in unskilled hands, may even result in death. But it really borders on the miraculous. It is sure to supersede every other antiseptic in the treatment of gonorrhea, but should be taken only under a physician's guidance.

"Its chief advantage is its speed. In some cases the patient is freed of infection within a week. Far fewer treatments are necessary, and the number of visits necessary is cut in half. Because more patients continue the treatments it should cut down spread of the infection."

Treatment Is Simplified.

Dr. Bertha Shafer, head of the Illinois Social Hygiene league clinic, said the new treatment was far easier for the patient. It relieves the symptoms of gonorrhea immediately, she said.

Dr. John Henry, in charge of the urology department of the league clinic, praised the sulfanilamide treatment because the symptoms disappear far more quickly and more patients are encouraged to continue their visits. About fifty cases a day are treated there.

Dr. George Taylor of the Municipal Social Hygiene clinic, where about 600 gonorrhea patients are treated daily, said:

"Since we've been using the drug we've changed the method of follow-up. We no longer consider it necessary to follow cases of gonorrhea after thirty days from the time they start treatment. We used to follow them for six months. We can now cure most cases in ten visits, although some do not respond at all. About 8 or 10 per cent are not beneficially affected, but can be cured by other and older methods."

Experts Report on Tests.

Two physicians of the Los Angeles, Cal., health department, Dr. Barney Silver and Dr. Manning Elliott, reported in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical association:

"Of 1,425 patients treated [with sulfanilamide] under conditions which would probably closely approximate the average, 50 per cent showed excellent results, with cure in less than a month, and one-fourth had a comparatively mild illness and cure within two months. With the remaining one-fourth the results were unknown or were not completely successful because of intolerance to the drug or because the disease was not appreciably different than before the era of sulfanilamide."

SEEK IDENTITY OF WOMAN, 70.

The West North avenue police were seeking to identify a woman about 70 years old, who could not recall her name when found last night in front of 1244 North Washtenaw avenue. She wore a green sweater, blue dress, brown stocking, and black slippers.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

WOMAN KILLED, THREE HURT AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Mrs. Maria Jurgelonis, 52 years old, general manager of the Naujienos [Lithuanian Daily News], 1739 South Halsted street, was killed yesterday and three other women employed by the paper were seriously injured when their automobile was struck by a Michigan Central freight train near Kalamazoo, Mich. They were on their way to Detroit to attend a Lithuanian newspaper convention.

Mrs. Jurgelonis lived at 1350 East 53d street. Those injured were Staseli Bernotaite, 1555 Holywood avenue, the driver; Audele Nausiedas, 917 East 47th street, and Leonora Numkush, 1135 East 51st street.

Mrs. Jurgelonis was regarded as a leader of Chicago's 90,000 Lithuanians.

Mrs. Anna Krause, 72, of 3322 North Hoyne avenue, was killed last night when she was struck by an automobile in Western avenue at Roscoe street. The driver was Morris Kirschner, 3710 North Western avenue.

John Cieslewicz, 35, of 8210 Houston avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver at 94th street and Stony Island avenue. Cieslewicz died in South Chicago hospital.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 209 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 165 were killed in Chicago, where 4,148 were injured in the same period.

MIRROR SHOWS AUTOIST WHAT'S BEYOND A HILL

New York, March 25.—(AP)—Science has made a looking glass to prevent automobile collisions at the crests of hills. The device was described today by the Greater New York safety council, which will open a meeting here tomorrow.

The glass, 13 feet wide and 4 feet high and providing a half life-size view, is set above the middle of the road at the hilltop. It is made of seventeen horizontal triangular bars of glass, laid parallel across the face. Each bar is a prism which acts as a mirror, enabling motorists coming from either direction to see by day or night cars, pedestrians, and scenes on the opposite side of the hill.

Notable Military Career of 52 Years Ended.

Springfield, Ill., March 26 [Sunday].—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Richings J. Shand, assistant adjutant general of the Illinois National Guard, died early today. He was 71 years old. Gen. Shand, who served under 11 governors, was stricken with a cold March 18. He was removed to St. John's hospital Monday when an abdominal ailment developed.

His wife, three sons, and two daughters were at his bedside throughout the night.

NATIVE OF ROCKFORD

Brig. Gen. Shand was born in Rockford, Aug. 18, 1867. His military career began May 27, 1887, when he enlisted in Company B, Third Infantry, National guard, at Rockford. He held every position in the regiment from private to colonel in that organization. He became colonel on March 11, 1905.

He saw active service as a major with the 3d Illinois United States Volunteers in the Spanish-American war. Later he held a position as United States disbursing officer. In 1916 he was appointed property and disbursing officer for Illinois. Old Aurora Landmark Razed

87 Years Old

One of Aurora's landmarks, known as the West Side Methodist church when it was built eighty-seven years ago, was razed last week. No plans for the use of the property, at Locust street and Galena boulevard, have been announced.

The church, a modified Gothic building of brick, was called the Galena Boulevard church during the later part of its existence. A few years ago this congregation moved to a new building, which has been named the Wesley Methodist Episcopal church.

Another denomination, the Church of the Nazarene, then took over the old church. Now the Nazarenes will meet in a private dwelling next door.

HEAR BERGDOLL, DRAFT DODGER, WILL SURRENDER

BERLIN, March 25.—[U. P.]—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who dodged the American world war draft and fled to Germany after his conviction on desertion charges, has offered to surrender unconditionally and return to the United States, it was learned from reliable quarters tonight.

Bergdoll, who has been an exile since 1930, made the offer to the American consulate general at Stuttgart. Consular authorities, however, refused to confirm the offer or give any information regarding Bergdoll.

For a number of years the draft dodger has been attempting to arrange his return to Philadelphia, where in 1920 he was convicted and sentenced to serve five years in prison. Bergdoll escaped and went to Europe by way of Canada.

AUTO UNION SPLIT PERILS RIGHTS IN WAGE BARGAINING

General Motors Refuses to Negotiate.

Detroit, Mich., March 25.—(AP)—Spread of dual unions in automotive plants is endangering the recognition of the United Automobile Workers of America as a wage bargaining agency. The split in the automobile union has resulted in two locals being chartered in some plants, one by the unit affiliated with the Congress of Industrial organizations, and the other by the rival independent faction.

General Motors corporation officials said today that where rival bargaining committees are set up and insist on recognition, managers of its plants will negotiate with neither faction.

Deals with Employé.

A notice posted in the corporation's Chevrolet division at Flint, Mich., said, however, that "any employé may present a grievance to his foreman and we will make every effort to arrive at a satisfactory understanding."

General Motors' action followed the chartering of local No. 659 at Flint by the C. I. O. recognized union. It will operate in the Chevrolet plant where the Martin controled local No. 156 has its members.

The notice from General Motors drew comments from the two U. A. W. presidents, Homer Martin of the independent faction, and R. J. Thomas of the C. I. O. group.

Martin Waits on Courts.

Martin said his faction planned no action on the issue until a court decision on suits to determine which union is legally entitled to the U. A. W. name.

"We believe the management will settle any grievances that may arise," he added.

Thomas is at Cleveland, where the U. A. W. division backed by the C. I. O. will open a convention on Monday.

"They're using Homer Martin to evade collective bargaining with our members," he said.

Notice that additional local unions would be chartered was given by Martin. He said his faction has issued fourteen new charters, seven recently, and that "we expect to charter at least six more in the next few days."

LIBRARY PROJECT GIVES 257 GRADE SCHOOLS BOOKS

All Volumes Catalogued in Extensive Program.

Library facilities in Chicago's 332 elementary schools have been improved in the last year and a half until now 257 of the schools have central libraries with library clerks in charge.

Mrs. Dilla W. MacBean, board of education librarian, reported on this progress yesterday. She said that before September, 1937, elementary school libraries consisted only of a few public library books assigned to each teacher and kept in her room. A few schools had library rooms, but the books were not cataloged properly and in most cases no one person was in charge of the library.

All Books Now Cataloged.

A library project, in coöperation with the Works Progress administration, was started and all books in school libraries were cataloged. Additional books were purchased or supplied by the public library.

There are now 268,311 books in the elementary school libraries. The largest library—3,600 volumes—is at the Ray elementary school, 5631 Kimbark avenue. Circulation of books in the 257 schools ranges up to a peak of more than 500,000 a month.

With the development of the libraries, courses in reading guidance, organization, and library reference materials were offered at the Chicago Teachers' college.

As a test of the value of those courses, experiments are being conducted this semester in thirty-two elementary schools, Mrs. MacBean said.

How Test Is Being Made.

The libraries of sixteen schools are under the supervision of regular teachers who have not had special library courses. They are called teacher-librarians. In the other sixteen schools libraries will be directed by teachers who have had special library instruction.

In all the thirty-two schools seventh and eighth grade pupils were given tests of their knowledge of library use and interest in books at the start of the semester. They will receive a similar evaluation test in June. The results, Mrs. MacBean predicted, will demonstrate the value of having more elementary teachers study library practices.

POSTAL ROBBERY SUSPECT CAUGHT IN GEORGIA TRAP

Ellaville, Ga., March 25.—[Special.]—Ray Bruce, fugitive desperado, was surprised and captured today in his hideout, a shack near here, by postal inspectors, sherif's deputies, and state police.

Springing of the trap was so well timed that Bruce had no chance to offer resistance. He is under indictment for murder in Guthrie, Ky., where a postoffice messenger was shot to death on Jan. 5, 1938, during a $25,000 robbery.

Ray Bruce's brother, Floyd, was captured March 17 in Normal, Ill. He was indicted for the same crime and is waiting trial in Louisville, Ky., where postal inspectors will take Ray.

A third member of the gang, Ernest Morris, was shot to death a year ago. The Bruce brothers also are wanted for the $24,800 mail robbery last Dec. 3 at Lockport, Ill.

IRON WORKERS CONTINUE STRIKE AS PARLEY FAILS

A joint conference yesterday between members of the Building Contractors' association and the Iron Workers' union failed to halt the strike of iron workers now in progress.

The strike was called Thursday. It has tied up work on near 100 public and private construction jobs in the city. The dispute is said to arise over the iron workers' objections against union tunnel workers handling steel in the subway construction.

The iron workers will meet at 948 Madison street tomorrow night to discuss any new proposals and decide whether to continue the strike.

FIRE DESTROYS FARM HOME.

FORCED TO LEAVE U. OF I., STUDENT SUES GAMBLER

Asks $1,089 He Says He Lost Gaming.

Champaign, Ill., March 25.—[Special.]—Chester J. Berutti of Wilsonville, Ill., filed suit in Champaign county Circuit court today for $1,089 he charges he lost in a Champaign gambling house operated by Lloyd Pitcher.

Berutti's suit charges he lost the money between Feb. 3, 1936, and last Jan. 31.

He left school in his senior year because his funds were exhausted. His father ,a miner, had sent him the money. Berutti has testified that the loss caused him to consider ending his life.

Pitcher and sixteen other persons were arrested in a raid on Pitcher's gambling house on March 3. They posted bonds, which they forfeited.

Jury to Resume Work.

Grand jury investigation of vice and gambling in Champaign will be resumed Monday. Assistant Attorney General Walker Butler and his investigators will bring in a new list of witnesses.

Indictments may be returned Monday, when a preliminary report is made by the jury. Among those who may be named as leaders of Champaign's reported gambling ring are persons said to be taking vacations in Florida. If they are named, and refuse voluntarily to return, Butler plans to have them extradited.

Inquiry Follows Slaying.

Investigation of Champaign vice and gambling was prompted by the slaying last Feb. 16 of William Spurrier, 20 years old, of Toledo, O., a sophomore at the University of Illinois.

Mrs. Margaret Strothers, 52 years old, colored operator of a resort, was indicted for the slaying and is in jail.

THREE'S A CROWD WHEN A BAD MAN WOOS WITH ROSES

Suitor Finds Unwelcome Guest Ahead of Him.

The oldtime horse thief was a tough hombre who chewed tobacco, let his whiskers grow, and smelled of the stable.

Robert Steel, 51 years old, 500 North Clark street, doesn't quite fit the picture. He was arrested in Chicago twenty-five years ago for stealing a horse. He has since spent several terms in penitentiaries. Now he is under arrest again, charged with stealing a fur coat and using the proceeds to buy tearoses.

It was romance that wrecked Steel this time. Thursday night he went into a restaurant at 2754 North California avenue by the back door. Nobody saw him. He took the fur coat, belonging to a waitress, and a suit of clothes owned by the manager, Peter Karakas.

The Perfect Crime Spoiled.

Then he went away. In his excitement he forgot his overcoat. He had laid it on a garbage can so that he could pretend to be a customer if some one espied him. In one pocket was a piece of paper with a telephone number. The police traced the number to Mrs. Anna Wilson, 41 years old, 445 North Clark street.

Meanwhile Steel had pawned the coat for $20. With a lordly gesture he went into a florist shop and sent the tea roses—three dozen of them—to Mrs. Wilson. He made a date to see her last night.

Their perfume was wafting about when he walked into Mrs. Wilson's home. But he was not allowed to sniff it very long. Sergt. James Lynch of the Shakespeare avenue police was waiting for him and made the capture. The fur coat was recovered from a pawnshop. Karakas' suit was found in Steel's room.

Served Several Terms.

Police records show that Steel was sentenced to Leavenworth federal prison in 1918 for fraud and forgery. In 1921 he went to Mare Island prison in California for burglary. He was sentenced to the Michigan penitentiary, to serve five to fifteen years for larceny, in 1927. In 1931 a Wisconsin judge ordered him to Waupun for one to two years on a charge of burglary.

Last night Steel said he objected to being considered a horse thief.

"Nothing ever came of that arrest," he said.

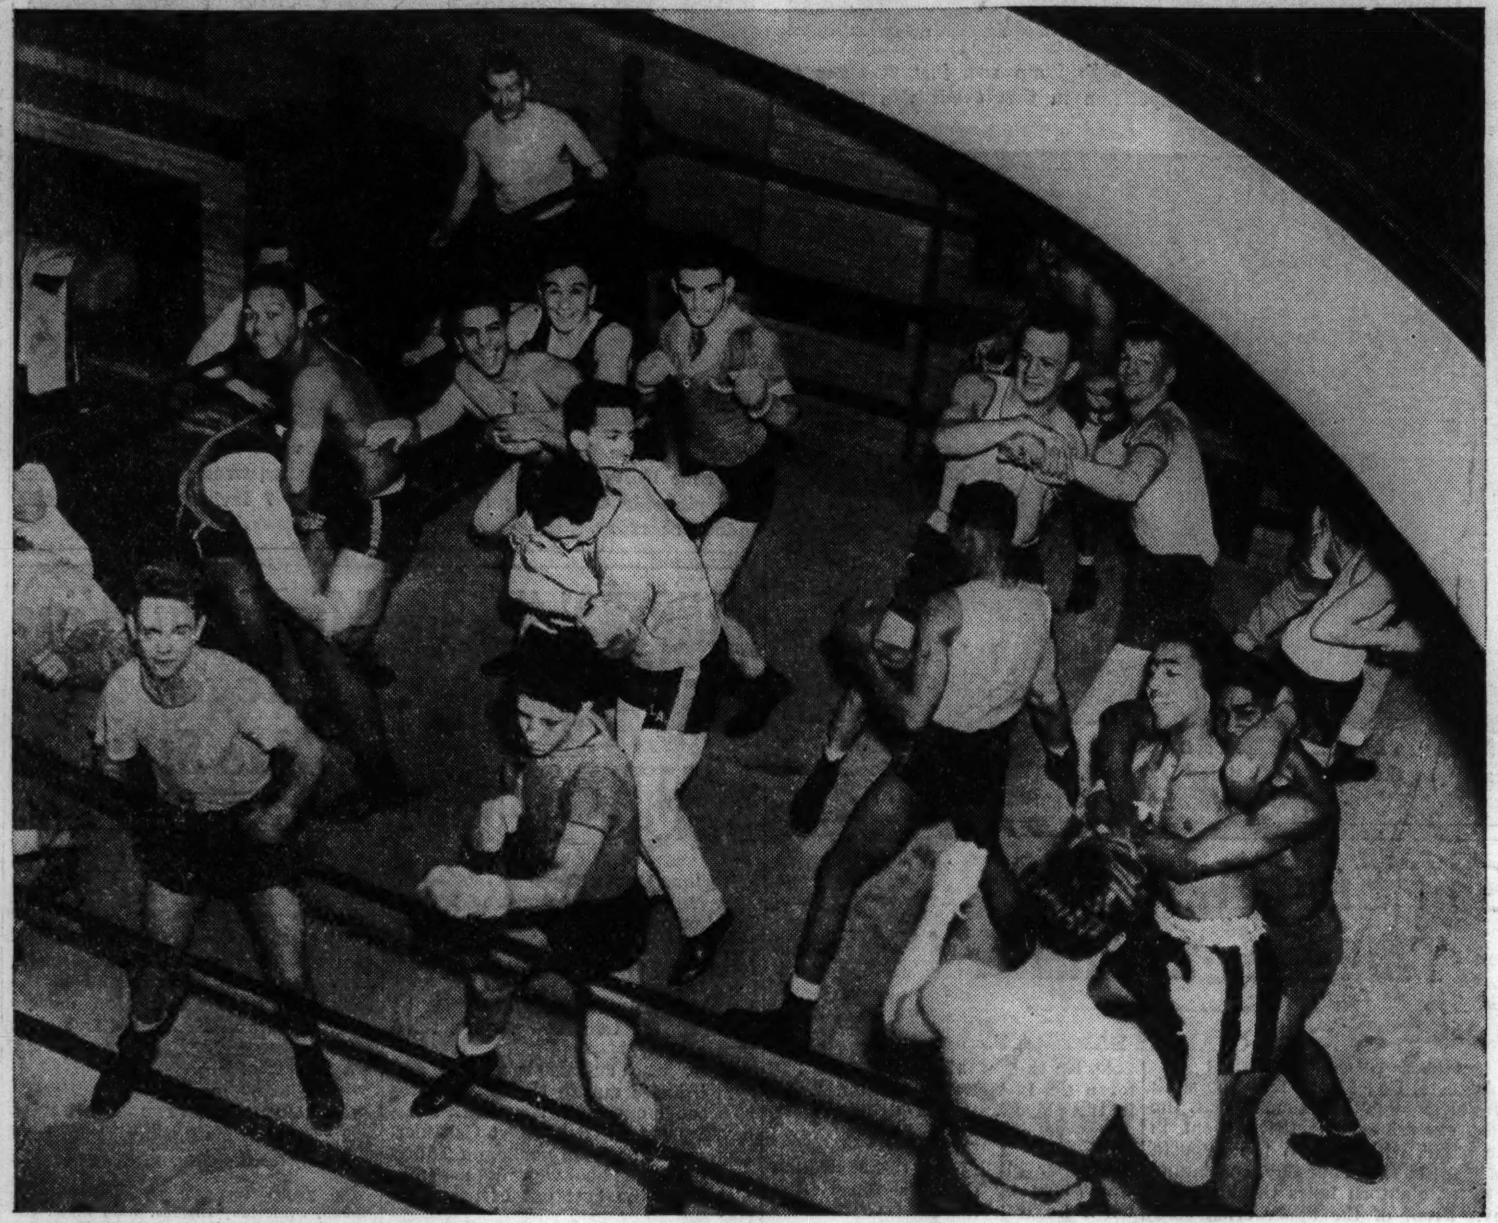
TWO WHITE SOX RALLIES BEAT CUBS, 8 TO 7

NEW YORK GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM INVADES CHICAGO

THEY'RE ALL LOOKING FOR A FIGHT--WAIT TILL WEDNESDAY, BOYS!



Members of the New York Golden Gloves team plunged into work in the Medinah club without loss of time yesterday. As soon as the boys dressed for the ring the coaches sent them through this roughing up session. The eastern boys arrived in the morning for the intercity bouts with Chicago's Golden Glovers in the Stadium Wednesday evening.

O, yes, they were hungry, too, at lunch time. Meet Art Di Pietro and John Noce, 135 pounders, and Tami Maurello, a welterweight.

RUSH TO WORK FOR 16 FIGHTS ON WEDNESDAY

Sellout Expected for Intercity Show.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

New York's Golden Gloves team is here. These powerful fighters, the strongest of the entire eastern seaboard, arrived at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and by 9:30 they had plunged into their first workout in the Medinah club gymnasium. They'll take full advantage of the next few days to polish their technique before facing Chicago's rugged boxers in the twelfth annual intercity Golden Gloves matches Wednesday night in the Stadium.

Buddy Moore, Bill Speary, Johnny Forte and their teammates looked tough and confident as they descended on the scene of another great Golden Gloves show. In the workout that followed their arrival they seemed trained to physical perfection.

Bring Accounts of Prowess.

The retinue that came with the team brought more detailed accounts of the prowess these fighters showed in slugging their way to championships against the greatest amateurs of the east. On the squad are hard hitters and clever boxers who may be depended upon to force Chicago's boys to the limit in defense of their intercity championship.

Not since 1934 has New York's Golden Gloves team beaten Chicago's. But the easterners say that this is the year.

In anticipation of another furiously fought series of sixteen bouts, a capacity crowd will gather in the Stadium Wednesday night. Many of those who missed the finals of the Chicago tournament because of failure to obtain seats before the sellout already have their tickets to the intercity bouts. Seats remain at nearly all prices, but the closing rush is expected to exhaust the supply.

Heavyweights Cause Speculation.

What will Tony Novak, Chicago's heavyweight champion, do against Buddy Moore, highly rated slugger from the Harlem district of New York? That's one of the questions all Golden Gloves followers are asking. Those who saw Tony punch his way through the Tournament of Champions, the semi-finals, and the finals know that he can hit with tremendous power. With a knockout he climaxed his quest for a championship. He's got courage, too—plenty of it. Remember how he got up after a nine count and knocked out his opponent in one of his Tournament of Champions bouts?

That's one side of the picture. But the New Yorkers say that when Buddy Moore puts his opponents on the floor they stay put. There's a possibility that the Novak-Moore bout may decide the intercity winner. In several other years the outcome hinged on the evening's last fight. If it happens again Wednesday night, what a fight that will be!

All of Championship Caliber.

This year New York is more confident than ever that its eight champions are too strong to be beaten. While Chicago doesn't concede anything of the kind, it has been pointed out that the local team may drop a few No. 1 bouts and still dominate the matches because of unusual strength in the runnerup positions. All sixteen fights are counted in the score, and many of Chicago's runners-up are of championship caliber.

It will take a mighty strong New York flyweight to beat either Al Noto or Willie Moon, who are battling for the right to occupy the No. 2 position behind Champion Vic Saccoia.

Good Light Heavyweights.

And take a look at Chicago's light heavyweight division with Shelton Bell, Altus Allen, and Ragon Kinney fighting for the right to carry on with Champion Jimmy Reeves.

Two rings have been set up in the Medinah club gymnasium to provide

Meadows Sets World Record in Relays Vault

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Earle Meadows, spindle legged pole vaulter from Southern California, and Charles Fenske, bespectacled University of Wisconsin miler, provided the outstanding performances in the Chicago relays last night as the 1939 indoor track season was brought to a close amid the shattering of records and the defeat of champions before a crowd of 10,000 in the International amphitheater.

Vaults 14 Feet 6¼ Inches.

Meadows, who had arrived in Chicago by plane from California in the morning soared 14 feet 6¼ inches in the pole vault to set a new world's indoor record. Fenske's contribution was a victory over the redoubtable Glenn Cunningham, Kansas veteran and world record holder, in the featured Bankers' mile.

Meadows, matched against such noted vaulters as Milt Padway of Wisconsin, Big Ten champion, and Ed Thistlethwaite, Northwestern sophomore, beat off all opposition at 14 feet 3 inches, where Padway failed, then made two attempts to clear 14 feet 7 inches. His second attempt was successful and upon remeasuring the height, it was found he had bettered by one-eighth of an inch the world's record established this season in Boston by Ed Warmerdam of California.

Munski Jumps Into Lead.

The Bankers' mile met every requisite of feature race and developed the chief thrill of a three hour program. Five of the outstanding milers in the world started.

Fenske took the lead from Munski on the eighth lap and Cunningham moved up into second place. Munski appeared to have shot his bolt. But on the ninth lap he suddenly shot

Bill Osmanski Is Appointed Coach of Iowa Freshmen

Iowa City, Ia., March 25.—[U.P.]—Bill Osmanski, full back at Holy Cross last fall, was named freshman football coach at the University of Iowa today by his former coach, Dr. Eddie Anderson. Osmanski will report April 1 and will be present for a month of spring practice. He will return to Iowa City Sept. 1.

Anderson was hired as head football coach at Iowa at the end of last season. At Holy Cross he developed Osmanski into one of the nation's greatest full backs.

Osmanski's selection virtually completes Anderson's coaching staf. Frank Carideo and Jim Harris, both former Notre Dame stars, will serve as backfield and line coaches, respectively.

Osmanski will replace J. E. [Waddy] Davis as freshman coach. Davis has not announced his future plans. The Holy Cross star is 22 years old and is a native of Providence, R. I. He is studying dentistry.

STAR FOR TWO SEASONS.

Worcester, Mass., March 25.—[U.P.]—Bill Osmanski, today named freshman football coach at the University of Iowa, was a standout in eastern football the last two seasons.

A hard-running full back, he was captain of the Holy Cross team last season. He was to have played in the East-West All-Stars game in San Francisco but was benched by injuries.

Michigan Wins N.C.A.A. Swim; Princeton Star Sets World Mark

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 25.—[Special.]—The University of Michigan swimming team won its sixth consecutive National Collegiate A. A. title tonight in a meet featured by a world's record performance in the 200 yard breast stroke by Capt. Dick Hough of Princeton.

Hough's winning time in the breast stroke was 2 minutes 22 seconds and it erased the world's, American, intercollegiate, and meet record of 2:22.5 made by Jack Kasley of Michigan in the 1936 meet. Hough finished a half length ahead of Ohio State's John Higgins, a 1936 Olympian.

Hough Is Outstanding.

Hough's performance earned for the award of the meet's outstanding swimmer, decided in a poll among the participating coaches.

Michigan entered the finals leading Ohio State, 34 to 30. It gained its margin in the first six events yesterday. It matched Buckeye power in the diving tonight with a first and a second in the 440 yard swim, a tie for first in the 100 yard sprint, and a victory in the free style relay to break the pool record.

Barker, Wolf Tie in 100.

Capt. Tom Haynie repeated his 1937 victory in the 440 yard event, coming from behind to touch out his sophomore teammate, Jim Welsh, in the pool record time of 4:49.6. Harold [Curly] Stanhope, Ohio State's 1,500 meter champion, finished third ahead

Table of Points

Michigan	65	Northwestern	4
Ohio State	58	Columbia	3
Princeton	22	Iowa	3

of Adolph Kiefer of Texas. Haynie won the 220 yard swim last night.

Charlie Barker, Michigan sophomore, finished in a dead heat with Paul Wolf of Southern California in the 100 yard sprint. Ohio State's Billy Quayle was third ahead of the favorite, Michigan's Waldemar Tomski. The winning time was 52.9 seconds. Barker won the 50 yard event last night.

Patnik Is Double Winner.

Al Patnik also became a double winner as he repeated in both the high and low board diving ahead of his sophomore teammate, Earle Clark, and Michigan's Hal Benham.

Michigan successfully defended its free style relay title against Ohio State, although the Wolverines had only to finish fourth to assure themselves of a team victory over the Buckeyes.

Barker and Ed Hutchens established a slight lead over Bob Johnson and Jim Hartlein. Capt. Haynie then extended the Wolverine lead on the third leg and Wallie Tomski finished more than a length ahead of Billy Quayle. The time, 3:33.5, broke

Aurora Track Drops 21-Day Race Meeting

The Aurora race track, which has been in operation under various managements since 1923, will not reopen this season. This became definite yesterday when officials of the Fox Valley Jocky club, operators of the track, rejected the dates offered by the Illinois Racing commission. These dates were May 1 to May 24.

D. C. Burnett, Aurora's secretary and resident manager, wrote the commission stating that it was impossible to operate at a profit for the period assigned. The track had applied for a meeting running from May 1 through May 30, Memorial day being the chief point of issue in a conflict with Lincoln Fields.

All of the other tracks have filed acceptances of their dates and have made the required payments so there is no likelihood that the commission will rearrange the dates in response to Aurora's move.

21 Days for the Asking.

Twenty-one additional racing days now are available. Any of the Chicago district's other five tracks may apply for them. It is considered possible that Sportsman's Park, which was allotted Oct. 2 to Oct. 31, also may wish to run in May. Its location and its all-weather equipment make it the most likely applicant.

Washington Park also had been mentioned as a possible bidder, despite the fact that its officials have shown no liking for anything but a midsummer meeting. In the recent controversy with Hawthorne over dates, Ben Lindheimer of Washington Park stated that it was out of the question to operate his track in September because of its location and the uncertain weather of that month. The objection to May weather would be even stronger, but there is a remote possibility that Washington Park might be inclined to gamble on it now that a summer meeting is assured. Its dates are July 31 to Sept. 2.

American Derby in May?

It is pointed out that the American Derby could be run more advantageously in May than in August, as is called for by present plans. The Kentucky Derby is scheduled May 6, and the Preakness May 13. There might be a possibility for Washington Park to get the good three year olds after they run in these events and before they are given their summer layoffs.

It has been suggested that Lincoln Fields, which is to run from May 25 to June 24, might be inclined to open earlier, now that more May dates are available.

If any track except Lincoln Fields should take the extra days the license fee would be $2,500 a day. Lincoln Fields would pay $1,500 because of its location.

Leased by New Orleans Man.

R. S. Eddy of New Orleans, who operated the Aurora race track in collaboration with the late Joe Cattarinich for several years, recently took a new lease on the Exposition Park property, site of the track. The lease is to run for six years at $6,000 annual rental and 15 per cent of net earnings. The property is in receivership. Eddy may get some return on his investment even though the race track is idle, because the site is used for fairs, picnics, and similar events during the summer.

During the last three years Aurora has averaged a mutuel handle of approximately $100,000 a day. The operators claimed a loss of $70,000 last season.

Western State to Face 3 Southern Net Teams

Leo of the Chicago Catholic league and Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Ind., entered the final round of the national Catholic high school basketball tournament last night, Leo by defeating St. Ignatius of Chicago, 46 to 40, in two overtime periods, and Central Catholic by a 47 to 31 triumph over St. George of Evanston. They will decide the title tonight.

Two baskets and two free throws in the second extra period gave Leo, runner-up for the Chicago south section title, its margin over St. Ignatius, which won the north division championship.

Baranowski, Murphy Win for Leo.

St. Ignatius led, 8 to 7, at the quarter and held a 20 to 18 advantage at the half. St. Ignatius still maintained a slight edge at the end of the third period, the score being 29 to 28. Leo then rallied, and the score at the end of the regulation game was 38 to 38.

In the first overtime period Henry Baranowski scored a field goal to put Leo ahead, but Al Benda tied the score again with a long shot. In the second overtime Baranowski made good on a long shot and Pat Murphy contributed a field goal and two free throws.

Central Catholic's victory made the Fort Wayne team the first Hoosier quintet to reach the finals since 1936, when St. Mary's of Anderson, Ind., moved to the final round, but lost to De La Salle of Chicago in the championship game.

Hoosiers Lead at Half.

St. George, runner-up for the north section crown in the Chicago Catholic league, led at the end of the first quarter, 7 to 5, but the Hoosiers rallied to take an 18 to 17 advantage at the intermission.

In the third quarter the rangy Hoosiers began to assert their superiority. Fort Wayne made fourteen points in this quarter while holding the Evanston quintet to only four free throws, and the score at the conclusion of the period was 32 to 21.

Edmond Stanczak, Fort Wayne's 6 foot 2 inch center, led the victors' attack, scoring seven field goals and three free throws. George Bitler who is 5 feet 10 inches tall, and Eugene Maxwell, 6 feet 1 inch guard also played an important part in the Hoosiers' victory.

Jim O'Donnell, senior forward starred for St. George, collecting four field goal and five free throws. Bob

HOSE TIE SCORE IN EIGHTH; GET 3 MORE IN NINTH

Error by Epperly Helps Him Lose.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 25.—The title holding Cubs were well on their way toward a third straight spring series victory over their home town rivals, the White Sox, today when something happened. The something was a finish so stormy that the Cubs for a few minutes feared they were back in another world series with the mauling Yankees. While the hurricane was on—it lasted through the eighth and ninth—the Sox slipped six runs across the plate for a sufficient margin to win despite a counter attack by the Cubs in their final inning. The score was 8 to 7.

The argument had a definite Cub flavor for the first five innings during which Lefty Larry French again subdued the Sox batters with his foolers and the Cubs picked freely on Young Johnny Rigney. But the Sox finally placed an experienced performer, John Whitehead, on the mound and the National leaguers elected to coast the remainder of the journey under the guidance of Rookie Newell Kimball. Kimball was blown off the scene in the eighth and his rescuer, Albert Paul Epperly, was blasted for the decisive runs in the ninth, partly because of his own loose fielding.

Cubs Like Antelope Ball.

Rigney's troubles were caused principally by an error and the Cubs' fondness for knocking the Coast league antelope ball over the fence whenever exhibiting in the local park. The error was McNair's and thanks to Phil Cavarretta's triple, which barely missed being a homer, it led to three runs in the first inning. But Cavarretta finally got the homer he was aiming for. He hoisted one over the fence for the Cubs' fourth run in the fourth and Augie Galan smashed one beyond reach in the fifth, thus completing the damage done to Rigney. Whitehead then pitched three hitless innings, but was rocked a bit in the ninth.

French southpawed so beautifully that the Sox gathered only five hits, one run scoring because of a fumble by Steve Mesner. The beneficiary of this error was Eric McNair, who made one of the hits off French—a double. McNair also was heard from later in a big way. He picked up the Sox second run by hitting a homer off Kimball in the seventh and furnished the last of three singles in the eighth when the Sox routed Kimball and tied the score. But the gentleman who really broke the deadlock was Luke Appling, who singled with the bases filled in the ninth.

McNair Gums Things Up.

The Cubs' first inning which wouldn't have been an unhappy occurrence for the Sox if McNair hadn't blundered, opened with Hack's beating out a bunt toward Owen. Rigney took one step in the proper direction by fanning English. Galan grounded to McNair and there might have been a double play but the ball trickled through the second baseman's fingers, Hack going to third. Leiber was expunged on a pop foul to Schlueter. Marty singled to left, Hack scoring, and Cavarretta sailed a triple over Steinbacher's head, Galan and Marty

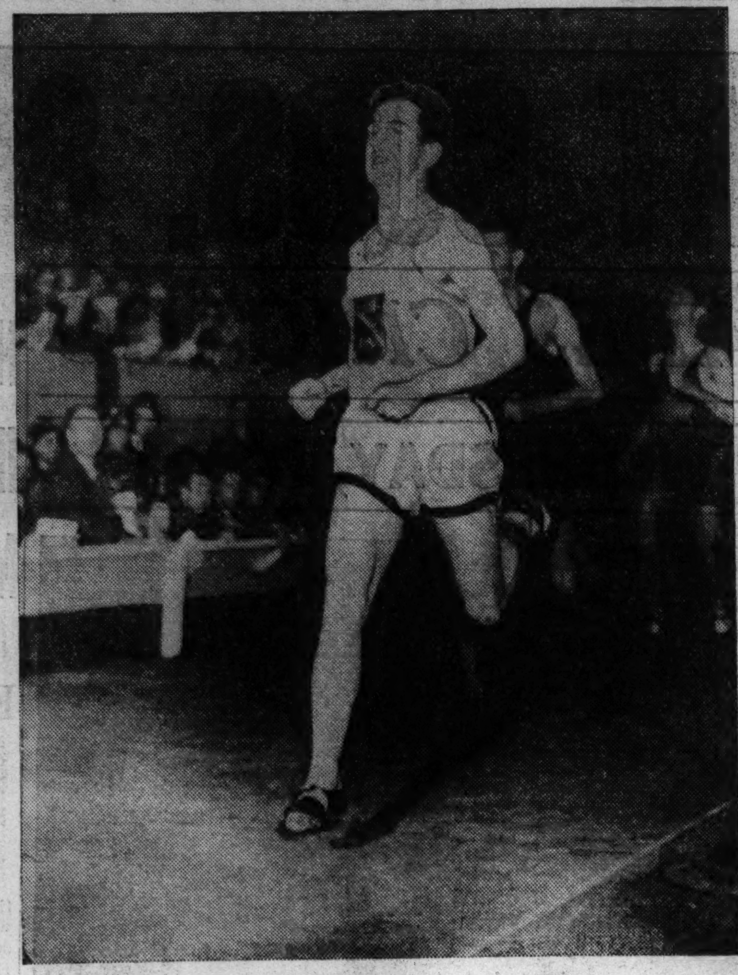
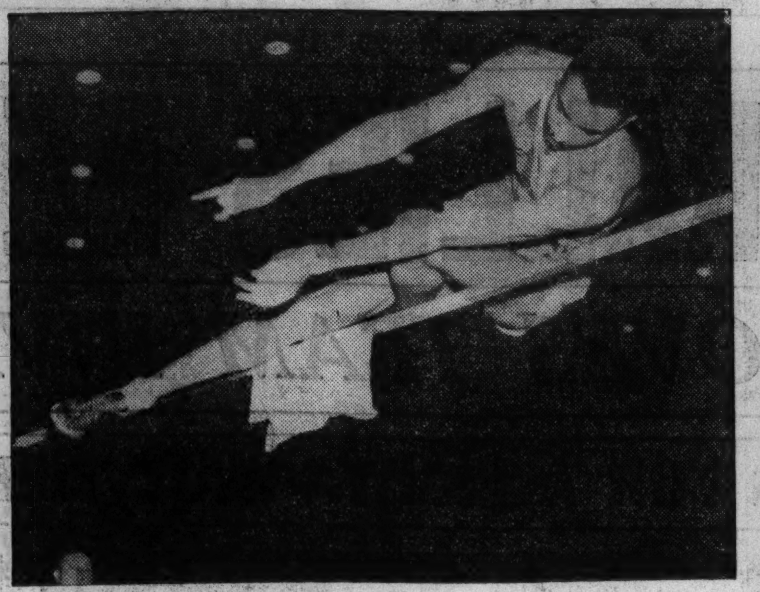
MAKING PIKERS OF TIME AND DISTANCE IN CHICAGO RELAYS



Charles Beetham, former Ohio State speedster, doesn't appear fatigued one bit as he takes the last step of his winning effort in the 600 yard run in the Chicago relays last night in the International Amphitheater. Beetham beat defending champion James Herbert and came within a tenth of a second of his victim's world record.



Mel Walker, former Ohio State high jump ace, just manages to skim over the bar when the competition in that event was reaching the torrid stage.

Again the king of the world's pole vaulters! Earle Meadows, one time University of Southern California star, wrests back the indoor championship by lifting himself up 14 feet 7 inches, a new world's indoor record.

INDIANA STATE PREP TITLE WON BY FRANKFORT

Indianapolis, Ind., March 25.—[Special.]—Frankfort won the annual Indiana High school basketball tournament tonight by defeating Franklin, 36 to 22. It was the first time that the title has gone to any school four times. Frankfort won in 1925, 1929, and 1936, and was runnerup in 1924. Franklin had won in 1920, 1921, and 1922.

Superior height and defense and a powerful second quarter scoring drive gave Frankfort its victory. Frankfort led, 20 to 10, at the half.

Cook Sets Record.

Lewis Cook, Frankfort forward, set a new individual scoring record of forty-six points for the tournament. This bettered by three the mark made in 1933 by James Seward of Shortridge of Indianapolis. James Meyers of Bosse High school of Evansville received the annual Gimbel award for outstanding sportsmanship.

Frankfort experienced a little more difficulty in winning its semi-final game this afternoon than it did against Franklin in the final.

Bosse Puts Up Argument.

Bosse of Evansville forced the new champions to come from behind to win, 32 to 28. In its semi-final with Burris of Muncie, Franklin led all the way in gaining a 31 to 25 decision.

State high school coaches meeting today overwhelmingly indorsed a plan to restore the three weeks' tournament setup with a sixteen game finals tourney, which prevailed prior to 1936.

SEEK TO BREAK MacQUINN STREAK IN MIDGET RACES

A dozen drivers will seek to break the winning streak of Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis in the midget automobile races in the 124th Field Artillery armory tonight. The races will start at 8:30 following ninety minutes of time trials. The armory is located at 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

MacQuinn, who has won the last five feature races, will report tonight in a new Marchese-Miller automobile, while Tony Willman of Milwaukee will drive the No. 4 Miller, formerly piloted by MacQuinn.

Duke Nalon and Ted Duncan of Chicago also will be on hand tonight. Nalon has run second to MacQuinn in two of the last three features. Duncan chased MacQuinn closely two weeks ago and was closing the gap when he spun out of the race.

The main event will be at forty laps, with four twelve lap elimination races qualifying the drivers for the feature. The eight fastest cars will meet in a fifteen lap handicap race.

Golf Stars Will Open Play Thursday in Masters' Event

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., March 25.—The sixth annual masters' golf tournament, the most exclusive competitive event in the game, will open on the Augusta National course Thursday, continuing daily at eighteen holes through Sunday. Proof of the upper crust complexion of the masters' tournament is reflected in the entry list, which seldom exceeds sixty.

The field is probably the smallest and most talented in American competition. If you are a journeyman professional, taking your swings all over the circuit, you must produce more than a working knowledge of the game to be admitted to the Masters. In fact, it is more a matter of being invited than admitted.

Field is Restricted.

The tournament is restricted to past and present holders of the British and American open and American open and amateur titles, of the national professional crown, members of the Ryder and Walker cup squads, and the leading survivors of the preceding year's national open and amateur. Thus it is that plain garden variety competitors can hope to do no more than traipse in the galleries following the show.

The Masters tournament, in its brief career, has come to be recognized as one of the thrillers of golf. Standout performance of the first five events was that of Gene Sarazen in 1934. The sturdy Little Caesar of golf, trailing Craig Wood by three shots with four holes to go, picked them all up by holing a 230 yard spoon shot for a deuce on the par five fifteenth hole. He then went on to get his par for a tie, ultimately defeating Wood in the playoff.

Nelson Wins with 283.

Another brilliant demonstration was given by young Byron Nelson when he won the 1937 tournament with a total of 283. Nelson, apparently beaten by Ralph Guldahl going into the final nine holes, smacked out a nine hole card of 32 which enabled him to beat the national open champion of the last two years by a couple of shots.

Principal figure and main reason for the tournament is a young Atlanta barrister named Robert Tyre Jones Jr. After his grand slam of 1930, Bobbie hung up his clubs, ostensibly for keeps. Then a number of sportsmen from Atlanta and the east induced him to make one competitive appearance a year. Reluctant at first, the champion of them all finally assented. In the five shows to date, Jones has given the crowds their share of thrills although he has finished within the first twenty-four scorers only twice, tying for thirteenth in the inaugural of 1934 and sharing sixteenth position last year.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., is the only player ever to win the Masters twice, scoring in 1934 and 1936. Unusual is the fact that three men have shared the runnerup spot. They are Wood, Guldahl, and Harry Cooper. Defending champion is Henry Picard, the tall Hershey, Pa. pro who is currently proving that he has lost none of his ability. He has collected nearly $4,000 already this season.

CANADA REFUSES ENTRY OF CZECH ACE GIRL SKATER

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 25.—[U. P.]—Canada was closed today to Vera Hruba, 19 years old, Czecho-Slovakian figure skater, because she was a "woman without a country."

Miss Hruba returned to New York City to confer with James J. Johnston, her manager, after being prevented from filling an engagement at a London, Ont., ice carnival. She was turned back by Canadian immigration officials here yesterday.

John R. McNeill, immigration service chief, refused to discuss the matter. An inspector, however, explained that the skater was considered a "woman without a country."

"Miss Hruba was in the United States on a temporary permit issued by the Czecho-Slovakian government, which no longer exists," he said. "If she was admitted to Canada, the United States then very properly could refuse to take her back."

STORMY DEFEATS 21 YACHTS IN THE TROPHY SERIES

New Orleans, La., March 25.—(AP)—Stormy, owned and sailed by Cliff F. Baxter of the Newport Yacht Harbor club of Los Angeles, Cal., outsailed a fleet of twenty-one star class sloops today in the first race of the Commodore Ernest Lee Jahncke trophy open series.

The race on Lake Pontchartrain was the opening event of the annual spring championship series of the International Star Class Yacht Racing association.

Stormy took the lead on the second leg of the triangle on the first round, held its advantage throughout, and finished one minute and forty-four seconds ahead of Sparkler II., owned and sailed by J. Breanon Cleary of New Orleans.

EX-GERMAN SKIER WINS DOWNHILL RACE IN IDAHO

Sun Valley, Idaho, March 25.—(AP)—Tony Matt of Conway, N. H., won the downhill race in the national four-way combined championships today on a 2.3 mile course that left a heavy toll in hurt and disqualified amateurs.

The former German skier flashed down Bald mountain in 3 minutes 11.2 seconds, but the meet's biggest upset was the disqualification of Reidar Andesen of Norway, a favorite to capture the amateur prize, for missing a flag.

With Andersen out Dick Durrance of Dartmouth college, who led the amateurs home in the downhill, had the lead well to himself, with Alf Engen of Sun Valley his nearest rival.

On a course only half as long but just as trying, Erna Steurt of Switzerland slipped over the snow in 2:24.4 to win the women's downhill. The women—like the men—finished after bad spills that brought bloody noses and gashed faces.

Second to Matt was Peter Radacher of Sun Valley, timed at 3:16.1. Walter Prager, Dartmouth coach, was third. As instructors they are permitted to compete with the amateurs, but their points are not counted toward the prize.

Duke Baseball Team Beats Springfield College, 33-1

Durham, N. C., March 25.—(AP)—Duke University 33, Springfield college 1. That was the score in a college baseball game here this afternoon. The Dukes made thirty-two hits, including two home runs. The game lasted only seven innings. It had to be called on account of darkness.

RANGERS' KERR MAY PLAY CUP BATTLE TONIGHT

Boston, Mass., March 25.—(AP)—The New York Rangers' hopes of returning home with one National Hocky league playoff victory over the Boston Bruins soared tonight when Manager Lester Patrick was advised that Dave Kerr, injured goalie, might be available for tomorrow night's third game.

Kerr, who suffered shoulder and arm injuries during the 119 minutes 35 seconds opener in New York Tuesday, was replaced by Bert Gardiner, Rangers' farm team goalie, on Thursday. Boston has won both games played in the best out of seven series.

X-rays revealed an eighth of an inch separation of muscles in Kerr's right shoulder, a disorder that has been responding to treatment.

CANADIENS AT DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., March 25.—(AP)—Backers of the Detroit Red Wings, with recollections of two recent Stanley cup championships, placed their hopes for another tonight on the jinx which has thwarted Montreal's Canadiens on all but one occasion on Olympia ice this season.

The Wings and Canadiens will meet tomorrow night in the rubber game of series C of the cup playoffs. The winner will engage Toronto's Maple Leafs in the semi-finals next week.

NEW YORKERS TO HONOR MEMORY OF ROCKNE TODAY

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Commemorating the career of Knute K. Rockne, several hundred alumni of the University of Notre Dame will attend the annual Rockne memorial communion breakfast of the Notre Dame club of New York tomorrow morning in the New York Athletic club.

Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, died in a plane crash in Kansas on March 31, 1931. Preceding the breakfast the alumni will receive communion at a special mass to be celebrated at the Lady chapel of St. Patrick's cathedral by Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of the cathedral.

SETON HALL WINS THREE TITLES IN FENCING TOURNEY

Columbus, O., March 25.—(AP)—Seton Hall college swept the east-west intercollegiate fencing meet at Ohio State university tonight, winning three titles and tying for a fourth.

The South Orange [N. J.] team, winner of the Eastern Intercollegiate conference title and undefeated in 33 consecutive dual meets in two years, won the United States intercollegiate three weapon, foils, and saber titles, but tied, 4½ to 4½, with Northwestern in the epee event.

Meeting the west's best, Seton Hall upset Chicago, 7 to 2, to win the foils title, downed Illinois by the same score in the saber division, and clinched the three weapon crown when Paul Brienza defeated Harold Weingarten of Illinois in the saber contest for the 14th point needed for that championship. The team then added its epee tallies for a total of 18½ points in the three weapon scoring.

Naperville's 57 Points Win Prep Track Meet

Naperville scored 57 points to win the seventh annual interscholastic high school track meet in Merner fieldhouse at North Central college last night. York of Elmhurst was second with 54; Wheaton, third, 49½; La Grange, fourth, 44, and Maine, fifth, 29½. Ward Shoger of Naperville set a new running broad jump record of 21 feet 3¾ inches. Jack Preston of Naperville tied the pole vault record of 11 feet 9 inches.

CHAPLIN, COAST LEAGUE PITCHER, KILLED IN CRASH

San Diego, Cal., March 25.—(AP)—James B. [Tiny] Chaplin, 32 years old, star pitcher of the San Diego Padres baseball team, was killed today in an automobile accident near National City, south of here.

Chaplin and Miss Alma Hamilton, 34, of San Diego, were returning from Tia Juana when the accident occurred. Miss Hamilton, who was driving, said she was proceeding behind another car when it swerved suddenly to avoid a machine parked on the highway. Her automobile sideswiped it, the impact hurling Chaplin into the windshield. His jugular vein was severed.

Miss Hamilton suffered only minor facial cuts.

Chaplin, born in Los Angeles, attended University of Florida, where he starred in football and baseball. In 1927 the New York Giants took him from the Florida campus, but farmed him out to Williamsport and Jersey City.

ahead and took a short lead. But the effort overcame him, and on the tenth time around Cunningham made his move. Lengthening his stride into a sprint, the Kansan went to the front on the final lap, with Munski second.

Cunningham Loses Out.

Fenske was running third and Venske fourth at this stage. Fenske caught Cunningham in the back stretch and Venske moved right in behind. Fenske tried to pass Cunningham but was stopped as they reached the final sharp turn in the small track. Coming up the stretch to the wire, however, he forged ahead on the outside and Venske came up on the inside to bring the three finishers down to the tap in a line.

In the photo finish, Cunningham surrendered to the young Badger runner. Venske finished third. The time was 4 minutes 12 and 8-10 seconds, eight and four-tenths seconds slower than Cunningham's world record. It was Fenske's second victory over Cunningham in two weeks.

Lash Beats Rice in Two Mile.

The excitement that attended the finish of this race was surpassed later when Don Lash, the Indiana state policeman and world record holder, and Greg Rice, diminutive marathoner from Notre Dame, breasted the tape in stride in the two mile after running the last lap shoulder to shoulder. Lash was awarded the race by the bulge of his chest. The time was 9 minutes and 5 seconds.

Lash's time set a new meet record, breaking the mark of 9:10.7 he established last year.

White Sox Beat Cubs, 8 to 7, in Closing Rallies

The Sox didn't do anything about a single by Owen with one out in the first inning. Neither did they profit by a double to the left field fence by McNair with two out in the second. In the third they really had French in a ticklish spot but a combination of swell fielding and bad base running intervened. After Rigney had lined to English, there were singles by Walker and Owen. Steinbacher lined low to right, but neither Owen nor Walker expected a catch, so they began running. Marty, however, made a sort of shoestring catch and threw to Cavarretta to double Owen off first.

One run dropped into the Cubs' basket in the fourth. There might have been more if the Sox hadn't put together a double play. The run was the result of Cavarretta's homer which cleared the right field screen to start the inning. Mancuso walked and Mesner survived when Appling erred on an ordinary drive into his hands. French flied to Steinbacher, Mancuso going to third after the catch. For a moment this looked like a pleasing situation for the champions but it changed when Appling picked up Hack's grounder and turned it into a double play.

Sox Collect One Off French.

With outside assistance from Mesner the Sox were able to nick French for a run in the fifth, his last inning. Mesner, who is serving in place of Rheumatics Bartell, was kind enough to bobble McNair's grounder with one out. Schlueter spanked a single into left center, McNair taking third. McNair sprinted home while Schlueter was being forced on Rigney's tap to Mesner. Walker then fanned and Owen forced Rigney.

The Cubs collected three hits in their half of the fifth but two of them went to waste. The worthwhile item was Galan's homer over the right field brick barrier, making the score 5 to 1. After Galan had completed his four cornered sprint, Leiber handcuffed Appling with a single and Marty singled to left. Cavarretta then popped to McNair and Mancuso flied to Kreevich.

McNair Contributes Homer.

McNair stepped up to start the Sox' seventh and hoisted one of Kimball's pitches over the wall in the left field corner. This was followed by Silvestri's single. The next three batters were easy, however.

The eighth inning business that fetched the Sox three runs as well as a tie opened with Steinbacher's double to the fence in left center. He went to third on Appling's infield out. Rosenthal drew a pass and Kuhel singled to right, Steinbacher scoring and Rosenthal progressing to third. McNair singled to left, his third hit, Rosenthal scoring and Kuhel going to third. Epperly was brought to the rescue of Kimball. Silvestri then flied to Reynolds in deep center, Kuhel going home with the tying run. The inning ended with Whitehead forcing McNair.

Here Comes the Payoff!

Radcliff opened the ninth with a single to right and things began to happen immediately. Owen bunted and Epperly, in his haste, threw the ball into right field foul territory, Radcliff moving to third and Owen to second. Steinbacher was purposely passed, but the strategy failed. Appling ruined it with a single to right, Radcliff and Owen scoring and Steinbacher getting to third. Steinbacher scored on Rosenthal's sacrifice fly which Reynolds caught in the neighborhood of the 412 foot sign in center. Kuhel and McNair also flied out.

Pinchman Collins opened the Cub ninth with a single and Hack walked, but this opening was closed when English grounded into a double play. Then Gleeson doubled to score Collins and a single by Reynolds scored Gleeson. Marty bounced to Owen to end the battle.

BRYANT, LILLARD FACE LYONS AND KNOTT ON MOUND

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 25.—The Cubs and the Sox tomorrow will play the fourth game of their 16 game spring series. Clay Bryant and Gene Lillard will pitch for the Cubs, and Manager Jim Dykes has assigned Ted Lyons and Jack Knott to attend to the Sox pitching chores.

The Cubs are scheduled to play the Los Angeles Angels Monday, the Sox Tuesday and Wednesday, and the Angels in the California farewell Thursday. The Sox will enjoy respites from baseball Monday and Thursday. The two Chicago teams will open their road tour in Yuma, Ariz., next Friday.

Bill Herman was out of the Cub lineup because of a sore arm. Nothing serious, 'tis said.

Dizzy Dean, the radio actor, has refused to spiel for one three-minute hitch in behalf of Trainer Andy Lotshaw's magic elixir. Fees weren't high enough.

Vic Frasier, Sox pitcher, who is in Huntington Memorial hospital, Pasadena, as a result of a skull fracture, spent a comfortable night, according to hospital reports. Specialists, who at first said Frasier would be confined five weeks, today amended their estimate to three weeks.

Vice President Harry Grabiner of the Sox is sizzling over the manner in which some of the Los Angeles columnists are roasting his boys.

Vice President Boots Weber of the Cubs will leave for Chicago tomorrow evening. He says he's better pleased with the present Cub squad than any of the others he's seen in the five years he's been associated with the organization.

The Cubs have made from one to four homers in each of the seven games they have played in Wrigley field. They made one in San Bernardino against the Pirates, but failed to hit for the circuit against Los Angeles in Ontario.

Bob Elson of station W-G-N broadcast the game today and expects to do six more Cub-Sox clashes before returning to Chicago.

In his last four times at bat against the Pirates yesterday Phil Cavarretta fanned three times and hit into a double play. He remembered this, and today was pretty mad. So he tripled the first time up and knocked a homer on his next trip to the plate.

Jacksonville, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—New Jersey won its second consecutive national deaf school basketball championship here tonight, defeating Illinois, 31 to 21.

Coaches Pick Grover, Ohio, as President

B. T. Grover, Ohio university coach, was elected president of the National College Basketball Coaches association yesterday at the opening session of the annual three day convention in the Sherman hotel. He succeeds W. S. Chandler, Marquette university coach.

The first vice presidency went to Nat Holman, City College of New York coach. Nels Norgren, University of Chicago, was elected second vice president; Everett Dean, Stanford, third vice president, and E. J. Hickok, Springfield, Mass., college, secretary and treasurer.

Foul to Gain Control of Ball.

The board of directors is composed of Chandler, W. H. Browne, University of Nebraska; Marsh Diebold, Carleton college, and Val Lentz, St. John's College of Baltimore.

A rules change aimed at curbing the deliberate foul — which some coaches view as a growing menace to the sport—was advanced by a veteran Western conference official at yesterday's round table.

The official was John Schommer, dean of Big Ten basketball referees, who said he has noted a steady increase in the number of fouls deliberately made by a losing team in the final minutes of closely fought games.

With one team in possession of the ball and holding a slight lead with only a minute or so of play remaining, the trailing team has been known to resort to deliberate fouls on the gamble it might gain possession after the free throw attempt.

This Might Stop Practice.

Under the rules, two free throws may be awarded the offended team if the official decides the foul was deliberate. But Schommer said officials seldom decide to call such a severe penalty in close games.

"I advocate, in the case of a deliberate foul, that the team fouled shall be given one free throw shot and possession of the ball whether the free throw is made or not. This would make players think twice before doing any deliberate fouling."

The coaches will consider committee reports and generally discuss the game today and tomorrow before viewing the Oregon-Ohio State game at Northwestern's Patten gymnasium.

B'NAI B'RITH AND C. Y. O. FIVES TO MEET ON APRIL 2

The annual basketball game between the C. Y. O. All-Stars and the B'nai B'rith All-Stars will be presented next Sunday afternoon in Lane Tech High school gymnasium, Addison street and Western avenue.

The individuals who will appear in the game have not been announced. Divisional directors of both the C. Y. O. and B. B. Y. O. Basketball leagues are now selecting lineups. Last year the C. Y. O. All-Stars defeated the B. B. Y. O. All-Stars, 35 to 33.

Joe Mowry Will Manage Winnipeg Baseball Team

WINNIPEG, Man., March 25.—[U.P.]Joe Mowry, 30 year old graduate of the University of Iowa, and one time major league baseball player, today was en route to Winnipeg from Daytona Beach to assume managership of the Winnipeg Maroons of the Northern league. Announcement of Mowry's appointment as player-manager was made here last night. The newly appointed manager played in the outfield for three years with the Boston Braves from 1933 to 1936.

OHIO, OREGON FIVES MEET IN FINAL TOMORROW

Climax Brilliant Seasons in Title Battle.

Ohio State and Oregon, basketball champions of the Big Ten and Pacific Coast conferences, respectively, will clash in the finals of the first annual national collegiate basketball tournament in Patten gymnasium, Northwestern university, tomorrow night.

These teams, which arrived in Evanston yesterday, climaxed brilliant seasons by winning the regional playoffs in Philadelphia and San Francisco to enter the finals. The quintets went through brief workouts in Patten gymnasium. Coach Howard Hobson of Oregon said his boys arrived a bit train weary, but said he believed they would be at their peak tomorrow.

Among the spectators at tomorrow's final will be Dr. James Naismith of the University of Kansas, who invented the game in 1891, when he was on the staf of the Springfield [Mass.] Y. M. C. A. college.

Play Under Original Rules.

As a special tribute to Dr. Naismith two teams of Northwestern players will play a preliminary game under the original rules, as drawn up by Dr. Naismith. When first conceived the game had nine players on a team and peach baskets were used as goals. Attendants were stationed at each goal to knock the ball out, for it wasn't until later that the bottoms were removed.

The two finalists stand out as the leading teams in their respective localities. In winning the Big Ten title Ohio State came through one of the most strenuous campaigns in conference history with a record of ten victories and two defeats. In the regional playoffs the Buckeyes defeated Wake Forest, 64 to 55, and Villanova, 53 to 36.

Ohio State will pin its hopes for victory largely around Capt. Jim Hull, sharpshooting forward who won the individual scoring title in the Big Ten this year with 169 points. In the game with Villanova he set a new scoring record for the University of Pennsylvania fieldhouse of 28 points.

The remainder of the Buckeye front line consists of Dick Baker, forward, and John Schick, center. The former teamed with Hull to make one of the most effective scoring combinations in the Big Ten this year. In the semi-final game with Wake Forest Baker scored 25 points, which stood as a scoring record until Hull rolled up 28 points the following night.

Schick Scores 127 Points.

Schick, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall, scored 127 points in Western conference competition this year to place well up among the leaders. He is one of the fastest players on the team and a crack shot from any spot on the court.

Dick Boughner and Bob Lynch are the starting guards on the Buckeye team and in addition to being steady defensive players they have contributed their share to Ohio's remarkable scoring total. Lynch scored 102 points and Boughner 101 this season.

The Webfoots will present an imposing lineup which averages 6 feet 2½ inches in height and possesses dazzling speed. Capt. Bob Anet and Wally Johansen, guards, round out the first string lineup.

LANDER BATTLES HARDEST FOE IN HOOK TOMORROW

Eddie Wants Victory as Step Up Ladder.

Eddie Lander, west side featherweight, who is undefeated in his last nine fights, will be facing the strongest opposition of his brief campaign in Henry Hook of Toronto, Ont., in an eight round bout tomorrow at Marigold Gardens.

Young Lander knows this. He also realizes that his future depends on his showing against Hook.

"I've just got to win," Eddie said after a workout in Trafton's gymnasium. "I've been told that Hook defeated Sixto Escobar, bantamweight champion, a few months ago, but that doesn't frighten me. The fact that Hooks is a slugger whose ring ethics are not of the best doesn't scare me either. I'll beat him at his own game and then I'll be ready for such headliners as Leo Rodak, Joey Archibald, Petey Scalzo, and Everett Rightmire."

Lander said his toughest fight as a professional was against Frankie Kainrath of the Catholic Youth organization, whom he conquered last Dec. 26. The conquest avenged Lander's setback at the hands of Kainrath in last year's Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions. In three contests this year Lander fought draws with Johnny Brown, stablemate of Kainrath, and Frankie [Kid] Covelli, and whipped Henry Huerta. Supporting matches will bring together Dick Kist and Don Epperson, George Kontopolous and George Nyberg, Herman Hayes and Frank Greene, and Andy Canal and Robert Jarrell.

The St. Felicitas Boys' club will offer its third annual amateur boxing show in the school auditorium, 84th street and Blackstone avenue, Friday. Proceeds will be used to maintain an athletic program for more than 100 boys between 10 and 15 years of age. Bill Kenny, member of the Mount Carmel boxing team, is arranging fifteen contests. . . . John Winter, Maywood welterweight, returns for action in the amateur boxing show in Coulon's gymnasium tomorrow against Bill Zanders of Joliet. Jack Fish, welterweight, son of Jake Eile, the old featherweight challenger, will meet Freddy Winesburg of Hyde Park High school. . . . Two bouts will head the wrestling show in Cicero stadium Wednesday. John [Bull] Doehring faces Hans Bauer, and Phil Gruber tackles Leo [Cowboy] Ackley. Richard Stahl and John Mason clash in one of three supplementary encounters. F. M.

Young Players Will Be Guests at Tennis Show

Five hundred aspiring youngsters who have shown proficiency in tennis will be the guests of the Chicago Tennis association in the first annual exhibition sponsored by the C. T. A. in Patten gymnasium, Northwestern university, on Friday.

The group has been selected from the Chicago public and parochial schools. Of particular interest to the students is the opening singles encounter between two young Chicagoans, Jimmy Evert and Gardner Larned. Evert, the national indoor boy champion, comes from Senn High and Larned is a product of Morgan Park.

Evert Defeats Larned.

So superior were Evert and Larned in district and sectional competition throughout the 1938 season, they wound up encountering each other in the final rounds of the Chicago city, Illinois state and Chicago center tournament. Evert, a tiny 110 pounder who is slightly more than five feet in height, defeated Larned in these events and then defeated him for the national title in the Seventh Regiment armory in New York. Larned is a six foot 151 pounder. Both are protégés of George J. O'Connell, professional at Chicago Town and Tennis club.

Members of the Chicago Junior Wightman cup and Junior Davis cup teams likewise will be guests of the association at the exhibition, proceeds of which will be used for the promotion of junior tennis development in the Chicago area.

Riggs Meets Sabin.

The Evert-Larned match will precede the singles between the United States Davis cup stars, Bobby Riggs of Chicago and Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore. In the doubles, Riggs and Frank Froehling, the Chicago inadoor champion, will meet Sabin and Johnny Shostrom, former western conference titleholder.

A feature of the program will be a Gay Nineties mixed doubles skit, with players and umpire attired in the tennis costumes of forty years ago.

sparring facilities for the New York team. Yesterday morning's workout was confined to floorwork, following the long ride on the train, but the boys will resume their boxing today.

Chicago's squad went through a short sparring session yesterday afternoon in the Illinois Athletic club, most of the boys going either one or two rounds. They've got their fighting wind now and find the three minute rounds well within their capabilities.

Prefer Longer Rounds.

During the Golden Gloves tournament rounds were limited to two minutes. Some of the more skillful boxers prefer the longer rounds, because it gives them more time to work on their opponents and wear them down.

Neither squad has any serious weight worries. A few of the boys are a trifle over the limit for their divisions, but they expect to be well within the requirements by weighing in time Wednesday.

Ciencia Heads List of 50 Entries in Pimlico Oaks

Baltimore, Md., March 25.—(AP)—Ciencia, the King ranch filly which won the $50,000 added Santa Anita Derby, heads a record list of nominees for the $10,000 added Pimlico Oaks, to be run May 6, the date of the Kentucky Derby.

Charles J. McLennan, racing secretary, announced today a list of fifty nominations for the richest race for 3 year old fillies.

PASTOR IS DUE TODAY FOR BOUT WITH STRICKLAND

Bob Pastor, New York heavyweight title holder, will arrive today for his ten round contest with Maurice Strickland of New Zealand in Chicago Stadium Friday. He will open workouts in Kid Howard's gymnasium at 73 West Randolph street this afternoon. Strickland has established training quarters in Trafton's gymnasium.

Pastor, 1934 New York intercity Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, will be making his first Chicago appearance since he scored a seven round technical knockout over Art Sykes of Elmira, N. Y., April 15, 1936.

During his absence Pastor has been campaigning with better than average success in the east and the far west. After the Sykes conquest Pastor engaged in twenty-six matches. He won twenty-one, eleven by knockouts. He also scored two draws and was defeated three times. One of his defeats was suffered at the hands of Joe Louis in Madison Square Garden a year ago last Jan. 29. Pastor's best achievement is a seven round knockout he scored over Ray Impellittiere in the Garden two years ago. Other notable feats include his ten round draw with Lou Nova a year ago in San Francisco.

Edward Patrick Comiskey, Paterson, N. J., heavyweight, whose Chicago debut against Joe Lubin in a Stadium supporting match was given considerable publicity, will be unable to go through with the contest because of an injured right hand. Comiskey suffered the injury in his six round draw fight with Gene Bonin in Madison Square Garden March 3, but it failed to respond to treatments.

As a result, Strickland, stablemate of Comiskey, arrived yesterday without Big Ed. Strickland was accompanied by his manager, Bill Daly; Trainer Johnny Lane, and Harry Kenny. Shortly after his arrival the rangy boxer did loosening up exercises in Trafton's gymnasium. He will start sparring sessions this afternoon. Supporting matches Friday:

Lem Franklin vs. Abe Simons [10], heavyweights.
Verle Davis vs. Nick Castiglione [6], 140.
Billy Miske Jr. vs. Buff Mellinger [6], heavyweights.
Al Globe vs. Pete Atkins [4], light heavyweights.

Leo, Ft. Wayne Gain Final of Loyola Meet

Tietz and John Hoban also stood out, the former getting two field goals and one free throw and Hoban scoring two baskets and two free throws.

St. George was one of three Chicago district teams to reach the semifinals, Leo and St. Ignatius also having triumphed. In quarter-final games during the afternoon St. George dropped St. Joseph of Collegeville, Ind., 33 to 30. St. Joseph had beaten Mount Carmel, Chicago Catholic league champion, in its previous game.

St. Ignatius Wins in Overtime.

Leo advanced to the semi-finals over St. Gregory of Shawnee, Okla., 40 to 24, and St. Ignatius scored over Calvert Hall of Baltimore, Md., 36 to 34, in an overtime battle.

The Fort Wayne quintet triumphed easily over St. Basil of Pittsburgh, 45 to 26. Dick Friend, St. Basil forward who set the tournament scoring record of 34 points in a first round game, was limited to one field goal by Central Catholic.

St. Xaxier of Louisville, Father Ryan of Nashville, Tenn., Immaculate Conception of Montclair, N. J., and Messmer of Milwaukee reached the consolation semi-finals.

WEST SIDE PHONE BOWLERS ROLL AMAZING, 3,216

Set New Record for Bell League.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

There's a team of bowlers who feel much like the Birk Brothers did the night they rolled their 3,234 that established an all time record for the American Bowling congress tournament in the Coliseum last spring.

The Franklin Building team of the West Side Bell Telephone league doesn't consider itself in the same classification with the Birks or the numerous other major league teams in Chicago, but the telephone boys are mighty proud of their 3,216 total rolled the other evening. They are happy to average around 925 and so the bowling fan can understand the cheering that accompanied their big series, which permitted them to average 1,072 for one evening.

This 3,216 total was the highest ever registered for the West Side Bell league. The former mark of 3,121 also was the property of the Franklin Building quintet. Leading contributors to the new mark were George Sandberg with 730, a new all time singles record; Bill Grossklas, 686, and Phil Tengstrand, 658.

On North Side Alleys.

Joe Sinke, anchor man for the Joseph L. Gills, and Herb Freitag, anchor for the Williams Jewelers, each shot a second game of 278 in a thrilling match in the Gold Coast Major league. The Gills took the series, two out of three games, and preserved their two game lead over the Triangle Shirts. Both Sinke and Freitag exceeded 700, the former hitting 750 and the latter 706. . . . The Wallace Coals have increased their lead to six games over the Samuelson Kids in the Samuelson Major league. Walter Schuster took individual honors with 629. . . . Roy Ott crashed through with a 700 series that helped Monte Carlo Recreation win three games in the Greater Chicago Traveling league.

Randolph League.

The Birk Brothers, defending champions in the Randolph league, are just about out of the race for the 1938-'39 title. They lost six games in a row, encountering the Whitecaps, who totaled 3,187, and the Burlington Routes, who hung up 3,210. While the Burlingtons were picking on the champions Barney Grogan shot a new high season series of 779 on games of 268, 235, and 276. The standing now shows the Gills leading with 55 won and 23 lost, the Budweisers second with 50-28, and the Birks third with 50-31.

Windy City Major League.

The Congressman Maciejewski team dimmed the hopes of Quality Wet Wash in the Windy City Major league by shooting three 1,000 games and sweeping their series. This enabled the Mineralites to tie the Qualities for third place and the first place Budweisers and second place Whitecaps to draw away. Both leading teams won two out of three and remain one game apart.

North End Traveling League.

The Birk Brothers, A. B. C. titleholders and champions of the North End Traveling league for the last three seasons, are just about out of the running for the 1939 league title. The Birks dropped a pair of games to the Joseph L. Gills and are now five behind Fox De Luxe, who outscored the Kruse Stations, 3,153 to 3,130, and added two more games to their victory column. Assuming that the Foxes win only twelve of their remaining twenty-one games, the Birks can lose only three more games and need eighteen victories to beat them out.

On South Side Alleys.

Eden Insurance, with 65 victories and 23 defeats, is all alone in first place in the Stevenson major league. That came about when the Edens won two games from the Wesley Smiths and the Budweisers dropped a pair to Sexauer and Krueger. The two defeats threw the Budweisers into a tie for second place at 64-24, with De Young Fuel, which swept its series with Tyson Liquors. E. Hart and P. Konapka tied for high series at 658. . . . The Milo Weisner Recreation blasted out a 3,349 series on games of 1,134, 1,115, 1,100 in the Bruck major league.

About the Women.

The Budweiser Girls totaled 2,768 for high series of the week in the Congress league and picked up three more victories. Their standing now is 86 won and 13 lost, a margin of twelve games over the Pabsts. High individuals were: Betty Bullerman, 594; Catherine Fellmuth, 588; Lee Leipe, 578; Freida Tanner, 575; Jessie Dommermuth, 574; Tina Underhill, 568; Betty Ramsey, 567, and Irene Engel, 560. . . . Ethel Kelly helped herself to 640 on games of 188, 248, and 204 in the Stevenson Recreation Handicap league. Peggy Rall had 531; Flo Waterman, 524, and Lillian Arthur, 518. . . . Honors in the Stevenson Major league went to Laila Gierman with 596. Next were: Alice Weber, 564; Lola Baunsh, 559, and Ellen Johnson, 549. . . . Myrtle Heger knocked off a 613 series in the Pioneer Major league. Viola Matson had 571, and Emma Kleinschmidt, 543. . . . The best shooters in the Pioneer Senior league were: Geraldine Keating, 557; Dorothy Buhman, 532; Clara Hartwig, 523, and Frances Thompson, 518.

Here and There.

The National Lithuanian tournament will be rolled on April 29, 30, May 6 and 7 on the Twenty Grand alleys in Detroit. Stanley Stanulis, 7163 Linsdale, Detroit, is secretary. . . . Entries will close today for the Holy Name society's tenth annual tournament, which will begin April 10 on the C. Y. O. center alleys. Leroy Timmins, 6418 North Seeley avenue, is secretary. . . . A team from San Mateo, Cal., which will compete in the A. B. C. in Cleveland next weekend, will arrive in Chicago today. This evening the Californians will bowl the Goldammer All-Stars in the 20th Century recreation and tomorrow night they will meet the Baby Ruths on the same alleys.

OPEN STUDY OF STATE HIGHWAYS ON WEDNESDAY

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—A joint senate and house committee will hold its first meeting Wednesday night on its assignment to evolve a future highway policy for Illinois. Prof. C. C. Wiley of the University of Illinois engineering school and Prof. Charles M. Kneier of the university's political science school are to be asked to serve as consultants in the study.

Ernest Lieberman, chief highway engineer, today made public additional financial figures that will be considered by this committee. He said that $63,000,000 would be needed by his department in 1940 if it were to catch up with the progressive wear and tear on the pavements. This is $26,000,000 more than estimates of $37,000,000 department receipts from license fees, gasoline tax, and federal aid.

$39,000,000 for Replacement.

The engineer's outlook for 1940 requirements includes $39,000,000 for replacement of approximately 780 miles of worn-out slab on main trafic routes. His survey shows that the pavements are being destroyed by weather and by trafic at a rate of 330 miles a year. His forecast is that revenue at the present rate will not be adequate for the replacement until after 1961 when outstanding bonds are retired. Interest and retirement on these bonds will cost $9,840,000 in 1940.

This deficit is threat of an increase in the gasoline tax rate. The threat becomes more intimate when considered in connection with Mayor Edward J. Kelly's proposal for $100,000,000 worth of superhighway construction in Chicago and Acting Governor John Stelle's companion proposal for $40,000,000 worth of secondary road building downstate.

20 Year Obligation on Gas Tax.

Under these plans the state would raise $80,000,000 by obligating its gasoline tax revenue for the next twenty years, $40,000,000 for expenditure in Chicago and $40,000,000 for expenditure downstate. To retire this obligation at 6 per cent interest would call for annual interest and principal payments in round figures ranging from $8,800,000 to $4,000,000. The average would be $2,400,000 in interest plus $4,000,000 in principal. Total interest at 6 per cent, the maximum authorized under the pending enabling legislation, would be $48,000,000.

If part of the $80,000,000 were borrowed from other state funds, an interest rate of 2 per cent might be charged with a proportionate reduction in the interest obligation against future gasoline tax collections.

In addition to this state obligation Chicago's superhighway program would also have the city and Cook county raise $30,000,000 each by pledging their gasoline tax revenues.

The state's annual replacement obligations, 330 miles at $50,000 a mile, plus the average obligation on the proposed $80,000,000 in gas tax notes, would aggregate $22,900,000. This would not provide for any deathproof type of construction outside of Chicago.

To pay this $22,900,000 yearly bill the highway department has $8,000,000 a year, now spent in construction. This apparent deficit of $14,900,000 would be enlarged by any superhighway construction on main routes such as advocated by the Chicago Motor club to reduce the accident toll and to stimulate motor travel and thus to stimulate gas tax revenue without increasing the rate.

The Illinois Municipal league also is looking for more pavement work. It is sponsoring a resolution asking for the highway department to report to the legislature on the repair, construction, and modernization requirements on city and village streets throughout the state.

Cities' Revenue Shrinks.

"The trafic within municipalities generates 60.9 per cent of all gasoline tax revenue in Illinois," said A. D. McLarty, secretary of the league. "The cities' revenue from property taxes for street work has shrunk during the depression. They are entitled to consideration in a new highway policy for this state.

"Cities are particularly interested in removing through trafic from business streets. This is to reduce accidents, to facilitate travel, and to accommodate shoppers. Merchants no longer welcome passing trafic on their main streets. They appreciate that this travel brings little business and that the hazard and inconvenience detracts from the capacity of the street to cater to shoppers.

NEWS AND VIEWS

An extensive campaign has been started by leading automobile financing companies to acquaint the public with details of the operations. Among these are the General Motors Acceptance corporation, which finances General Motors products, and the Universal Credit company, which finances Ford cars.

"Most persons think there is something mysterious about the figures in time payment plans," R. W. Moore, manager of the Chicago branch of GMAC, said. "However, it is possible for the car buyer to know in advance just what the cost is and that costs are not more than they should be. We are sending car purchasers a chart similar to that used by dealers which enables the buyer to figure out his own charges."

Ernest Kanzler, president of Universal Credit, says there are from 400 to 1,000 different companies offering automobile financing services. In view of the magnitude of automobile financing he said his company felt it should help acquaint the public with the details.

Harry Hartz, former automobile race driver, was in Chicago last week to tell members of Chevrolet's truck division about the results of a 60,000 mile test with a Chevrolet truck. During the run Hartz, with Stanley Reed of the American Automobile association as observer, visited every state. The truck averaged 15.37 miles per gallon of gasoline at an average speed of 32.41 miles per hour. Cut down speed to reduce operating costs, Hartz advises.

Dodge dealers in the Chicago district met in the Stevens hotel on Friday for an open forum discussion of business and a review of sales. J. W. Hutchins, assistant general sales manager of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation, discussed the changes in sales methods through the years. Although the successful dealer today operates his business along the lines developed in modern merchandising procedures, there is plenty of room for originality, he declared.

Substantial gains in Buick sales in the Chicago area, reflecting the business improvement, were reported yesterday by C. C. Edmonds, manager of the Chicago zone of the Buick division of General Motors. He said deliveries of Buicks in the Chicago area in the first 10 days of March were 151 per cent greater than in the like 1938 period.

Harry T. Hollingshead, Nash distributor for the Chicago area, declares that the use of foamed rubber seat cushions lessens the fatigue of both driver and passengers. Sponge foam cushions, such as are used in the new Nashes, are made from the pure milk of rubber trees. To create a highly resilient substance the fluid is whipped until it produces a foamy structure. Air cells make possible the flow of air through the material, he added, which makes for a cooler ride.

Plymouth is stressing the new headlights on its 1939 models. These lights are said to reduce glare while keeping full illumination of the road ahead. The lamp housings are built in as a rigid part of the fender units, permanently fixed where they cannot be twisted out of line. New reflectors are carried in cradles which are directly controled by two screws at the tops of the headlights. These screws may be adjusted to give more positive light aiming.

TRIBUNE WILL DISTRIBUTE FREE HIGHWAY MAPS

Follows the Style Adopted Two Years Ago.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—The state's 1939 highway map is now available for public distribution. It is free. Copies may be obtained at The Tribune's Public Service offices, Madison and Dearborn streets and in Tribune Tower, Chicago, within a few days. They may also be obtained by writing to F. Lynden Smith, director of public works, Springfield, Ill.

The map follows the color and style adopted two years ago, with pavements in black on an old ivory background. State parks, memorials, and other points of tourist interest are identified by red legend. Rivers and lakes are shown in blue. Indices aid in locating cities and villages, historical markers, state institutions, colleges and universities, parks, monuments and museums, forests and game preserves. On one side of the sheet are separate maps, in larger scale, of Chicago and vicinity, of Rock Island, Moline, Peoria, Springfield, Rockford, and East St. Louis.

Changes Made in Routes.

Several changes have been made in the routes of numbered roads, mainly to take advantage of pavement improvements in the last year. Illinois 4-A now is on Archer avenue from 55th street northeast to Cermak road, thence east on Cermak road to Michigan boulevard. Illinois 7 is extended north in Western avenue to Archer avenue. Illinois 22 is ended at Skokie road, west of Highland Park.

Illinois 53 is relocated over new construction north of Roosevelt road, removing the markers from Glen Ellyn streets. Illinois 54 is relocated on new construction south of North avenue, removing the numbers from Elmhurst streets.

Posted on New Pavement.

Illinois 59-A is posted on new pavement between Sheridan road and Waukegan road north of Fort Sheridan.

U. S. 12 is marked over new construction south and west of Lake Zurich.

Similar changes have been made downstate.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

A SOUTH BELOIT ARREST.

Dixon, Ill., March 18.—I have admired the work you have done regarding the cleaning up of speed traps. I am wondering if you have had any complaints from South Beloit.

Yesterday I was picked up there and had to post a cash bond of $13.40, which was the amount of the fine before I could proceed on my way.

I was picked up about a mile south of the town, at which time I was doing 50, as the instant I heard the siren I looked at my speedometer. The officer claimed he had checked me for two blocks in a 30 mile zone and that I was doing 55.

I asked just where this zone was. It was just three blocks from the railroad tracks where I had waited for a train to pass. I told the officer and police magistrate that I did not believe my car could pick up to this speed in so short a distance, also that I was positive that I had been increasing my speed to the place where the officer had stopped me and not decreasing it. I doubt very much if I was doing more than 40 and probably not over 35 at this particular place.

I had passed no cars in either direction. The thing that really burned me up was the treatment and the fact the officer [Tony Auratolo], who could not speak good English, wanted to know my nationality. I had to post the cash bond of $13.40 and am to appear April 17.

AUTO TAX DODGERS.

Chicago, March 20.—This is current talk among hundreds of motorists who try to live up to the rules and regulations of driving a car in Chicago.

The law plainly states that on Jan. 1 every motorist shall have a license plate of the current year, and, in Chicago, a city sticker showing that the vehicle tax has been paid. In addition, another sticker, showing that the car has been inspected and passed for operating efficiency, must be displayed.

More than ten weeks after Jan. 1 the streets are filled with cars violating all three of these laws.

If there is any excuse for this lack of law enforcement please let your readers know about it. Last December the writer took time out to comply with these rules and live up to the rules. It is rather disheartening to see violators daily going about their business undisturbed by those who are supposed to enforce the laws.

In other words, why should I obey the law—paying out good money—while others keep their money and ignore the law? Next year I will not buy any state license, city license, or drivers' license until a policeman tells me I must. And it will probably be in June or July.

WIDEN AT CURVES AND HILLS.

Chicago, March 19.—I would like to comment on your excellent cartoon, "Inviting the Undertaker."

This setup in road construction is one of the major causes of our continued massacre of thousands of automobilists throughout the nation.

The remedy can be brought about by introducing a bill in all states to compel all highways where curves occur to be widened at least to fourway lanes, with suitable marking of center division. Said widening should extend to the point of clearance ahead for safe driving.

THE TRIBUNE can play an important rôle in bringing about such vital measures to check the death toll in the automobile massacre. JOHN MORRISON.

PARKING.

Chicago, March 22.—My pet peeve is driving down a "three car" street and being forced to pull over or wait for a passing car because inconsiderate motorists have parked opposite each other. A law forcing motorists to park on one side of the street only would greatly aid trafic on narrow streets.

BOSTWICK WINS 2 RACES IN AIKEN HUNTS MEETING

Steals Show as He Also Scores a Second.

Aiken, S. C., March 25.—[Special.]—George H. [Pete] Bostwick, one of the best amateur riders in the country and the guiding spirit of the annual hunts meet of the Aiken Mile Track association, stole his own show today. He not only rode his own Masked Knight to victory in the Imperial cup handicap feature event, but scored with his Nellie Bly on the flat and just missed in the final race when he finished second.

In winning the Imperial cup he gained a leg on the trophy which he won in England a few years ago and put into competition here last year. Masked Knight finished three lengths in front of Mrs. Lewis A. Park's Royal Thomas with the Northwood stable's Barrystar third among the five starters.

Second for Masked Knight.

Bostwick was riding at his best and his triumph in the Imperial cup with Masked Knight was his second score with that horse in the brief hunts season. He had won with him at Pinehurst last week. Masked Knight, a son of Pompey, was an odds on favorite for the Imperial cup, going to the post at 4 to 5.

His owner rode him cleverly. He dropped into third place at the start of the two mile hurdle test while John Hay Whitney's Fencing Song and the Northwood stable's Barrystar raced with each other in front.

Bostwick did not make a move until passing the stands on the first turn when he moved into the lead. Through the turn to the back stretch he raced Fencing Song into submission. Royal Thomas, in light with 143 pounds, moved into contention at that point and made a bold bid but Masked Knight drew out easily after taking the last fence and had three lengths to spare at the end.

Moves Up Gradually.

With Nellie Bly in the Sand River purse at seven furlongs on the flat, Bostwick's mount was knocked back going to the first turn but went up gradually and came to the front in the stretch run to win handily from S. A. Warner Baltazzi's Planter's Punch with John Hay Whitney's Button Button third.

In the final race, at a mile and a quarter on the flat, Bostwick had his West Haddon well up in front in the early running, disposed of Land of Rheims but turning for the stretch Enterprise from the Rokeby stables of Paul Mellon rushed up on the outside and scored by two lengths. West Haddon had half a dozen lengths to spare in saving second from Mrs. Reginald Sinclair's Better Brook.

FISHING FEVER EASY TO CATCH AT THIS SEASON

BY BOB BECKER.

Fishermen in the northern tier of states, the ones that are snowbound during the winter, may be depended on to develop real cases of "angloitis," the fishing fever at this time of the year. To get an attack of this delightful disease all the boys have to do is to pause in front of a tackle store window, press their noses against the thick glass, gaze at all the shiny new rods, the tricky lures, and the 1939 models of gay colored plugs, and immediately they begin to run a temperature.

There are a number of new and attractive fishing gadgets waiting to waylay the unwary fisherman this spring and tempt him to try them a little later when the streams and lakes are ready for the 1939 fishing seasons. For example, there's an underwater, wiggling lure with streamlined fins and spinners to add flash and life to the lure, wabbling spoons that are weedless, metal underwater lures with rubber streamers and plenty of wiggles, and new bass and panfish flies for the fly rod fishermen. There are scores of other fish foolers to make the anglers dream of warmer days and the first fishing trips of the year.

Anti-Backlash Lures Help.

One of the greatest contributions to the peace of mind and angling efficiency of the fisherman who doesn't do a lot of bait casting and thus hasn't become an expert in tossing lures, are the new anti-backlash reels of moderate price. We have tried one of these reels. It is synchronized so nicely that one doesn't need his thumb for any pressure on it. When we tried a few experimental casts with it we just let go and cast as if we didn't know about applying thumb pressure on a reel. The casting weight went out freely, the reel slowed down nicely, and there was no backlash whatsoever. We have a hunch that these reels will make a hit with thousands of fishermen who do not have time to practice casting.

Balanced tackle also is getting much attention from the fly fishermen this spring. It's possible to acquire a complete outfit so assembled that it is a balanced unit of rod, reel, and line.

Tips in Tribune Booklet.

All fresh water fishermen will find many tips and practical suggestions on where to look for fish and which lures to use in the TRIBUNE's guide, "Which Lures and Where." This valuable little handbook is profusely illustrated. It shows scores of bass lures, muskie baits, flies for bass and panfish, trout patterns, and other items which the angler needs for successful angling. "Which Lures and Where" [now in its second edition] is sold by THE TRIBUNE public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, for 30 cents by mail. Orders with remittances may be sent direct to that office.

McCarthy, Ex-Notre Dame Star, Signs with Spencers

Jack McCarthy, former Notre Dame football and baseball player, yesterday signed a contract with the Spencer Coals baseball team. McCarthy, one of the back field stars of the 1937 Irish eleven, also played in the infield on the Irish baseball team. Nate H. Shyer, manager of the Coals, plans to use McCarthy at second base or shortstop. The club will begin spring training next week.

NOTED PUREBRED DOGS ON VIEW IN SHOW SATURDAY

East-West Competition to Reach New High.

Hundreds of pure-bred dogs from all over the United States will move into Chicago this week to make this city the center of interest for thousands of American and Canadian dog fanciers. The occasion is the thirty-eighth annual bench show of the International Kennel club, which opens Saturday morning in the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets.

This congress of purebreds continues through Sunday evening, when the most exciting event of the show, picking the best dog in the show, is held. The Chicago show is the second largest all breed event held indoors in America and the largest in the central states.

Famous Breeds Entered.

When the entries for the show closed last night C. Groverman Ellis, president of the International Kennel club, said that Chicago dog fanciers are assured of seeing some of the most famous purebred dogs in the country at this year's Chicago event, for in addition to a heavy entry from Chicagoland kennels many of the best known show dogs from Canada, California, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, and other distant points will be on view.

Competition between eastern and western dogs, always productive of great rivalry in the Chicago event, promises to be unusually keen this year, club officials asserted. Chicagoland kennels, which feature the breeding of show stock or have imported well known show dogs from Europe, have been getting ready for some weeks. One Chicagoland kennel which won a number of ribbons and high honors at the Westminster Kennel club show in New York, has entered twelve terriers, including four champions, and two other top notch show dogs for competition next week-end.

Dobermann Heads Eastern List.

Heading the list of eastern show dogs is the imported Dobermann, Ferry v. Rauhfelsen, which was judged the best of 3,070 dogs entered in the recent Westminster Kennel club show. This Dobermann, which arrived in America just a few weeks before it stepped into the ring in New York, is owned by Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge of Madison, N. J. Herman Rinckton, the dachshund that was the best American bred hound winner in 1938, and Blakeen Jungfrau, white poodle, picked as the outstanding American bred dog of 1938, are two other nationally known show dogs which are coming to Chicago.

Nineteen judges have the task of weeding out the hopefuls from the winners in the show. The judging list is as follows: William S. Baer, Rehoboth, Del.; Ralph C. Craig, Albany, N. Y.; William L. Day, New York, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Delmont, Wynnewood, Pa.; F. H. Farwell, Orange, Tex.; Anton Korbel, Burlingame, Cal.; J. N. Levine, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. M. C. McGlone, New York, N. Y.; Victor Moench, Lackawanna, N. Y.; Dr. S. E. Ochsner, Milwaukee, Wis.; Edwin L. Pickhardt, Minneapolis, Minn.; William H. Pym, Vancouver, B. C.; Walter H. Reeves, E. Belleville, Ontario, Canada; John Wallace Scott, Earleville, Md.; George S. Thomas, South Hamilton, Mass., and Lewis S. Worden, New York, N. Y.

Plan Amateur Judging Contest.

C. E. Harbison, manager of the Chicago show, announced last night that 26 entries had been received for a new feature of this year's show, an amateur dog judging contest for those between 14 and 21 years old. This contest class will be held Friday afternoon, opening the show.

INDUSTRY SHOWS VARIED RESULTS IN MIDDLE WEST

February Employment Up Less than Usual.

Production trends in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district varied in February, and industrial employment showed a less than seasonal gain, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

George J. Schaller.

George J. Schaller, president of the bank, said in a summary of business conditions that steel production, stove and furnace making, building awards, and furniture shipments were among the branches of activity which gained, as compared with January. Among those which declined he listed automobile output, steel casting foundry production, and paper mill activity.

Current Conditions Better.

Current conditions, however, represent much improvement as compared with the low levels prevailing a year ago, Schaller said.

Failure of employment and payrolls to increase as much as usual was attributed by Schaller to declines in the metals and vehicle industries in Michigan. The report said the number of workers employed in the district in February was 5 per cent larger than a year earlier, and that wage payments were 15 per cent higher.

"A steady rise took place through February and into March in primary steel production of the Chicago area," the report said. "In the second week of March, however, output dropped slightly.

Auto Production Compared.

"Production of automobiles declined somewhat more than seasonally in February, although totaling more than half again as large as in the month last year."

Schaller said production and sales of packing house commodities showed the usual February decline. Production was reported to be below year ago levels. Sales tonnage, the survey indicated, exceeded output.

Improvement in March.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—The federal reserve board reported today that industrial activity and trade in the first three weeks of March scored "seasonal increases."

In February, the board said, industrial activity held at the January rate without the usual rise and retail trade increased less than seasonally.

ONE WAY PROXIES.

Streamlining of annual reports to common stockholders occupies the attention of business men to an increasing degree at the present time. Reams of space, offering many suggestions, are being devoted to this point in business publications. Some companies, quick to sense the opportunity, have turned annual reports almost into X-rays of their operations. Other companies are issuing separate reports to their employés.

Investors' Guide indorses these practices. We have long felt that stockholders are entitled to know more about the companies they own.

The present clamor for cultivating the good will of stockholders, however, has overlooked to a great extent the matter of proxies. It has long been general practice, of course, for companies to send proxy solicitations along with annual reports or with notices of the yearly stockholders' meeting. Until business can work out a really fair system through which the holder of a few shares in a distant company can have a proper voice in its management by voting personally, we must accept this evil.

We cannot ascribe, however, to the practice of so-called one way proxies. In this type of solicitation the common stockholder is in effect being told to cast his lot, sight unseen, with the management's choice or not at all. It's a case of conforming to the management's ideas or else.

The Securities and Exchange commission issued an order recently requiring corporations whose securities are listed to advise stockholders, when soliciting proxies, of the names of the proposed candidates for directors and to tell the amount of their stock holdings.

George A. Ranney, chairman of the board of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, pointed out at the company's annual stockholders' meeting last month that the commission's order "is a step in the right direction."

Ranney also said, however, that the commission did not go far enough. "I think," he asserted, "that stockholders are also entitled to know something more than the mere name of the candidate and his stock holding so that they may be in a better position to judge whether he is qualified to serve."

Better still, companies could provide for the nomination of directors by stockholders. And certainly on questions of policy requiring the approval of stockholders, they should be allowed to vote "yes" or "no"—and not just "yes."

Investors' Guide is aware that indifferent stockholders are in part to blame for the one way proxy abuse. However, it does not seem to us to be asking too much for management to come half-way. A forward-looking company could not afford to miss this bet in strengthening its relationship with its stockholders who form an imposing circle of customers.

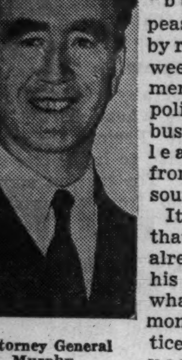
MURPHY READY TO ADD BIT TO BUSINESS PEACE

Soon Will Redefine Anti-Trust Policy.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Attorney General Frank Murphy plans to add his bit to the administration's purported "business appeasement" drive by redefining next week the government's anti-trust policy in favor of business, it was learned today from reliable sources.



Attorney General Murphy.

It is understood that Murphy has already drafted his definition of what constitutes monopolistic practice and that his version represents a modification of the recent crack-down, trust-busting action which has chilled the veins of free enterprise. Such a statement by Murphy would have an immediate beneficial effect on business, it is generally agreed. Such action would also be in line with other recent attempts of the administration to abate business fears and bring on a long-awaited recovery.

Business Is Skeptical.

Business would probably show some degree of skepticism, asking that the soothing words be followed by comparable action, just as it has done on the promises of tax revision, which still are far from certain. But the general effect would be favorable, it was said.

Anyway, the administration does not plan to ask any new monopoly laws in the near future, because they would certainly act as "business deterrents" and might also prove "election deterrents," as 1940 is getting uncomfortably close from a New Deal standpoint.

The decision to hold off further anti-trust legislation was reported at a recent meeting of Democratic senate leaders with Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. They believe that it would be inadvisable for congress to take action on anti-trust legislation during the present session and possibly during the present congress, which will extend well into the national election year of 1940.

In the meantime, the joint monopoly investigating committee, headed by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], will continue its hearings and gather voluminous data in preparation for some future legislation on the subject—when the political and economic crisis have passed.

The committee has been working with a $500,000 appropriation and O'Mahoney announced recently that he would ask a total authorization of $2,000,000 for the committee and an immediate appropriation of $600,000 to carry on its work into 1940.

The administration's anti-trust drive since 1937 has in its wake the fields of automobile financing, motion pictures, tire manufacturing, milk distribution, utilities, medicine, aluminum, and oil.

CURB ON MARGIN TRADES DELAYED BY N.Y. EXCHANGE

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Margin trading restrictions on members of the New York Stock exchange have been postponed from an April 1 enforcement date at least until July 1, according to an exchange announcement today. Postponement came after an agreement with the Securities and Exchange commission.

The announcement explained that the section dealing with members' margin accounts, adopted by the exchange board of governors as part of the fifteen point program of Oct. 26, was merely a statement of policy.

It declared that, after April 1 this year, no firm carrying margin accounts for the general public and no partner of such a firm might trade in margin accounts with their own firm or any other member firm. Bank loans and underwriting activities were expected. So far no rule to implement this policy has been passed.

Stelle Will Ask Governors to Fight Rail Rate Change

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—Acting Gov. John Stelle today said he would ask governors of four other midwestern states to meet March 30 in Chicago to plan a united protest against a petition before the interstate commerce commission asking equality of southern and northern railroad freight rates. Governors of southern states are asking the interstate commerce commission to remove the 20 per cent rate differential now favoring northern states on certain commercial goods.

167,650 Own Common Stock of U. S. Steel

The United States Steel corporation now has more stockholders than in 1929, when stock prices were soaring in the "great bull market" and speculation was the favorite topic of conversation. A compilation issued yesterday placed the number owning its common shares at 167,750 as of March 4, against 103,571 in the first quarter of 1929.

This increase in the company's family of stockholders follows the trend shown by virtually all big corporations in recent years and is evidence of the widespread ownership of American industry.

66,714 Preferred Owners.

Dividend checks went to 66,714 individual owners of the corporation's preferred stock in the first quarter of 1939, compared with 65,979 in the corresponding period ten years ago.

The number of common shareholders of United States Steel reached a peak of 192,384 in 1933, when stock prices were down around their lowest depression levels. The latest figure on preferred stockholders is the highest for any first quarter in the last ten years.

Stockholders were scattered throughout every state in the United States and in virtually every country in the world, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of the board, said in his annual report for 1938, recently published.

Men Are Largest Owners.

Men constitued the largest group of owners, holding 47.08 per cent of the stock. Women held 41.42 per cent of the total. Charitable, religious, and educational organizations owned 0.42 per cent; insurance companies, 0.07 per cent; trustees and guardians, 4.55 per cent, and all others, including brokers, 6.46 per cent.

At the close of 1938, about 38,000 United States Steel employés owned 64,500 shares of the preferred stock and 634,400 shares of common.

COAL MINE PAY SCALE STUDIED BY NEGOTIATORS

New York, March 25.—[U. P.]—Proposals by the United Mine Workers relative to a new contract in the eastern bituminous districts were studied privately today by negotiators for the union and the operators. Their joint conference was recessed yesterday until Monday.

In a statement signed jointly by operators and miners it was announced that the recess was taken "because of certain discussions and procedure for settlement of disputes arising under the agreement that have been proposed by the mine workers, as well as a resolution offered by them providing for an inestigation and the creation of a mechanized mining commission."

FIREPROOF PLASTER MAY MEAN NEW ERA IN BUILDING FIELD

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 25.—(AP)—A new fireproof plaster which may lead to a new era in building construction was announced today by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research. The new lightweight protective covering is designed particularly as a safeguard for steel beams, which buckle when exposed to prolonged intense heat.

The discovery consists of an expanded vermiculite and gypsum composition. Institute officials said it was given an official fire resistance rating of 5 hours and 44 minutes by the national bureau of standards. Research on the method lasted four years.

NAZIS ANNOUNCE TRADE ACCORD WITH HOLLAND

BERLIN, March 25.—(AP)—Germany and The Netherlands have reached a new trade agreement after ten days of negotiations, it was announced tonight. No details of the new agreement were disclosed. It is effective April 1.

The official news agency said:

"In mutual confidence in the permanency of economic relations between Germany and The Netherlands, the agreement has been concluded for a long period for the first time, that is, until Dec. 31, 1940, in contrast to previous short term agreements."

Belgian Talks Concluded.

BERLIN, March 25.—[U.P.]—Germany today announced that a Belgian-German commission had concluded talks for a commodities exchange between Germany and the Belgium-Luxemburg customs union, as well as on the question of credit transfers.

It was announced that in their talks, started at Berlin March 17, the commissioners "discussed in friendly spirit" the details of the exchanges.

CITY IN ILLINOIS WILL TEST FOOD STAMP PROGRAM

A downstate Illinois city of 50,000 to 100,000 population will be one of six in the country selected for tests of the commodity stamp plan for distributing surplus foods to persons on relief. This was announced yesterday by J. Frank Grimes, chairman of the national food and grocery conference committee.

Towns that are eligible so far as size is concerned include Peoria, Rockford, Springfield, and Decatur. Grimes said cities chosen must be places where relief is well organized and administered, WPA is active, and retailers and wholesalers are agreeable to the plan. Tests will begin April 14.

The stamp plan was drafted by the department of agriculture and the food committee. Under it relief clients can obtain surplus farm products at grocery stores instead of through government distribution agencies.

Knudsen of General Motors Says He's PopBottle Dodger

Rails Report Better Results Than Year Ago

The Burlington yesterday reported $333,454 net railway operating income for February in contrast with a deficit a year earlier, and the North Western announced it had reduced its net operating deficit. Most of the other railroads reporting also showed better results than a year ago, either in the form of increased revenues or smaller losses.

The Burlington's net railway operating income for last month compared with a deficit of $120,155 in February, 1938. For the first two months of 1939 the road had a net railway operating income of $1,085,938, against a net operating deficit of $88,144 in the corresponding 1938 period.

North Western Cuts Deficit.

The North Western's February net railway operating deficit was $668,825, against a deficit of $829,225 in the 1938 month. The two months' deficit figures for 1939 and 1938, respectively, were $883,572 and $1,609,020.

The Northern Pacific reduced its February net railway operating deficit to $213,732 from $258,062 in the 1938 month. For the first two months of this year the road had a net railway operating income of $57,478, against an operating deficit of $559,437 in the first two 1938 months.

The Delaware and Hudson reported net operating income of $258,801 last month, against $62,897 in February, 1938. The two month figures for 1939 and 1938, respectively, were $787,709 and $86,596.

The Norfolk and Western had net income of $1,742,512 in February, equal to $1.18 a share, compared with $532,802, or 32 cents a share, in the 1938 month. Net income for the first two months of this year was $3,702,783, equal to $2.52 a share, against $1,242,204, or 77 cents a share, in the 1938 period.

February Building Permits About 2½ Times Year Ago

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins reported today that permit valuations for residential construction in February were about two and a half times as large as during February, 1938. Building permits issued in February for homes were 21 per cent higher in value than those of January, the report said.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

One of our clients, the manufacturer of a high quality specialty for home use, seeks a distributor for the Chicago and Mid-West territory.

The product is outstanding in its field, and has two years of proven merit and salability to its credit. It is sold through dealers and direct to consumers through leads produced by newspaper advertising.

The manufacturer can be relied upon for close cooperation and has substantial experience in building sales of this item.

Capital of about $10,000 is desirable, although merchandising and direct selling experience are primary requisites.

The manufacturer's representative will be in Chicago two weeks from today. He will be glad to make an appointment, and to discuss their proposition in detail.

BUSINESS MOVES CAUTIOUSLY AS EUROPE BICKERS

Some Lines Gain, but Others Decline.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Troublous times in Europe last week injected a feeling of uncertainty into American business, which on the average made no progress. Trends in various lines of effort made a ragged showing, and the few bright spots which appeared were clouded by results in other fields where there were declines against the normal seasonal trend.

Retail trade was hindered by unfavorable weather in many parts of the country, and wholesale orders for future delivery shrank as tension abroad caused merchants to be hesitant about committing themselves too far in advance.

The securities markets were on pins and needles, and dealers in foreign goods were much concerned about the effects which German seizure of Czecho-Slovakia will have on trade in Czech goods.

Gold Pours Into U. S.

Gold from nervous old world countries poured into the United States for safekeeping, straining shipping facilities. Meantime, war risk insurance underwriters decided to increase their rates, beginning this week, to the highest levels since last September's war scare.

At home a development regarded by business as favorable was the administration's indication that it will permit modification of the social security program. Statements by President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau were interpreted as meaning that the old age pension reserve will be slashed, the security program put on a modified pay as you go system and the scheduled pay roll tax increases postponed or lightened to aid business. These reforms had been demanded by administration critics.

Roosevelt Opposes Tax Cut.

Earlier in the week President Roosevelt had warned that there will be no reduction in the total taxes of all kinds now paid by corporations. If excess profits, capital stock and undistributed profits levies are reduced or removed, he said, corresponding increases must be made in federal corporation income taxes.

In industry two of the leading indices of activity which gained were those for automobile production and railroad freight loadings. The output of cars and trucks totaled 89,400 units, compared with 86,725 in the preceding week and 56,900 in the corresponding 1938 week.

Railroad freight car loadings in the week ended March 18, the latest period reported upon, rose to 594,568 cars, or 0.5 per cent more than a week earlier and 10 per cent more than in the corresponding 1938 week.

Freight Gains Predicted.

Next quarter's freight shipments will exceed those of the second 1938 quarter by 6.7 per cent in the middle west, the Midwest Shippers' Advisory board predicted. Gains also were predicted by the Great Lakes and the Northwest advisory boards for their respective areas.

Engineering construction awards last week increased to $57,893,000 from $46,449,000 a week earlier and $49,149,000 a year earlier. Residential construction also expanded. Another commonly cited index which improved was the volume of bank clearings in twenty-two leading cities. The total was $6,026,673,000, or 16.2 per cent more than a year ago, and $368,880,000 above the level of the preceding week. Income tax payments and mid-month settlements were important factors in the increase.

Steel Production Declines.

Steel production declined, with mills operating at 55.4 per cent of capacity, compared with 55.7 per cent in the preceding week and 33.7 per cent in the 1938 week. The week's decline came at a time when the steel industry usually is expanding. The trade journal Iron Age said the slackening is regarded as only temporary.

Production of electric power declined to 2,225,486,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended March 18. The comparative figures for a week and a year earlier were 2,237,935,000 and 2,017,653,000 kilowatt hours, respectively.

The amount of new financing increased to $47,197,750 from $15,585,000 in the preceding week and $8,345,000 in the 1938 week.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity stood at 87.9 per cent of the 1929-'30 average, the

U. S. Foreign Trade Below 1938 Volume

A shrinkage in United States foreign trade in February compared with a year earlier was disclosed yesterday in a report by the department of commerce. Exports of goods last month were valued at $218,559,000 against $261,835,000 in February, 1938, the department said. Imports were $158,035,000 against $162,951,000 in the 1938 month.

The excess of exports over imports, the so-called "favorable balance of trade," dropped to $60,524,000 last month, from $98,884,000 in February, 1938.

The February volume of imports also was less than in January, when shipments into this country were worth $178,201,000. However last month's exports increased compared with January, when they amounted to $212,908,000. The result was that the February "favorable" balance of $60,524,000 was larger than that of January, when it amounted to $34,707,000.

Lists Important Gains.

Listing important items which helped to account for February's gain in exports, compared with January, the department said other countries bought more American automobiles, trucks, aircraft, well drilling equipment, machinery for metal working, and other factory products.

The value of finished manufactured goods sold abroad in February rose to $118,128,000 from $107,365,000 in January. The January volume was the lowest in about two years for the manufactured products group.

The survey confirmed recent reports of an enormous inflow of gold from Europe, where owners of capital have been worried about political developments. These holders of funds have been sending gold to the United States for safe keeping.

Gold Imports 223 Millions.

The department's report showed February imports of the metal totaled $223,296,000, compared with $8,211,000 in the 1938 month. Such imports in the first two 1939 months totaled $379,723,000, compared with $15,365,000 in the corresponding 1938 period.

Exports of lard in February showed a small gain compared with a year earlier. The month's volume for 1939 and 1938, respectively, was $1,865,000 and $1,550,000.

The department also announced foreign trade totals for the first two months of 1939 combined. Exports for the period totaled $431,468,000 and imports $336,236,000, leaving a "favorable" balance of $95,232,000.

LOW PRICE CAR PUT ON MARKET BY STUDEBAKER

Will Be Six Cylinder, 78 Horse Power.

Studebaker's new six cylinder 78 horse power contender in the low priced automobile field yesterday was formally introduced to the public. The car, called the Champion, is entirely new both in design and construction.

The Champion represents a $3,500,000 venture by the management of the Studebaker corporation, 85 year old South Bend, Ind., company. Although the idea of a low priced car had been in the minds of the management for many years, it was in 1935 that Paul G. Hoffman, president, started the experiments which led to the new car. Studebaker's engineers were told to disregard accepted practices—what was wanted was a new car designed expressly to produce low operating costs.

Appeal to Lower Incomes.

Hoffman said an investigation disclosed that 88.9 per cent of all Americans owning automobiles pay for them and operate them on incomes of $60 a week and less—mostly "less." So the chief need was low operating cost.

The Studebaker engineers spent almost four years in developing plans. They studied every part that goes into a car. Although using standard steels and materials, through redesigning they were able to reduce the weight of the car about 600 pounds.

The result is the Champion. Designed by Raymond Loewy, industrial designer, it bears a general resemblance to larger Studebakers. It is being produced in custom and de luxe lines, with three body models in each—a four door cruising sedan, two door club sedan, and a coupe.

Car 185 Inches Long.

It measures 185⅝ inches from front to rear bumper. It is equipped with hydraulic brakes, has independent front wheel suspension, and the gear shift lever on the steering post is standard equipment. The shipping weight is 2,390 pounds. The car will carry five or six persons.

Cooling is accomplished through low die-cast radiator grilles. Lights are located in the fenders. Top door hinges are concealed and the doors have a useful convenience—a check that keeps them from shutting when they are wide open. There is large space for luggage. The central heating system of the larger Studebakers and an overdrive are optional equipment at extra cost.

FALL IN STEEL ORDERS TO CUT RATE OF OUTPUT

Decreasing new orders for steel products will cause a drop in ingot production in the Chicago district this week. The Dow-Jones weekly survey said yesterday that the steel rate in this section will dip 1.8 points to 52.9 per cent of theoretical capacity. The rate was 33.6 per cent a year ago.

In the Pittsburgh district operations will start tomorrow at 52 per cent of capacity, a rise of 3 points from a week earlier. The new rate equals the highest this year. Output was at 50 per cent a year ago.

The Youngstown district will reduce production about 1 point to 53 per cent of capacity. A year ago operations were at 29 per cent.

BEST U. S. PLANE SHOPS EASY AIR RAID TARGETS

Chicago Asks Firms to Come Inland.

Nearly all the military airplanes produced in the United States are manufactured along the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards. Inland plants, which would enjoy the protection of mountain ranges in case of attack, are small and are devoted primarily to the production of pleasure and commercial craft.

Ben O. Howard. Heads Chicago plane factory.

The current demand for military planes, both on the part of the United States and foreign governments, has called attention to this fact. It has impelled the Chicago Association of Commerce to urge consideration of Chicago's advantages as an inland airplane manufacturing center.

Chicago Has One Company.

Chicago is represented in the aviation field by one small company, the Howard Aircraft corporation, headed by Ben. O. Howard, noted designer of racing ships. This company was incorporated in 1936 and has not engaged in the production of planes on a quantity basis. No military planes have been produced. In addition to planes the company manufactures service parts for certain air lines.

Airplane factories along the coasts are considered vulnerable if the country should be involved in war. Inland plants, it is contended, would have certain natural protection which seacoast plants do not have. This has suggested to a number of military experts the advisability of encouraging airplane construction in that part of the country between the Pacific and Atlantic mountain ranges.

The airplane companies situated along the seaboards appear to be rather definitly settled there. Most of them own the land on which they stand. Many of them have spent a great deal of money in recent years to improve their plants and testing fields.

Build on Water Front.

Glenn L. Martin company's recent expenditures are an illustration of this situation. The company ranks as one of the major producers of bombing planes. It owns a tract of approximately 1,200 acres at Middle River, Md., on Chesapeake bay. This area has a water frontage of about five miles.

On this tract the company's plant was constructed in 1930 at a cost of about $1,600,000, not including equipment. Last year and in 1937 large additions were made, costing approximately $2,000,000, excluding equipment.

Located on the Pacific coast are some of the largest military plane producers in the United States. In this group are Douglas Aircraft company, North American Aviation corporation, Boeing Aircraft company, Lockheed Aircraft corporation, and Consolidated Aircraft corporation.

Numerous in California.

With the exception of Boeing all of these companies have their plants in California. Boeing is in Seattle on a 15½ acre tract owned in fee. The company also has a plant in Wichita, Kas., but military planes are not produced there.

The present eighteen acre site of the Douglas plant, which provides room for expansion, is at Santa Monica. The company has a ten

STOCKS DRIFT; AWAIT SPEECH OF MUSSOLINI

Majority of List Closes Slightly Lower.

New York, March 25.—[Special.]—Stocks drifted through today's brief session on the New York Stock exchange as Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy intruded on the thoughts of the financial district. Prices at the close were lower but losses exceed fractions in only a few instances.

The market maintained an even keel for most of the trading period but a flurry of selling in the final hour brought the lowest quotations of the day. A measure of support before the final bell, however, enabled the list to finish above its lowest level.

Await Mussolini's Speech.

Much of the day's operations were attributed to traders anxious to even up over the week-end. Mussolini's speech, scheduled for tomorrow, especially induced caution as it was expected to hint, if not contain, an outright demand for some territorial concessions from the French.

Presumably the market had already discounted the news from Washington that the administration had agreed to halt the social security tax increase. Financial circles did not interpret this as a "straw in the wind" since the President has only recently shown where he stood on more important changes in the tax law.

Trading volume throughout the session was at a low ebb in contrast with the spirited markets of recent Saturdays.

Price Movements Narrow.

Narrowness in price movements prevailed. Of the total of 614 issues traded 168 advanced, 288 declined and 158 showed no change.

At the close a smattering of the accepted leaders showed the biggest losses. Eastman Kodak had a loss of 1½ points and touched a new low for the year. Westinghouse Electric finished 2 points lower Losses in the steel section exceeded fractions only in the case of United States Steel, which dropped a point, and Crucible, which lost a similar amount. Douglas lost a point in the aviations.

Chrysler made up a large early fractional loss and went into the final table with a slight advantage. General Motors stepped down a small fraction. Small fractional losses were the rule in the rails.

Shares of Chicago Banks Irregular in Last Week

Chicago bank stocks were irregular last week in quiet trading. Nominal closing bids were from $2 lower to $2 higher. City National shares declined $2 and Chicago Title and Trust, $1. Continental Illinois and Harris Trust stock gained $1 and First National, $2.

OATS SELL NEAR HIGHEST LEVEL OF THE SEASON

Only Grain to Show Gain Over Year Ago.

May oats advanced ⅝ cent a bushel at one time yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, selling at 30 cents and within ½ cent of the highest price of the season. A car of No. 1 white oats sold in the sample market at 33½ cents, equaling the highest price since April, 1938. Closing trades were ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel higher.

Buying of oats futures was said by brokers to have been mainly of a professional character, and was based on a strong cash position. Oats are the only grain selling above the price which prevailed a year ago. Chicago handlers sold 350,000 bushels of cash oats for shipment last week, the largest amount of that grain taken during a like period since last August.

Even Up Wheat Trades.

Traders generally evened up their position in the wheat market yesterday to await Premier Mussolini's speech scheduled to be delivered over the week-end. The market showed a firm undertone from the start and closed with net gains of ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel.

Price changes in corn were confined to small fractions of a cent a bushel. Soy beans were unchanged to 1 cent a bushel higher.

Firmness in Winnipeg prices had some effect on the local wheat market. Net gains in the Canadian market were ⅜ to ½ cent a bushel, although export business was said to have been limited. Liverpool prices closed unchanged to ¼ cent a bushel higher.

China Buys Australian Wheat.

The purchase of 525,000 bushels of Australian wheat for March-April shipment to China more than offset deliveries of 104,000 bushels of cash grain on March contracts in the English market.

Highly beneficial showers were received in parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas on Friday night and the winter wheat crop is expected to make rapid growth. The long range forecast indicated additional moisture might be received this week.

COTTON

Cotton prices in American markets were firmer yesterday. Buying of nearby deliveries by mills featured trading. Houses with foreign connections were moderate sellers. Speculators generally held back pending clarification of the legislative situation at Washington and of the European political outlook.

Closing trades on futures were .01 cent lower to .02 cent a pound higher. Liverpool prices were somewhat higher on scattered buying. Reports from the English market indicated trading was slow.

Spot cotton closed .02 cent higher to .02 cent lower with New York 8.92 cents, New Orleans 8.63 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 8.42 cents a pound. Prices follow:

MORE SALARIES, STOCK HOLDINGS ARE DISCLOSED

Alfred P. Sloan Jr. Is Paid $164,450 in 1938.

Salaries and stock holdings of more corporation executives were disclosed yesterday in proxy solicitations sent stockholders in connection with annual meetings.

W. S. Knudsen.
Paid $124,465 and stock.

The General Motors corporation statement revealed Alfred P. Sloan Jr. received a salary of $164,450 during 1938 for services as chairman of the corporation's board. William S. Knudsen, president of the company, was paid $124,465, and Charles F. Kettering, vice president and research expert, received $83,173.

In addition Knudsen was awarded 1,767 shares of common stock as his share of the 1938 executive bonus distribution, and Kettering was allotted 1,286 shares. Charges against 1938 earnings in this distribution were figured at $69,252 and $50,401, respectively, although delivery of the stock will not be made until this year.

Sloan Bonus Eliminated.

Sloan was eliminated from the bonus plan two years ago. The corporation's annual report, published recently, indicated the federal government, through high taxation, will receive the largest part of the top executives' remuneration.

Stockholders were asked to send in their proxies for reëlection of all directors at the annual meeting in Wilmington, Del., on April 25. Of the designated board members up for reëlection, all nominees originated with the company with the exception of seven.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., which owns 10,000,000 shares of General Motors stock, "was primarily responsible" for the nomination of Walter S. Carpenter Jr., Henry B. du Pont, Henry F. du Pont, Lammot du Pont, and John Jacob Raskob, according to the statement. Arthur B. Purvis is the nominee of Canadian Industries, Ltd., and Lord McGowan the nominee of Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd.

H. E. Blood Gets $97,625.

H. E. Blood, executive vice president of the Borg-Warner corporation and president of its Norge division, was the highest paid executive of Borg-Warner. His 1938 salary was given as $97,625, and his direct and indirect holdings of common stock 5,364 shares.

Charles S. Davis, president, was paid $84,875 in salary and held 41,116 shares of stock, either directly or through beneficial interest. George W. Borg received $67,580 as chairman and held 24,780 shares of common stock.

Borg-Warner's proxy solicitation stated the nineteen board members have been nominated for reëlection at the annual meeting April 28. D. D. Francis held 45,000 shares of stock, the largest holdings of any director. Four nominees, John Fletcher, W. G. Hemphill, H. G. Ingersoll, and S. L. Ingersoll, did not own any stock, the statement showed.

Other Holdings Reported.

Holdings of other nominees were listed as: P. D. Armour, 3,500; F. C. Ball, 40,260; Paul H. Davis, 34,039; George B. Dryden, 3,210; J. L. Dryden, 6,034; J. Russell Forgan, 1,390; R. C. Ingersoll, 530; R. P. Johnson, 36,556; Mathew Keck, 500; Frederick D. Rose, 6,000, and G. A. Shallberg, 400.

Cities Service company, seeking proxies for the annual meeting April 25, showed payments of $427,850 during 1938 to C. A. Frueauff, for legal services rendered the company. He held 3,200 shares of the company's common stock and 2,800 shares of class A stock, in addition to shares of subsidiaries.

H. L. Doherty, president of Cities Service, listed his holdings as 191,498 shares of common, 3,996 of preferred, $33,000 of debentures, and various securities of subsidiary concerns.

Holdings of the other retiring directors up for reëlection were: E. H. Johnston, 350 common and 212 preferred; P. R. Jones, 37 common and a partial interest in other stocks; J. M. McMillan, 1,058 common and 1,343 preferred.

Fred P. Poor, president of Poor & Co., manufacturing railway supplies, received $50,000 in salary last year and held 17,813 shares of class A and B stocks, according to the company's statement.

Military Aircraft Plants Exposed to Danger

The map reveals the vulnerable placement of American aircraft manufacturing plants. Only one large military plant, that at Buffalo, would be outside the effective bombing range of airplanes based on ships twenty-five miles off the Pacific and Atlantic coast lines. The effective bombing range today, indicated by shading, is 300 miles, necessitating a 600 mile flight. The plants are as follows: 1, Bellanca Aircraft corporation; 2, Bendix Aviation; 3, Boeing Airplane company; 4, Consolidated Aircraft corporation; 5, Curtiss-Wright corporation; 6, Douglas Aircraft company; 7, Fairchild Aviation corporation; 8, Grumman Aircraft Engineering corporation; 9, Lockheed Aircraft corporation; 10, Glenn L. Martin company; 11, North American Aviation company; 12, Seversky Aircraft corporation; 13; Sperry corporation, 14, United Aircraft corporation; 15, Howard Aircraft corporation. The North American plant at Dundalk, Md., the Boeing plant at Wichita, Kas.; the Curtiss-Wright plant at Robertson, Mo., and the Howard plant at Chicago are not engaged in manufacturing military planes or parts for military planes.

year renewable lease to use the adjoining Santa Monica airport. Douglas is one of the largest military plane producers.

The main plant of North American Aviation is at Inglewood, Cal., situated on a twenty acre tract of the Los Angeles municipal airport. Engineering development work is also conducted at this field. North American also has a plant at Dundalk, near Baltimore, Md., but it is no longer used as a manufacturing unit. The production capacity of the Inglewood plant was doubled in 1937.

Own 43 Acres at Burbank.

Lockheed Aircraft corporation is situated at Victory place, Burbank Cal. The land, with adjacent flying field, covers about forty-three acres. It is all owned in fee. At San Diego the Consolidated Aircraft corporation has a twenty-five acre site. It is leased for a term of fifty years beginning with 1933, with the option to renew for an additional fifty years.

The largest aircraft engine manufacturing plant in the world is owned by Wright Aeronautical corporation, in which Curtiss-Wright corporation owns most of the stock. This plant is in Paterson, N. J. Curtiss-Wright also has plants at Buffalo, N. Y., and Robertson, Mo., a St. Louis suburb. All its military aircraft and propellors are produced in Buffalo. Its commercial planes are produced in Robertson.

Among the smaller manufacturers, Bellanca Aircraft corporation is in Newcastle, Del. The land is wholly owned by the company. Grumman Aircraft Engineering corporation's plant is in Bethpage, N. Y. Seversky Aircraft corporation is in Farmingdale, N. Y., and the company has a seaplane assembly base in Amityville, N. Y.

How Seversky Operates.

The Seversky sites are operated under a purchase-option agreement with the American Airplane and Engine company, owner of the properties. The total contract for the properties is $888,000, payable at the rate of $44,000 a year. The option expires Dec. 31, 1939.

One of the largest eastern companies, United Aircraft corporation, has its plants in Connecticut. All of the operating divisions are in East Hartford with the exception of the Sikorsky aircraft division, which is at Stratford, near Bridgeport.

Even the makers of airplane parts are near the coast lines. Sperry corporation has its main plant, equipped for high grade precision work, at Brooklyn, N. Y. The company also has plants at Long Island City, N. Y.; Waterbury, Conn., and Detroit.

Fairchild Aviation corporation has a factory in Jamaica, N. Y. The company's principal laboratories are at Woodside, N. Y., and New York City. Bendix Aviation manufactures aircraft parts in plants in Brooklyn, N. Y.; East Orange, N. J., and Sidney, N. Y.

Bank Numbers.

Banks have numbers as well as names. Under a uniform system installed in 1911, each banking institution was assigned a number by the American Bankers association. This arrangement is known as the "numerical transit system."

Under this system, federal reserve cities were each designated by a prefix number. The cities then were numbered one to forty-nine, inclusive, in the order of their population. Lower numbers were assigned to the larger cities. State prefix numbers and clearing house numbers were used for banks in the largest city in each state other than the reserve cities. All other cities are designated by a state prefix and the numbers given to the banks. Each bank is numbered in consecutive order according to its seniority in each city. In towns having only one bank, the banks are numbered according to towns.

The First National Bank of Chicago, for example, is bank 2-1. This means that it is the senior bank in the second largest federal reserve city. Bank of New York and Trust company is bank 1-1.

The "numerical transit system" has proved helpful to banking in many ways, including the speeding up of check collections. The exact location of a bank may be determined quickly also. And a bank's seniority within a city is easily learned.

FEDERAL BONDS RISE SHARPLY IN QUIET TRADING

New York, March 25.—(AP)—United States government securities moved up sharply in the bond market today, with gains in some treasury issues ranging to 11-32ds of a point.

Dealings in the federals were small, however, as they were in securities generally. Transactions in all bonds in the New York Stock Exchange at $2,641,600, face value, were the smallest for any Saturday since Sept. 3 last.

Domestic corporate issues and foreign dollar bonds held about even.

DRIVE TO BRING CONVENTIONS TO CITY THIS YEAR

Mayor, Business Group Outline Efforts.

Mayor Kelly yesterday told of his coöperation with the Chicago Association of Commerce in efforts to bring conventions and trade shows to Chicago. This, he explained, is in line with his policy of emphasizing to the nation Chicago's advantages as an industrial and commercial center.

The largest convention to be held here this year, it was announced, is the American Legion convention in September. Mayor Kelly several months ago traveled to Los Angeles and personally appeared before the Legion's 1938 convention with the city's invitation for 1939.

Thus Chicago becomes the first city to which the Legion has returned a second time. The first convention was held here in 1933.

Expect 250,000 Legionnaires.

It is expected that 250,000 Legionnaires and their families will attend this year and that they will spend approximately 10 million dollars.

Among the other shows and conventions already scheduled for Chicago are the National Motor Truck show, Nov. 6 to 19, and the Automotive Service Industries show, Dec. 11 to 16. Both will be held on Navy pier.

The motor truck show is one of the major trade exhibitions of the United States, the mayor said. Its officials are so well satisfied with the facilities provided by the city, he added, that they have secured an option for 1940.

This will be the fourth consecutive year that the Automotive Service show has been held in Chicago. It is estimated this exhibition alone has brought nearly $1,200,000 worth of business to the city each year.

Offer Big Convention Hall.

Chicago now offers 234,000 square feet of convention space on the pier, one of the largest halls in the country.

Following are the number of conventions and the attendance for each year beginning with 1928:

	Conventions.	Attendance.
1928	824	1,136,576
1929	845	1,335,435
1930	811	1,041,502
1931	767	738,440
1932	694	458,789
1933	1,527	9,564,300
1934	812	534,145
1935	851	1,046,381
1936	821	1,282,484
1937	790	994,365
1938	801	902,600

According to the Association of Commerce, the 1937 conventions brought $50,000,000 extra business to Chicago.

CHANGE IN LABOR ACT SOUGHT BY MANUFACTURERS

Declare Purpose of Act Is Justified.

New York, March 25.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers today urged amendment of the Wagner labor relations act on eight counts. At the same time, the association said the purpose of the act, to protect collective bargaining by voluntarily chosen representatives of workers was "thoroughly justified."

In a statement, accompanied by quotations from various groups and individuals all critical of the act in its present form, the association said its position was that labor friction would continue "so long as the law places restraints upon one party . . . and leaves the other party free of all restraint."

Eight Changes Sought.

The eight points were:

1. Recognize "unfair practices" by others than employers as obstructions to interstate commerce.
2. The National Labor Relations board should confine its unionization activities to protection of the right of employés to organize and bargain through representatives of their own choosing.
3. Prohibit "interference, restraint, and coercion" against employés from any source.
4. Prohibit the "closed shop" and the "check-off."
5. Protect employers by describing minimum standards of conduct for unions.
6. Reiterate the right of free speech between employers and employés.
7. Restrict power of the board to favor national or international unions as against local unions.
8. Assure fair trial and adequate court review to all accused of violating any provisions of the law.

Regarded Cause of Strikes.

Approving the general purpose of the act, to protect workers in the right to bargain collectively and to ensure peace in industrial relations, the manufacturers said that since the act had gone into effect the country had witnessed "a wave of sit-down strikes and other strikes involving violence and intimidation, such as it has never before seen."

Pointing out that the board had ordered reinstatement, sometimes with back pay, of sit-down strikers, the statement said that "this clearly wrong construction" of the act by the board "continued until the Supreme court of the United States, in its decisions of Feb. 27, 1939, called a halt."

He was the guest at a dinner held in the Merchants and Manufacturers club in the Merchandise Mart. Earlier he was presented with his fifty-year bonus and a pin by Frederick D. Corley, president of the company.

SOCIAL SECURITY ON PAY AS YOU GO BASIS ADVOCATED

Trade Group Says Big Reserve Not Needed.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—(AP)—A committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States recommended today that the social security program be put on a "pay as you go" basis and the tax schedule revised accordingly.

The report presumably was drafted before Secretary Morgenthau advanced yesterday the administration's proposals for changes in the system. In some respects, however, its recommendations followed closely those of the treasury secretary. Morgenthau suggested that the present plan for a "full reserve" might well be abandoned in favor of a contingent reserve of $2,500,000,000 to $3,000,000,000.

Wants "Contingent Reserve."

The chamber of commerce report suggested maintaining "a contingent reserve sufficient only to permit continuation of maturing benefit payments during periods of temporary depression, and continuation of stable tax rates."

Some change in the present program seemed assured by a general rallying of Democrats and Republicans in congress behind Morgenthau's proposal that the 50 per cent increase in the tax rate scheduled for next year be deferred in whole or in part.

No Tax Figure Given.

The chamber of commerce advanced no specific suggestion for a tax rate next year, but said the question should be studied in the light of putting the program on a pay as you go basis.

The present tax schedule contemplates building up a full reserve—about $1,131,000,000 already has been accumulated—and the chamber said that this was "a highly deflationary process in a period of business depression."

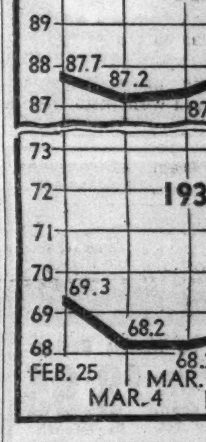
Earnings Reports Conflicting.

Corporation statements on 1938 earnings continued to show a predominantly downward trend, but with occasional reports of increases. The disclosures covering tendencies thus far in 1939 were more encouraging. Numerous companies announced improvement in business compared with early 1938.

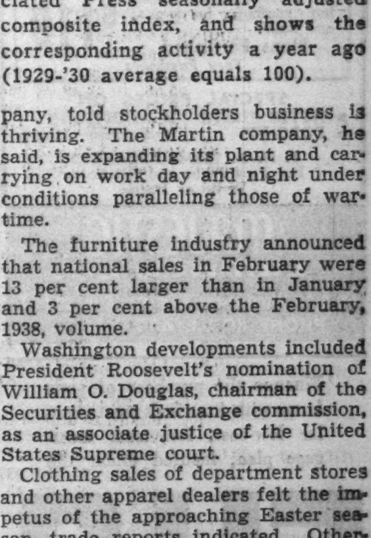
Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., said the company's business at present "is very good," although profit in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1939, fell to $23,354,364 from $30,828,248 in the preceding year. He said sales declined until November, and then began rising.



Gen. R. E. Wood.

Montgomery Ward & Co. increased its profit in the year ended Jan. 31 to $19,644,956 from $19,210,029. Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the board, said sales rose in the last half of the fiscal year.

In the aviation industry activity continued brisk. Glenn L. Martin, president of the Glenn L. Martin company, told stockholders business is thriving. The Martin company, he said, is expanding its plant and carrying on work day and night under conditions paralleling those of war-time.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

The furniture industry announced that national sales in February were 13 per cent larger than in January and 3 per cent above the February, 1938, volume.

Washington developments included President Roosevelt's nomination of William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, as an associate justice of the United States Supreme court.

Clothing sales of department stores and other apparel dealers felt the impetus of the approaching Easter season, trade reports indicated. Otherwise retail trade volume was restricted, although still ahead of sales in the corresponding 1938 week.

COMMODITY PRICES

Most of the leading commodities traded in on the futures markets brought higher prices last week. Coffee futures, which the week before had hovered only ¼ cent above their record low level, recovered 0.09 to 0.26 cent a pound on the New York market. Cocoa was quoted 0.14 cent higher to 0.04 cent lower by comparison with the preceding Saturday.

New hide contracts in spirited trading advanced 1.57 to 1.61 cent a pound, but the old contracts receded slightly. Rubber was quoted about ¼ cent higher and the world sugar contract was marked up 0.13 to 0.14 cent, but the domestic futures were about unchanged.

Tin advanced as much as 1.60 cents, with other metals firm to somewhat higher.

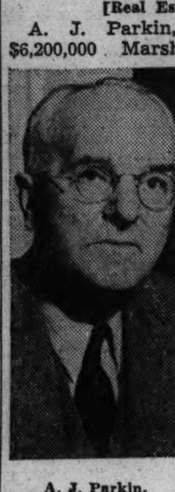
Public Service Building Corporation Plan Lauded by Field Flats' Manager

TERMED BEST METHOD TO SOLVE SLUM PROBLEMS

First Chance to Get Site Without 'Holdups.'

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

A. J. Parkin, manager of the $6,200,000 Marshall Field Garden apartments, yesterday expressed his approval of the "Public Service Building corporation" plan as a solution to the metropolitan slum clearance problem. It is by far the best suggestion offered to date by any one as a means of rehabilitating Chicago's belt of depreciated land surrounding the downtown district, he said.



A. J. Parkin.

One of its outstanding advantages over other so-called slum clearance solutions is its ability to overcome the principal obstacle to all big housing projects—acquiring the site. In legislation planned to permit the formation of "public service building corporations," these privately financed groups would be given the right to acquire part of the necessary sites by condemnation.

An Island of Good Housing.

It has been partly this inability of private capital to assemble sites near the Field Garden apartments without being forced to pay exorbitant and prohibitive prices to property owners, that has kept the big experiment in housing by Chicago's wealthiest estate from being copied and duplicated on nearby land. As it is, the Field apartments, still are an island of good housing in a sea of archaic homes.

They have demonstrated what can be done on a large scale, although they always have suffered the handicap of having had to pay more than a fair price for the land because of the inability to condemn part of the land needed.

Prices Are Pyramided.

Parkin told how prices of real estate pyramided a decade ago when property owners learned that the Estate of Marshall Field was acquiring land on the north side for a big apartment project.

"Until the public service building corporation idea was advanced no one had ever suggested a method of acquiring large parcels of land for mass housing without paying the penalty of being held up by minority property owners," he said.

"Getting the cost of the project where it should be is the vital thing in establishing a proper rental schedule. The Field Garden apartments were planned originally as 'low cost' living accommodations. Now they're termed 'moderate priced.'

Had to About Face.

"Both land and construction costs were so high that we had to about face and make our appeal to an entirely different class of people than originally intended."

Parkin said the Field apartments had been planned as "modern homes for people of moderate incomes." It had been hoped to have rentals possibly as low as $9 per room per month.

This was done with the expectation of getting a return of 5 per cent on the $6,200,000 investment. There hasn't been a year when the return exceeded 1½ per cent, Parkin said. One year there was a deficit. In several other years operations were barely profitable.

At present the average rental is $11.67 per room per month. Occupancy is now up to 90 per cent. The rent schedule has had a continuous series of ups and downs.

First Tenant in 1929.

The first tenant who moved in in March, 1929, paid $13.55 per room per month. By the fall of 1930 about 93 per cent of the 622 suites were rented at an average of $13.55. By spring of 1931 the depression had begun to take its toll and by 1933 occupancy had slid down to 49 per cent and rentals had bumped bottom at $9.68 per room per month.

Then the turn came and occupancy climbed to 100 per cent. But rents remained temporarily at the $9.68 rate. Then during the next few years rents were boosted three times, first to $10.57, then to $11.67, and finally to $12.78. Occupancy remained at 100 per cent.

Then in the spring of 1938 the latest business recession put occupancy on the skids again and it slid down to 83 per cent. Later in the year it began to climb again and is today at 90 per cent, Parkin said.

Rentals to Be Cut.

On Feb. 15, 1939, Parkin announced to the 209 tenants who were paying $12.78 [346 families had never been boosted above the $11.67 schedule] that they would have to pay only $11.67 beginning April 1, 1939. On that date all of the 555 apartments now occupied will pay $11.67. There were twenty-seven vacant suites yesterday, he said.

As a result of a "design for living" contest participated in by 12,000 entrants during 1933, the class of tenancy in the Field apartments was placed on a level which has steadily risen, Parkin said.

Today of the 555 tenants ninety-two are company managers. There are eighty-six professional men. Third in number are salesmen and buyers, who number fifty-three. Fourth on the list are forty-nine newspaper and advertising men.

Other Tenants' Occupations.

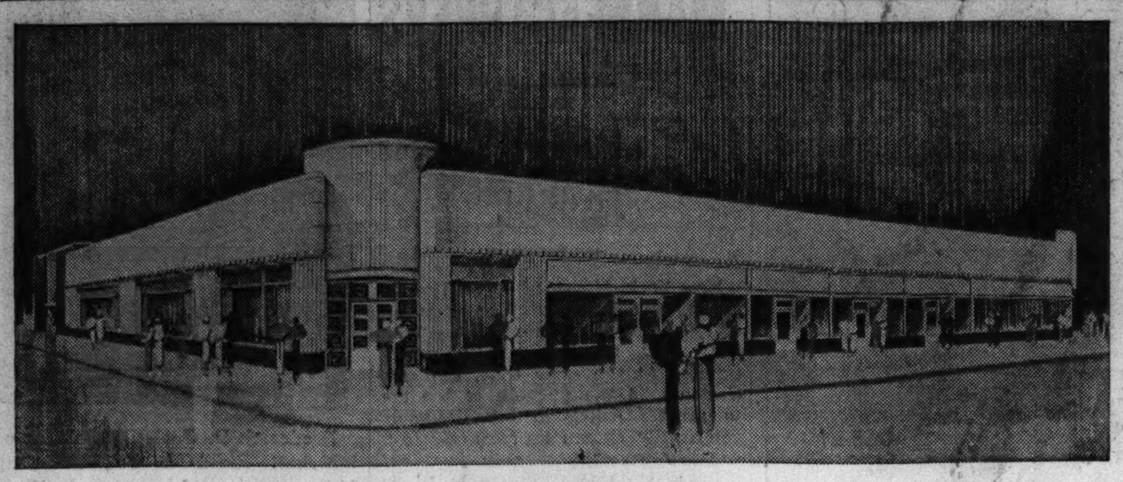
Other tenant classifications, in numerical order, are: Technicians, 43; cashiers, accountants, and auditors, 41; teachers, 37; operating own business, 34; clerks, 27; retired persons, 22; federal employés, 13; hotel and restaurant employés, 13; pilots and chauffeurs, 10; nurses, 9; telephone and telegraph employés, 8; city employés, 5; tailors and dressmakers, 5; miscellaneous positions, 8.

Where the tenants came from is shown in the following table:

Neighborhood—radius of one mile	194
North	127
South	83
West	52
Outside of the city	99
Total	555

The number of children living in the Field apartments up to and including 16 years is 226, Parkin said. There is a private school for tenants' children ranging from kindergarten to third grade. The Field project is on land bounded by Blackhawk, Sedgwick and Sigel streets, and Hudson avenue.

South Shore $200,000 Improvement



This business building is planned for the southwest corner of Exchange avenue and East 72d street, with frontage on Phillips avenue. Loewenberg & Loewenberg are the architects. Work is scheduled to start on May 1, with completion set for Sept. 1.

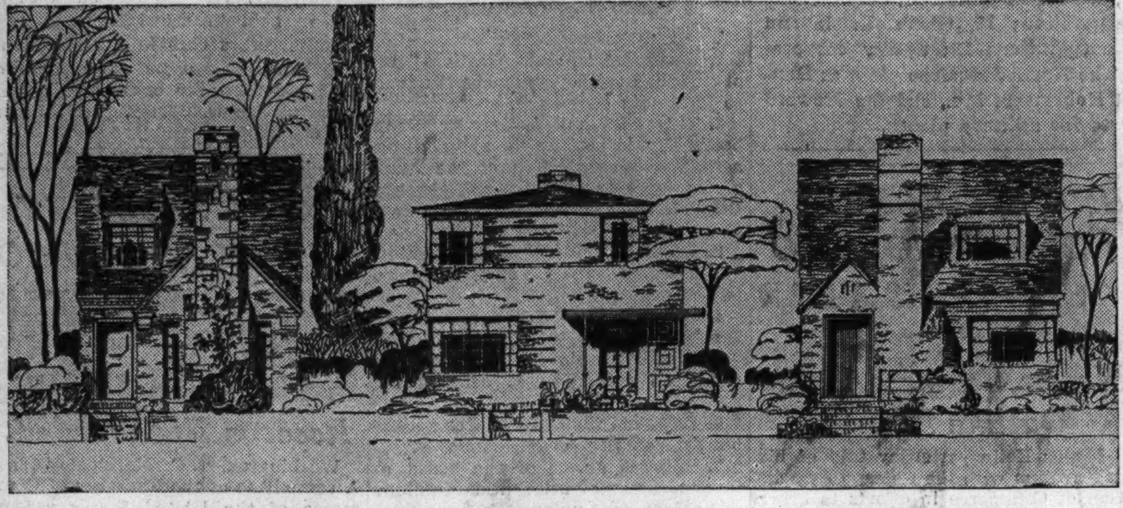
Being Built in Beverly Hills



The above three houses are part of a building program under way by J. E. Merrion & Co. on the far south side, expected to run well over one hundred homes this summer. All three of the homes are sold. Donald Johnson of the Bethlehem Steel company owns the one on the left at 9328 Vanderpoel avenue. The middle house, at No. 9324, is owned by Harvey Stewart of the Pure Oil company. The right hand house, at No. 9320, was bought by John F. Murphy, a stationary engineer with the Chicago Housing authority. Each cost $6,950, including $1,200 for the lot. The Murphy house has five rooms; the others six. Each one was financed with a twenty year Federal Housing administration $6,100 insured loan, with $49 monthly payments.

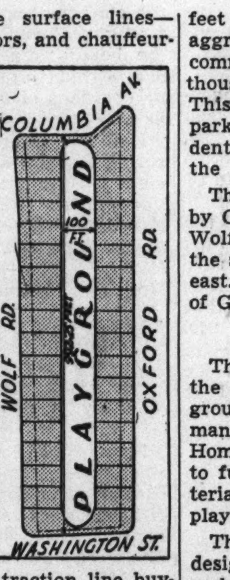
Stove Firm Leases Space in the Merchandise Mart

The Detroit-Michigan Stove company has leased space in the Merchandise Mart for its midwestern sales offices and principal dealer display. The company anticipates a large increase in business this year.

Plan Block Long Playground for Children of Traction Men

Employés of the surface lines—motormen, conductors, and chauffeur-conductors of bus feeders—will be the owners of a new semi-coöperative development in Branigar's Cumberland terrace, northwest of Des Plaines.



A block of land 990 feet long and about 300 feet wide is being sold solely to the traction men. Twenty already have made commitments for home sites; seven have signed contracts and plans and loans are being arranged. The income of the traction line buyers is between $2,000 and $2,400 annually, it was said.

Each to Donate Land.

Each owner will be expected to turn in to a common holding fifty feet in the rear of his lot. In the aggregate this will give the traction community a strip of land nearly a thousand feet long and 100 feet wide. This is to be developed as a private park and playground for the residents on the thirty-six home sites in the block.

The block is bounded on the north by Columbia avenue, on the west by Wolf road, by Washington street on the south and by Oxford road on the east. The site is two blocks south of Golf road.

Originated by Salzman.

The idea of using the interior of the long block as a private playground was originated by A. L. Salzman, president of the Associated Home Builders, Inc. He has agreed to furnish the home owners the materials for play equipment for the playground.

The homes to be built are being designed by Salzman, who is an architect and engineer. They will be frames of five and six rooms and will cost from $5,200 to $6,000. The homes will be financed with Federal Housing administration insured loans negotiated through Dovenmuehle, Inc.

Visitor to Model Home in La Grange Park Buys It

One of the 3,818 persons who paid 10 cents each during four days to inspect the model home sponsored by the Chicago Maternity Center at 550 Edgewood drive, in La Grange Park, bought the property. William Joern & Sons, who built it, said yesterday that O. K. Smith of 736 North La Grange road, president of the Brewer Sewing Supply company, was the buyer. The house will remain open to the public for sixty days, Charles Joern said. The funds raised will be used by the maternity center for charity work in Chicago.

Soft Drink Concern Rents Plant at 63d and Calumet

The Pepsi Cola Bottling company of Chicago yesterday leased for a term of years the one story building at the northeast corner of 63d street and Calumet avenue, containing 25,000 square feet. After alterations and a reported investment of $100,000 in equipment the lessee will have a capacity of 300 bottles per minute or 12,000 cases daily. The main plant is at 2560 Elston avenue. Sayers & Co. and Robert White & Co. were brokers.

Wilmette Annexes "Gage's 8 Acres" Next Kenilworth

Wilmette has annexed "Gage's eight acres," a no man's land on the east side of the Chicago and North Western railroad right of way, between Kenilworth and Wilmette, a block south of the Kenilworth station. Following action by the Wilmette board of trustees last Tuesday Irvin A. Blietz, north shore architect and builder, announced that his proposed "Connecticut Village" residential project was under way. The eight acres are to be improved, he said, with 39 homes.

Eastern Publisher Plans Opening Chicago Office

J. E. Sitterley & Sons, Inc., New York publishers, have leased space in Tribune Tower for a term of years beginning May 1. This will be their first Chicago office. They publish "Importers' Guide," a trade paper, printed in three languages, English, French and Spanish.

Plan Business Building for Exchange-72d

Construction is scheduled to be started May 1 on a one story business building at the southwest corner of Exchange avenue and East 72nd street, extending through to Phillips avenue. According to the Charles L. Schrager company, rental agents, the total investment in land and building will be more than $200,000. This will make it one of the major construction projects in the south shore district during the last five years, it was said.

The building site fronts 216 feet on Exchange avenue, 127 feet on 72nd street, and 300 feet on Phillips avenue. The main unit will contain seven stores. The rear 131 feet on Exchange avenue will be improved with a recreation building containing twenty bowling alleys.

A large store unit just west of the 72nd-Exchange corner already has been leased to the Jewel Tea company. Negotiations are under way for renting the rest of the stores, Charles Schrager said.

The building will be of modern design, from plans by Loewenberg & Loewenberg. The exterior will be of Bedford stone, with marble trim. Completion is set for Sept. 1. The property is owned by William E. McCollom and Ella M. Hall.

REPORTS 31 MORE HOUSES SOLD IN EVERGREEN PARK

J. E. Merrion & Co. yesterday said that they have twenty-one homes now under construction in Evergreen Park. Ten others were recently completed. All have been sold. These are units in the building program of sixty homes announced last fall. The same firm has just started and sold the first of twelve homes to be built on home sites on Bennett avenue, between 86th and 87th streets.

Another development will be on Hoyne and Hamilton avenues, between 83d and 85th streets. The Merrion company has thirty-four home sites. Three have been sold and work has been begun on three houses.

Construction has just been started on six homes at 9320 to 9338 Vanderpoel avenue. All of these have been sold at $6,950 to $7,500. They were designed by R. E. Major & Co., Inc., with W. A. Reinert as structural engineer.

FLEXIBLE SHAFT COMPANY PLANS BIG ADDITION

Plans have been completed by Olsen & Urbain for a large fireproof addition to the plant of the Chicago Flexible Shaft company, 5600 West Roosevelt road. It will be 48 by 400 feet, three stories, of reinforced concrete, and will cost about $160,000. It will have foundations capable of carrying three additional stories. The new unit will be used for warehouse purposes. Work is scheduled to start within three weeks.

JONES-LAUGHLIN RENTS BANKERS BUILDING SPACE

The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, one of the oldest and largest steel manufacturers in the country, yesterday leased for a long term of years space in the tower of the Bankers building, Clark and Adams.

POLL INDICATES MORE ACTIVITY IN REAL ESTATE

Prices Are Not Expected to Rise in 1939.

There will be more real estate sales during the remainder of 1939 than in 1938, although prices probably will not be higher, according to a survey made by the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America. S. M. Waters, president of that organization, yesterday said that 77 per cent of the members, in forty-two states, said in a questionnaire that they expected more real estate activity. Seventeen per cent predicted fewer sales and 6 per cent were in doubt.

Mortgage bankers in the middle western states were more optimistic than the average throughout the country. Eighty per cent in this area said they expected a better real estate market this year. Only 11 per cent believed sales would be fewer.

See No Rise in Prices.

Fifty-four per cent of the mortgage bankers throughout the country said they believed there would be no gain in real prices this year. Forty-one per cent expected a rise. Five per cent were in doubt.

In the middle western states there were fewer who expect realty prices to advance during 1939 than the national average. In this area there were only 33 per cent who predicted higher prices.

Sales Less in 1938.

The association's poll also revealed that 1938 did not prove as good a year for real estate as 1937. Sixty-two per cent of the members said 1938 realty sales were below 1937.

"Data in our poll seem to indicate fairly conclusively that real estate sales activity will improve decidedly during the rest of 1939 over 1938," Waters said. "And, to a lesser degree, it reflects the fact that 1939 will be a good year from the buyer's viewpoint because of the fact that a majority does not anticipate higher real estate prices."

At the Realty Boards

"The Realtor and the Insured Savings and Loan Association" will be the subject of the first conference luncheon meeting sponsored by the building and loan division of the Chicago Real Estate board. It will be held next Wednesday noon in the board dining room, at 32 West Randolph street. According to H. O. Walther, chairman of the division, the board of governors hopes to bring about a better understanding between realtors and savings and loan association executives.

Henry E. Hoagland.
[Acme Photo.]

Dr. Henry E. Hoagland, professor of finance at Ohio State university, and former member of the Federal Home Loan Bank board, will discuss the federal insurance program covering the savings and loan associations in this community. A. R. Gardner, president of the Federal Home Loan bank in Chicago, also will speak.

LAUNCH WORK FOR BETTER HIGHWAYS

EXPECT 100,000 TO MOTOR FOR EASTER SERVICE

Two Points to Have Sunrise Rites.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

At least 100,000 Chicago motorists will observe Easter two weeks from today by attending sunrise services in the country. This was estimated by Bert Vanderwarf of the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club. He added that other thousands will come into Chicago from country points to attend the seventh Easter sunrise service in Soldiers' field.

Harry G. Saulnier.

Two notable Easter services—at Starved Rock and at Richfield, Wis.—were pointed out as being most attractive to those who wish to go farther afield for their Easter devotions. On the other hand, Harry G. Saulnier, founder and chairman of the interdenominational committee of the Soldiers' field service, predicted the 1939 attendance would far exceed the 50,000 recorded last year.

Will Use Huge Organ.

Mr. Saulnier said that unusual among features this year will be the use of one of the largest electric organs ever developed to lead the music. The Rev. Lance Latham, pastor of North Side Gospel center, will be at the great organ's console. Theis Rynertson of Salem Free church is chairman of the music committee which arranged for the organ.

The massed choirs have been organized under the leadership of Homer Hammontree of the Moody Bible institute staf. At least 10,000 persons will make up the great chorus. Dr. James P. Bennett of the Cook County hospital staf, in charge of decorations of the field, is preparing a 100 foot white cross to be the center of worshipers' attention.

Expects 25,000 Persons.

The Rev. Harold Garner of Ottawa is general chairman of the fifth annual Starved Rock service. He announced that the 6 o'clock service will be held at the east end of the Starved Rock grounds, and he believes at least 25,000 persons will attend. The service is nonsectarian. The Chicago Motor club recommends that Chicago motorists take route US 34 to the junction with Illinois 23. At Ottawa 71 is taken, leading into the park.

Holy Hill, near Richfield, Wis., is described by the motor club as offering one of the most famous Easter services in the country. It is in charge of Carmelite fathers. Solemn high mass is at 10 o'clock, but other masses at the open air shrine are held at 6, 7, and 8:30 o'clock. Carmelite fathers will deliver Easter sermons at all masses.

The motor club recommends US 41 to Richfield and county highway "P" to Holy Hill.

The glee club of the College of Wooster [O.] has included Chicago in its annual spring tour to coincide with the sesquicentenial campaign for $10,000,000 to aid colleges and Wesley foundations of the Presbyterian church in the United States. Directed by William C. DeVeny, the club will sing tonight at the 8 o'clock service of the Fourth Presbyterian church. Arthur A. Compton is president of the club, and his father, Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, will be the guest speaker. Dr. Compton's subject will be "Christian Education."

The glee club will sing tomorrow at the W-G-N midday service and the speaker will be the Rev. Ralph A. Young, assistant to Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of the College of Wooster.

The club's last appearance in Chicago will be on Wednesday night, March 29, at the Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue. Following the concert a reception will be held in the church parlors for Wooster alumni.

The Rev. Elmer S. Hjortland, pastor of the Ascension Lutheran church of Milwaukee, will speak at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Monthly Union ministers' meeting of the Chicago Church federation in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, 19 South La Salle street. His subject will be "The Strength of the Church."

The Rev. John M. Schneider, chairman of the commission on evangelism of the Chicago Church federation, has announced the speakers for Passion week for the Lenten addresses at the Chicago temple, 33 North Clark street. Tomorrow Bishop Waldorf will preach; Tuesday, the Rev. F. W. Otterbein, North Austin Lutheran church; Wednesday, the Rev. Harold Heininger, Evangelical Theological seminary, Naperville; Thursday, the Rev. Joseph C. Simonson, Morland Lutheran church, Lotus and Huron streets, and on Friday the Rev. George M. Gibson, pastor of the United Church of Hyde Park.

Will Be Flower Show Stylist

Looking like Amy Lowell's lady of the evening flowers, Mrs. Millard Rogers, 5306 University avenue, a member of the Thimble and Thumbs club, will model a wristlet and necklet of pink azaleas mixed with blue and white glory of the morn's at the Chicago Flower show this week on Navy pier. Each day during the show, which opened yesterday and will close next Sunday, the Allied Florists' association will conduct a style competition in flowers. Members of the Illinois Garden club, sponsors of the show, will act as judges.

CHURCH READY TO CELEBRATE SILVER JUBILEE

St. Matthew's Program Starts Sunday.

Despite the old saying that sets the mark at a century, the first twenty-five years are the hardest in the establishment of a church. The Rev. A. F. Bergstrom, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, can testify to this and will note the silver anniversary of his church with a ten day program beginning next Sunday.

St. Matthew congregation was organized in 1914 in a rented store at 852 West 79th street, and a few months later moved to a bungalow at 8008 Aberdeen street, the present parsonage. Services were continued in the little brick cottage until 1921. That year the congregation established itself in the basement of what was to become its new house of worship at 80th and Aberdeen streets.

The present church, valued at $100,000, was dedicated on March 22, 1935, by the Rev. Mr. Bergstrom, who has occupied the pastorate since 1924. There are 506 communicant members in the congregation and 225 children in the Sunday school.

Opens Palm Sunday.

Three services will open the celebration on Palm Sunday. The Rev. Karl Johannson, former pastor, will speak at the regular morning service and the anniversary choir of 70 voices will sing. A reunion, sponsored by the St. Matthew Luther league, will bring 400 confirmed persons together at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Maria society, a women's organization, will serve supper to the group in the church parlors after the service.

A musical program will be given by the choir and the Rev. Mr. Johannson will deliver a short address at an 8 o'clock evening worship.

Historical night will be observed Monday evening, April 3. Three pastors who have served the congregation during the last twenty-five years will be present.

Concert Tuesday Night.

Tuesday evening the anniversary choir will present a musical concert and Wednesday afternoon will mark a silver anniversary program by the Woman's Missionary society. First communion will be received by nineteen members of the 1939 confirmation class Thursday evening. A Holy Cross service, during which the Lenten offering will be given, will be held Friday.

Dr. Peter Peterson, president of the Illinois Augustana conference, will be gust speaker at the Sunday morning service, April 9.

Climaxing the anniversary programs, a banquet will be held Tuesday evening, April 11, in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BEHIND the scenes note: Success of the play, "One Third of a Nation," which opens Saturday night in the Repertory Group theater, 29 East 7th street, rests for a great part on the shoulders of Jane Swanhuyser, 612 Woodland Park. Not an actress, a writer, an usher, nor a scenic artist, she still is the one who really "makes the wheels go round." As executive secretary of the Repertory group and coordinator, she fits together the work of the actors, writers, directors, and members of the production, promotion, and publicity departments.

Mrs. Edward Loewenthal, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Irving Pfaum, and her two sons, John and Peter, arrived recently from Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Pfaum were war correspondents in Spain and also wrote dispatches from central Europe. Mr. Pfaum, who returned to Chicago last December, and Mrs. Pfaum have taken a residence at 1325 East 52d street. Mrs. Loewenthal is a guest of her brother, Leonard Weill, 4747 Kenwood avenue.

ON the route to becoming full fledged lawyers, six Our Towners, recent graduates of John Marshall Law school, received word last week that they had passed the Illinois bar examination. They are Edward O. Hubert, 4010 Greenwood avenue; David N. Levin, 4710 Ellis avenue; Bernard Hummel, 8911 Exchange avenue; Charles Popejoy, 6212 Dorchester avenue; Herbert Jones Jr., 8151 South Ada street, and Harry R. Talan, 5936 Aberdeen avenue.

Roger Slugg, 215 West 13th street, Chicago Heights, will be one of the sixty students from Grinnell college, Grinnell, Ia., who will participate in the school's fourth annual vocational discovery project in Chicago, April 4 through 7. They will interview representatives from most businesses and professions, to determine what the business world requires of college men and women and what their chances are for success in their chosen fields.

SCHOOL CLOSING LEADS TO SALE SIGNS ON HOMES

Blue Island Is Facing Additional Worry.

The city of Blue Island faces a new alarm due to the closing of its Community High school on March 10, in a consequent increase of homes for sale. Real estate dealers in Beverly Hills and Morgan Park report also that numerous requests for available apartments have been received from Blue Island residents.

The city will vote Saturday on a referendum for higher tax rates to meet the high school district's operating and building costs. The school was closed because of insufficient funds.

Predictions as to the outcome of the special election favor the affirmative, although the proposal has been rejected at the polls three times. The vote in the last two instances revealed a waning opposition, in 1936 being defeated by 5 to 1, in 1937 by 3 to 1, and in 1938 by 2½ to 1.

Favor Increased Rate.

Proponents of the increased rate gained strength recently when a resolution of the Blue Island Lions club, composed of leading men in the community, was made public justifying the drastic action of the board in closing the school and advocating the passing of the referendum.

The proposition asks for an increase in the educational rate from $1 to $1.50 and in the building rate from 37½ to 50 cents per assessed $100. This will mean approximately $4 to $5 added to the average homeowner's annual tax bill.

The Community High school has been able to remain open for the last six months due to the collection of back taxes, but for a number of years has been operating at one of the lowest costs for district high schools in Cook county.

Its financial crisis is due to a declining assessed valuation of property and the increasing enrollment of the school. In 1928 the assessed valuation totaled $19,334,615 as compared with $9,723,000 in 1938, while the enrollment soared from 486 to 1,358.

Defects Are Revealed.

An investigation of the school by P. E. Belting, assistant superintendent of Cook county schools, last December revealed it to be overcrowded despite a large addition in 1936, underequipped, in need of an adequate gymnasium, lacking in industrial and household arts as well as music courses, understafed and at the same time with an underpaid faculty.

The additional building rate asked is necessary, according to John C. Joens, president of the high school board, to maintain and increase equipment.

PERRY STANDS GROUND IN FIGHT FOR WARD SEAT

Bucks Kelly Forces Despite Losses.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Aldermanic runoff battles last week entered the critical period in southwest side wards. Only nine days of the campaign remain before the polls open on April 4. Contests are in the wards where no candidate won a majority in the election last month. All except the two leaders in each ward have been eliminated.

State's Attorney Thomas Courtney's defeat in the mayoral primary left Ald. Harry E. Perry at a disadvantage in the 18th ward. This is Courtney's home ward and Ald. Perry has acted as the state's attorney's personal leader in the city council.

The regular Democratic forces carried the ward for Mayor Kelly by a wide margin and placed their aldermanic candidate, Bernard J. O'Hallaren, at the top of the ticket. Now Ald. Perry is trying to overtake him.

Perry Stands Aloof.

It is reported that following the primary many who supported Courtney hurried to climb back on the Kelly bandwagon. Thus Ald. Perry was further weakened. But he is making a determined fight to retain his organization. He is one of the few former Democratic leaders who has not tried to offer the peace pipe to the mayor.

Interest in the 16th ward battle was heightened last week when Assistant State's Attorney John S. Boyle, who is running against Ald. Terence F. Moran, council veteran, complained to police over the breaking of a plate glass window of his headquarters, 5918 South Halsted street.

There have been stories of violence in this campaign. Unofficial charges and counter charges of vandalism and attempts to intimidate voters have been hurled back and forth. Boyle's complaint was the first official verification of this talk.

Saloons Are Issue.

Entering the race with the indorsement of Courtney, Boyle has carried his fight into Ald. Moran's strongest territory. Boyle insists that since the primary he is a nonpartisan candidate and he has framed his appeal to the residents to include general improvements throughout the ward.

Years as a leading state's attorney's investigator and prosecutor fitted him to match his adversary's every move in this fight. He has gathered around his standard an organization of amazing strength for so short a time as a political candidate.

In addition to his own workers, observers predict, he will receive the support of most of the regular Republican organization members.

They are particularly anxious to dislodge Ald. Moran, who is one of the city's shrewdest politicians and a powerful figure in the regular Democratic ranks. One of the most important skirmishes is being fought over the question of regulating the saloon business in the residential sections of the ward.

Moran Denies Violations.

Civic groups are reported to have become aroused over the failure of the saloons to close on time and the alleged sale of liquor to minors. Ald. Moran denies that there are any violations. Boyle charges that violations have occurred and that the present alderman is directly responsible.

In the 3d ward, whose boundaries extend into the southwest side, the outcome of the runoff battle hinges upon the stand taken by Ald. Robert R. Jackson's organization. Ald. Jackson was defeated in his race for reelection last month and will leave the council after the mayor election.

Remaining in the race are former Congressman Oscar De Priest, regular G. O. P. committeeman, and Deputy Coroner Benjamin A. Grant, regular Democratic candidate. The latter is regarded as the stronger of the two.

Ald. Jackson, a Republican, has a strong organization which he built up during his twenty-two years in the council. As yet it has indorsed neither 3d ward candidate. If it elects to back De Priest his election is almost assured. But if the Jackson group leaves the reservation and supports Grant, who also has the support of the city hall machine, his victory is a foregone conclusion.

VESPER SERVICE IS TO DEDICATE NEW HYMNALS

New hymnals will be dedicated with a musical vesper service by the Gresham Methodist church, 87th street and Emerald avenue, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. Charles H. Putnam, pastor, and Miss Myrtle Brandt, chairman of the music committee, will be in charge.

Community singing will be led by Mrs. Jewell Martin Lovejoy, director of music for the Woodlawn Methodist church, and the male quartet of the church will sing. The quartet is made up of Wallace Wyatt, Robert Smead, J. E. Smiley, and Charles M. Bell.

The Gresham choir will be directed by Miss Pauline Willis and accompanied by Miss Marion Klein at the piano and Miss Phyllis Putnam, daughter of the pastor, at the organ. Solos will be sung by Mrs. Lovejoy, Miss Willis, and Miss Putnam.

In Parker School Play

MISS DOROTHY O'MALLEY. [Hoffman Studio.]

MISS WINIFRED WEMBER. [Hoffman Studio.]

MISS EUGENIA KIRBY.

Miss Dorothy O'Malley, 6921 Indiana avenue, will be a dancer in "Sailing Down the River," a dramatic production to be staged Thursday evening, April 6, in Parker High school auditorium, 68th street and Stewart avenue.

Even behind the scenes the production will have its share of pulchritude. Miss Winifred Wember, 6816 Calumet avenue, will do her bit to make it a success as a member of the ticket committee.

A story of the old south, the play will create an occasion for the Parker misses to don romantic hoop skirts and tuck magnolias in their hair. One of the girls in southern costumes will be Miss Eugenia Kirby, who will enact the supporting rôle of Miss Prim.

SOUTH SIDE HAS MAJOR SHARE OF ROAD PROJECTS

Expect County Work to Cost 3 Millions.

An extensive street and highway improvement program for the south and southwest sides, embracing twenty-four projects, will be launched this week by the Cook county highway department. Chosen for the major portion of the year's improvements, these areas will have the lion's share of the thirty-six projects estimated to cost $3,000,000, contemplated by the department.

Bids for the first twelve projects, six of which are in the southern area, will be opened Thursday. Others will be undertaken immediately in order that all may be under contract by the end of April. Construction will start as soon as weather permits.

The amount to be expended cannot be determined until the bids have been examined, but the total will approach $3,000,000. The program will be financed by anticipation warants on the gas tax receipts.

Plan 100th Street Fête.

Characterizing the paving of 100th street between Commercial and Torrence avenue as one of the most important improvements in recent years, a committee of the south area council of the Chicago Motor club recently set July 12 as the tentative date for the celebration marking the completion. Arrangements include an elaborate parade from the Indiana state line through the south section business district and over 100th street.

Pointing out that the newly paved section would be an important part of Illiana drive linking Chicago with Indiana, Clarence J. Bohling, chairman of the committee, said that delegations from Calumet region cities in Indiana would be invited to participate.

Committee chairmen and leaders appointed thus far to handle various phases of the celebration are Henry Smith and Jack O'Keefe, American Legion committee; Lieut. Col. Harry Cotter, marshal; Maj. William Purdy and George Hedges, assistant marshals; Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], route committee; Dr. H. L. Timm, Indiana participation committee; Jack Sheehan, special features committee; Fred Groth, floats committee, and Carl Shanno, industrial participation committee.

Second in Five Year Plan.

The county highway department operates under five year plans with the programs outlined by a joint committee from the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Chicago Regional Planning association. This will be the second year of the 1938-1942 period.

Fourteen of the twenty-three other projects were advocated by the south area council. These call for the paving of:

Beverly avenue from 95th to 103d street.

Pulaski road from 71st to 79th streets.

47th street from Kostner to Pulaski road.

47th street from Pulaski road to Kedzie avenue.

Kedzie avenue from 67th to 79th streets.

Morgan street from 63d to 69th streets.

Torrence avenue from 97th to 104th streets.

Torrence avenue from 134th to 140th streets.

Avenue L from 105th street to Brainard avenue.

Other Improvements in Area.

Seven of the remaining improvements list paving of roads in the far south and southwest side area:

The other two projects provide for construction of a concrete retaining wall on 100th street, 630 feet west of the Calumet river bridge, and of approaches to the Illinois Central railroad on Dixie highway.

WOMEN VOTERS TO HEAR TALK ON 'TAVERNS'

"Taverns" will be the title of a talk by Walter O. Cromwell of the Juvenile Protective association Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Flossmoor League of Women Voters in the home of Mrs. Walter Wiles, Flossmoor. Mr. Cromwell will be introduced by Mrs. Hedley Drew, child welfare chairman, who also will conduct a panel discussion on "Infant Welfare Work" with two members of her committee, Mrs. Howard Adler and Mrs. Eugene Herthel.

NOTED SCHOOL PRINCIPALS ARE DUE TO RETIRE

F. W. Schacht and F. G. Bruner Long in Harness.

This season two of the southwest side's most prominent educators will retire, Frederick W. Schacht, principal of Fenger High school, and Dr. Frank G. Bruner, head of Englewood. Both have been Horatio Algers in education, Mr. Schacht by his energy and eagerness and Dr. Bruner by persistence and patience.

Frederick W. Schacht. [Banks Studio.]

Mr. Schacht, the typical old time school master, will be the reluctant guest tomorrow evening at a testimonial banquet given by the Fenger High School Parent-Teacher association in Mickelberry's log cabin, 2300 West 95th street, and on April 12 at a banquet to be conducted by members of his faculty in International house at the University of Chicago. April 21 is the date set for his retirement.

Birthday congratulations will be mingled with expressions of regret at Englewood High school Tuesday afternoon when quiet Dr. Bruner, who is principal of both the day and evening schools, closes the door of his private office for the last time. In the evening the school faculty will pay tribute to his leadership with a dinner in the Chicago Woman's club and the presentation of a gift.

Will Take It Easy.

Never having been extravagant with a moment in his life, Dr. Bruner has surprisingly announced that after all the celebrations are over he "will take it easy" until September, but his friend, Mr. Schacht, who wears 65 years as mere chevrons, will adopt overal as a uniform. He plans to reforest by himself the 37 acres of land which he owns at Stearns' bayuo on the Gran river.

Dr. Frank G. Bruner. [Moffett Studio.]

As one of 12 men in the Chicago system of education whose record appears in the national "Who's Who in Education," Mr. Schacht has an interesting biography.

Born in the manufacturing town of Moline, Ill., on the Mississippi, he was a sickly youngster until 14 years old. His family sent him to a special German school and there he learned to speak his people's tongue with the accuracy of the scholar and the glibness of a native. This knowledge was to serve him well later.

Attended State University.

Mr. Schacht remembers that his chemistry book referred to water as HC. He was graduated as valedictorian. In 1893 he matriculated at the University of Illinois, then a small educational center of only six buildings and 750 students. His major was zoölogy, under Stephen A. Forbes, who had served as a captain in the Union army.

"We cut plate glass for our laboratary slides," Mr. Schacht recalls. "The science department at the university had to work with practically no equipment."

"At that time," he continues, "I was a skeleton of a fellow weighing only 141 pounds, so I joined the varsity football team." In a short time Mr. Schacht had gained 57 pounds and played half back and end for three years. Many times he tackled Alonzo Stagg, playing coach of the University of Chicago. Thirty years later after Mr. Schacht played on the team he was presented with his letter at ceremonies at the university.

Had Other Activities.

His activities were not confined to athletics, however, although he was president of the Athletic association. Other offices thrust upon him were the presidency of the sophomore class, assistant editorship and later editor in chief of the Illini, associate editorship of the Illio yearbook, secretary-treasurer of the student assembly, trustee and senior president of the Philomathean Literary society, and salutatorian of his class. He was also a member of one of the four campus fraternities, Phi Gamma Delta.

Mr. Schacht's first teaching experience was as a fellow at the university when he taught several classes while working for a master of science degree. He received his initial appointment in the educational field, however, because he spoke fluent German and the president of the Chicago Heights school board was an immigrant from "the old country."

As principal of Chicago Heights High school from 1898 to 1900, Mr. Schacht managed to put the school on the credited lists. He organized Bloom Township High school in 1900.

Held Other Posts.

Other posts were the principalship of the union district high school at Tuscola High school, 1902-'04; principalship of Whiting High school, 1904-'06; instructor in German and science at Phillips High school, 1906-'26; assistant principal at Phillips, 1915-'26; principal of Brenan school, 1926-'29, and principal of Fenger, 1930-'39.

A member of numerous organizations, Mr. Schacht was president and secretary of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity, president of the High School Teachers' club, a member of the Roseland Lions' club, the Prairie club, and an executive board member of the Chicago Federation of Men Teachers.

Bruner Born in Streator.

Like Mr. Schacht, Dr. Bruner was born in a small town, Streator, but education, due to circumstances, was in the luxury class. Orphaned when 5½ years old, the future educator's first work was in a glass factory. He slaved in the factory for six years and lived in an attic with fourteen other boys. He learned to read from dime novels.

Perhaps due to the early epidemic of stories, Dr. Bruner now considers fiction a waste of time but is an avid reader of science and psychology.

At 11 he became a farm hand in Livingston county and another six years passed. Determined to receive an education, he left the farm and came to Chicago. Here a friend informed him that he could enter Valparaiso university without a formal education.

Attend Nebraska U.

After Valparaiso came the University of Nebraska and his bachelor of arts degree. Columbia followed, where he served as student instructor, receiving his degrees of doctor of medicine and doctor of philosophy in psychology.

With such a background, Dr. Bruner was well equipped for a position in the child study department of the Chicago board of education. After seven years he was made director of special schools, supervising the education of handicapped children. Under his administration teachers for this work were increased from 33 to 900.

In 1932 he interested himself in work for deaf and hard of hearing children and was appointed principal of the Beidler school, one of the city's major deaf oral centers. Two years ago he was assigned to the principalship of Englewood High school.

In recognition of his work among handicapped children Dr. Bruner will be paid special tribute by the Chicago Oral Teachers' club at a luncheon in May and will be presented with a token of appreciation.

Thinking of Fall Shooting

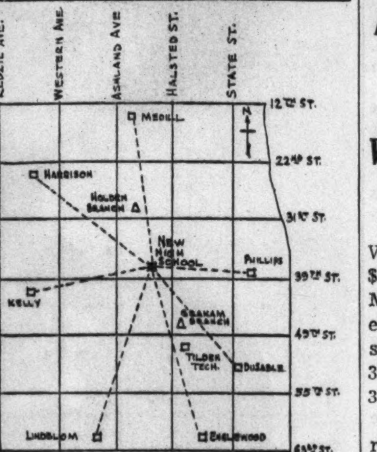
FRANK COGSWELL TO HEAD FOSTER DE MOLAY ORDER

Public installation of officers will be held by the J. Frank Foster chapter, Order of De Molay, Thursday evening in the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 78th street and Union avenue. Officers to be inducted are Frank Cogswell, master councilor; George Appell, senior councilor; Jack Sims, junior councilor; Lewis Ahner, senior deacon; William Walthers, junior deacon; Cecil Blair, senior steward; Duncan Campbell, junior steward; Robert Phillips, marshal; Frank Hansen, chaplain; Patrick Ekman, standard bearer; William Grip, orator; Clarence Hargis, almoner; Howard Hunt, sentinel, and Delbert Bain, Oren Coler, Thomas Yager, Robert Feast, Wilbert Schellhase, David Hagins, and Robert Grip, seven preceptors.

New High School



The site for a new $1,000,000 high school building was selected last Wednesday at a meeting of the board of education and will cover one square block at 36th street and Lituanica avenue and 37th and Sangamon streets. The school is expected to accommodate 1,800 students, relieving the overcrowded conditions in several other high schools. Branches of Englewood housed in the Holden and Graham elementary schools buildings will be eliminated. The site sketched above shows the location to be advantageous for these purposes.

ENGLEWOOD 'Y' TO GIVE SECOND MUSIC FESTIVAL

Five musical organizations of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. will present their second annual music festival Wednesday evening in the main lobby of the "Y," 65th street and Union avenue.

A half hour program will be given by the male chorus, sponsors of the festival. The chorus is composed of twenty voices. Herman Kleinjan, 7058 Parnel avenue, is president, and George Johnston, 103 West 66th street, secretary. The fifteen Sing Song Girls, who are between the ages of 9 and 13, will give a 15 minute concert under the direction of Miss Lenore Erlandson of the "Y" staf.

Paul Carlsted will direct the twelve members of the Women's chorus in several numbers, and the Golden News orchestra of ten pieces will provide instrumental music under the baton of Hubert Hobake, 6545 Union avenue. Solos will be played by members of the accordion class, of which Walter Becker, 5825 Talman avenue, is instructor.

The "Y" also conducts piano classes for children and adults and a Woman's Glee club.

Brainerd Forum to Hear Discussion of Neutrality

"Is It Possible or Desirable for the United States to Maintain Neutrality?" will be answered by J. J. Steen, director of the Chicago School for Adults at a meeting of the Brainerd Young People's forum at 7 o'clock this evening at 88th and Throop streets.

SITE SELECTED FOR HIGH SCHOOL IN YARDS AREA

Will Relieve Crowding in Other Units.

Announcement was made last Wednesday of the site for a new $1,000,000 high school by James B. McCahey, president of the board of education. The building will be constructed on the block bounded by 36th street and Lituanica avenue and 37th and Sangamon streets.

One fourth of the property is already owned by the board and is occupied by the old McAllister branch of Tilden Technical High school, soon to be replaced. Condemnation proceedings for the remainder of the block, on which eleven buildings now stand, will be begun in the near future by the business manager and law department of the board.

To Relieve Overcrowding.

Floor plans are being drawn up and the new building is expected to accomodate 1,800 students. Present sketches call for a fire proof school, modern in every respect. Because of its ideal location, the school will relieve the overcrowded conditions in several high schools. The Holden and Graham branches of Englewood High school as well as the McAllister branch of Tilden will be eliminated.

A large number of students who now have to pay car fare and travel long distances will be in walking distance of the school.

Plans for Building.

The school will probably house the regular classrooms; laboratories for chemistry, physics, biology, zoölogy, and household arts; typewriting rooms, art rooms, band and orchestra rehersals halls, a cafeteria, boys' and girls' gymnasiums with shower and locker rooms, a swimming pool, and an auditorium.

WAR IN SPAIN WILL BE THEME AT LIONS CLUB

The fifth international program conducted by the Auburn Park Lions club will be held Wednesday afternoon in Greene's restaurant, 79th and Halsted streets. Eric I. Grimwade, 5639 Blackstone avenue, war correspondent who recently returned from the Asturian-Saragossa front in Spain, will be the speaker.

Mr. Grimwade will tell of his interviews with officers of Gen. Franco's army. He will be introduced by Morris Orenstein. The Auburn Park Business Men's association have been invited to attend the luncheon.

A bowling team has been organized by the club to compete in the International Lions club district 1A tournament April 16 to 19. The team will be made of L. L. Fox, captain; Ronald Dix, Michael Dwyer, W. J. Herring, and Al Fulsaas.

Mothers to Meet.

Longwood Mothers' club of the Academy of Our Lady will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Da Vinci parlor of the school, 95th and Throop streets.

SCHOOLS READY FOR PART IN BIG MUSIC FESTIVAL

10,000 Students Are to Participate.

Fifteen south and southwest side high schools will participate in the All-Chicago high school music festival to be held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets. More than 10,000 girls and boys will take part, according to Miss Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

SUBURBAN HOME MODERNIZED IN ENGLISH MANNER

Library Corner with Bow Window Added.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is much to arrest the attention and hold the interest in the alterations on the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson on Valley road opposite the eighteenth fairway of the Skokie Country club in Glencoe.

The architect, Jerome Robert Cerny, Clock Tower, Lake Forest, was given the task of modernizing a very substantial but aging home and, after careful study of the house, plans were drawn for extensive and dramatic alterations of the plain, gray cement home.

To give the house a strong English character one interesting gable was redesigned and faced in warm colored stone, and one of the living room chimneys facing the terrace side of the house was also redesigned.

New Conversational Corner.

A third exterior change was the addition of a new library with a bow window. This was built off the living room which was originally a large square room with no particular "conversational corner," where one could sit and chat or read. Now this library, with its bow window, is so situated that it overlooks a fine sweep of lawn and garden in three directions, and is carried out in an English gray-green.

Those who are wondering how they can restyle and improve their homes through paint this spring and summer would find pleasure in the new beauty and gayety that has been given this home by repainting it in a warm buff color, with window sash and frames painted a slate blue and warm terra cotta, so that what was once a gray cement colored house and lovely garden has now unfolded into a softly colored English Cotswald house, with a fresh crispness that reflects happy country living.

Closets Behind Panels.

Now as one enters the home through what was formerly a porch there is an interesting vestibule paneled in wood which takes care of the clothes closets.

The hall was given a new floor of a parquetry color resembling Travertine marble, and the reception hall, which is a large one, has had its walls covered with a Chinese Chippendale paper. The entire stair was redesigned to carry out the motif of this Chinese paper, which is a warm brick color.

The focal point of the living room, with a new deep brown parquetry floor, is the carved marble mantel which is imported from the Chelsea district of London. From this marble mantel, in amber and yellowish tones, the colors for the living room accessories have been chosen.

The dining room, which had a tiled floor, was left intact, except that the rough plaster was refinished to a smooth finish and executed in a large green floral pattern with a silver background.

Kitchen Is Green.

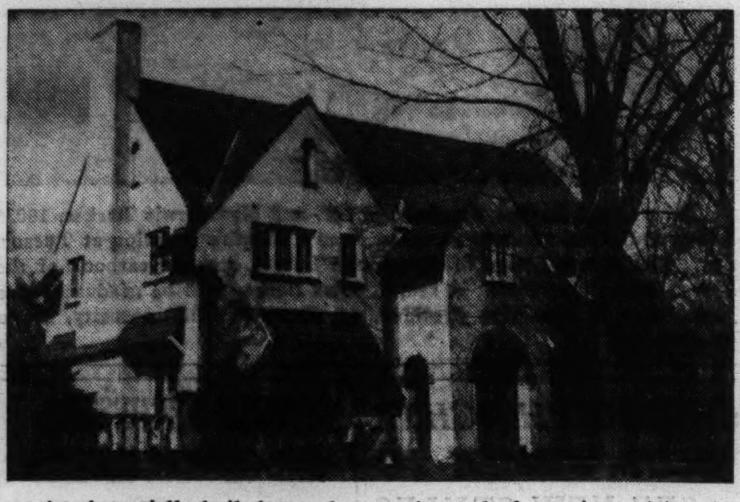
The kitchen has been highly modernized with all modern equipment and is painted in a rich, fine shade of green.

Each of the bedrooms of the house reflects the taste of the owner, as in the master bedroom, which is done in quiet tones of gray, French blue, and pale green, while the older son's room has the modern colors of warm olive green and yellow. This room is arranged in the manner of a young student and has accessories such as gun racks, places for ship models, study desk, and so on.

The younger son's room reflects the spirit of the sports world, with rack of footballs, balls and bats, and other sports equipment. There is also a convenient case for Boy Scout accessories and a double decked bunk.

Modernized in Glencoe

An interesting glimpse of the new library bow window which was added to the living room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson, on Valley road, in Glencoe—just one of a number of fine improvements achieved in process of extensive alterations. Jerome Robert Cerny, architect, Lake Forest and Chicago.



A substantially built house, but one in need of exterior and interior alterations. This picture shows the home as it looked before its structural and decorative modernization began.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 27.

The most important activity for the garden from now until the sap begins to flow is pruning shrubs and trees. Pruning is not trimming, such as hedge trimming, but the removal of wood for a definite purpose—to increase the vigor of a plant, obtain more flowers or fruit, keep the plant in shape, remove surplus wood or injured parts, control disease, facilitate spraying, or train to some desired shape. Pruning should be done only by one who has some understanding of the work. Early spring is a good time to feed trees. Special tree foods are available. Use one pound to each inch of circumference of the trunk four feet above the ground. Bore holes eighteen inches deep at the point of drip or ends of the branches. Fill with half soil and half food. Then wet in with the hose.

Tuesday, March 28.

It will aid the perennials materially if they are given an application of plant food at this time, about four pounds to each 100 square feet of area. It is unnecessary to water it in because the spring rains will wash it into the soil. Do not be in a hurry to remove the mulch from the beds; it is wise, however, to examine the material to see that it is not smothering out any of the plants. A part of the mulch can be removed, if necessary. The roughest material makes fine compost when piled and allowed to decay. Assemble the material for repotting house plants, for it soon will be time to care for them.

Wednesday, March 29.

Any one expecting to sow a new lawn this spring should start as soon as the ground can be worked. Early sowing gives the young grass time to make sufficient growth to withstand early hot weather. Use high grade seed. You may buy a ready prepared mixture. A good mixture for shady locations is 40 per cent Kentucky bluegrass, 20 per cent redtop, 20 per cent rough stalked meadow grass [Poa trivialis], and 20 per cent red fescue. An excellent mixture for open places is 50 per cent Kentucky bluegrass, 40 per cent redtop, and 10 per cent English rye grass. Wait until the young grass has made an inch growth before rolling the ground.

Thursday, March 30.

Plant roses as early as possible, especially when dormant. Potted roses can be planted up to June without injury. Order all shrubs and trees immediately. When nursery stock arrives, heel it in in the garden as soon as received if the ground is frozen or too wet to be worked. Never allow stock to lie around to dry out. Plant trees and shrubs just as soon as the ground can be worked. When planting nursery stock make the holes large enough to accommodate the roots easily without crowding, and firm the soil around and between the roots. Water well.

Friday, March 31.

When repotting the fern that has overgrown the pot, remove from the pot and cut away the lower half of the ball of soil. Remove the crumbling soil from around the top, then repot in good soil. Use the same size pot and pack firmly. If the plant is placed in a shady spot and syringed, it will become reëstablished quickly. Shade during hot weather. A row of sweet peas in the garden looks well and will furnish many bouquets. Clumps look well in mixed borders, but they should not be closer than six feet apart. There are numerous varieties available.

Saturday, April 1.

For those who can give the plants full sun, a collection of the beautifully marked zonal geraniums is desirable. Among the varieties are Happy Thought and Mrs. Pollock, both with highly colored foliage. These are for pot culture, not for bedding outdoors. Transplant the hardy chrysanthemums in spring, not in fall. Take the rooted offsets and plant about nine inches apart in rich soil and in full sun. Pinch about three times during the summer. Sow annuals to obtain early germination and growth. Keep the hotbeds watered and ventilated. Transplant seedlings grown in the house just as soon as they can be handled.

KELLY HIGH CORPS LEADER IS EXPERT IN ATHLETIC STUNTS

Kelly High school this semester has for its R. O. T. C. commanding officer a cadet named Henry Kaczmarczyk who might well be dubbed "Pop-Eye, the soldier man." Henry's career at Kelly has been noted as much for his dexterity and muscular feats as for his progress in junior military affairs. Witness his favorite hobbies: [1] weight-lifting, [2] gymnastics, [3] swimming, and [4] baseball. His classmates know him for his hand balancing stunts and other brawny acts, which he and four other students often demonstrate at assemblies.

Henry Kaczmarczyk.

Henry's ambition is to be either a soldier or a sailor in a career projected from West Point or the Coast Guard academy in New Haven, Conn. Failing these, however, he will settle for a mechanical engineering course at Armour Tech.

While maintaining a G-plus average he has been junior fire marshal, chief of ushers, president of the R. O. T. C. officers club, the "Axe-Grinders" and his home room [for seven semesters], member of the varsity baseball, boxing, and swimming teams, representative in the student council for four semesters, and winner of seven R. O. T. C. medals. He has never permitted this strenuous routine to interfere with his dancing.

R. O. T. C. CADETS TO BE INSPECTED BEGINNING MAY 9

Federal inspection of the twenty-seven R. O. T. C. units in the Chicago public high schools will take place from May 9 to 29, it has been announced by local R. O. T. C. headquarters. It was also made known that June 2 is the date set for the city R. O. T. C. review sponsored annually by the board of education and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

During the inspection each unit will be thoroughly examined and graded on personnel and equipment by a regular army officer. This will follow an outdoor assembly at which outstanding cadets will be presented with medals, most of which will be the gift of THE TRIBUNE.

The entire rosters of all the public high school units plus the St. Mel High school regiment will march down Michigan avenue June 2 in the parade which last year replaced the annual review in Soldiers' field.

NEW CODE RADIO POLICE NETWORK AIDS CRIME WAR

122 Pct. Gain in Illinois State Trafic.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The installation of radio telegraph equipment in all state police broadcasting stations has increased trafic 122 per cent and reduced the time required for handing messages 50 per cent, F. Lynden Smith, director of the department of public works and buildings, has announced.

The code wave equipment which was installed to conform to a federal communications commission ruling against the use of voice messages in interstate trafic has the double advantage of speed and secrecy, Mr. Smith said. It is used in all interstate transmissions and for routine messages in the state systems. Illinois operators since last September have transmitted 54,600 such messages.

Code Range Is Greater.

The Illinois radio telegraph network, designed and built by T. M. B. Lowe, chief state radio engineer, is composed of seven 500 watt stations and one 250 watt station on six frequencies which may be shifted automatically by relays controled from an operator's desk. These transmitters have a range of 250 miles, compared to the 70 miles of the voice transmitters used for messages within the state.

The telegraph system makes it possible for Illinois police to establish quick contact with law enforcement agencies anywhere in the country, Mr. Smith said. Messages from Illinois can be relayed from coast to coast within a few minutes. Hundreds of cities and towns have joined this network and are coöperating with state and federal authorities in this new campaign against crime.

Danger for Criminals.

Almost twenty states are already links in this new network and others are still joining.

The new police communications network is making the highways a dangerous place for criminals, Mr. Smith asserted.

"Although highway police patrol thousands of miles of roads," said Mr. Smith, "the time required for officers to reach the scene of a crime after a message has been flashed has been cut to a minimum.

"Lawbreakers are beginning to realize that police radio systems, working together, serve to enmesh them in a constantly spreading net of enforcement officers, making escape difficult, if not impossible. As a consequence, crime has been reduced with a minimum expenditure of public funds."

Lowe Tells How It Works.

Chief Engineer Lowe described a typical message relay which may involve from one to a dozen rebroadcasts of the same dispatch at various points along the way to its destination.

"Suppose," Lowe said, "that a man with California license plates is being held in Chicago on suspicion by Illinois police officers and immediate information concerning him is wanted from the San Francisco city police.

"The message, originating with station WQPC, Chicago, would be transmitted by station WQPS, Springfield, to the Missouri state police at Jefferson City. From there it would be sent to Oklahoma City, thence to Houston, Tex.; Clovis, Tex., and Pasadena, Cal. From Pasadena it would go to San Francisco, where the man's record would be checked in police files and a reply routed to WQPS over the same chain. The whole process would take thirty to forty minutes."

Messages to eastern seaboard states are sent over a relay embracing Indianapolis, Cleveland, and Buffalo, where they are placed on an eight-state police teletype system. Similar relays are used for messages to other sections of the country.

BLOCKI A CRITIC, AUTHOR, FINALLY RADIO PRODUCER

Fritz Blocki.

An unusually varied career has been the lot of Fritz Blocki, producer of the popular aviation thriller, "Capt. Midnight," aired over W-G-N at 6 p. m. Mondays through Fridays.

Blockie is a radio writer as well as producer. Last year he produced the popular "Court of Missing Heirs" and wrote many of the scripts. Previously he wrote "Backstage Wife," "Betty and Bob," and other radio shows.

Before becoming a radio producer, Blockie for six years was a dramatic critic. He has written and produced plays and worked as a writer with such well known people as Richard Bennett, Willie Howard, Maurice Schwartz, Howard Thurston, the famous magician, and many others.

Before entering theatrical fields Blocki was a magazine writer, and for a year was associate editor of a science magazine.

Producing a radio serial like "Captain Midnight" is the most interesting type of work of all he has done, Blocki asserts. Radio production is a field of never-ceasing interest and excitement.

Leads Band, Sings, Plays Violin, and the Marimba

Don Pedro's South American night broadcasts at 9:15 p. m. Tuesdays on W-G-N from the Blackhawk restaurant offer a variation in dance tempos. With only a small band Pedro has an opportunity to demonstrate his versatility. Besides leading the band he plays the violin, the marimba, and sings in five languages, including in his répertoire many popular songs as well as the Latin numbers his listeners demand.

Best Dressed Benay Venuta.

Benay Venuta, Mutual songstress, has been named the best dressed woman in radio by the Fashion academy. Benay has one of the largest and most varied wardrobes on either stage or radio.

Swing Songstress

AFA BAN ON WPA JOKES IGNORED BY RADIO UNION

But Stations May Blue Pencil Jests.

The ban on WPA wisecracks imposed on the American Federation of Actors is not to be extended to the American Federation of Radio Actors, an affiliate union. Emily Holt, executive secretary of A. F. R. A. informed the National Association of Broadcasters that the A. F. A. action, affecting nearly 10,000 night club and vaudeville performers, would not be extended to the radio union.

Her pronouncement, however, does not mean that radio comedians will be permitted to make sallies about WPA workers who fell down and hurt themselves because termites ate their shovels out from under them. A. F. R. A. performers, Mrs. Holt well knew, still must have their material accepted by the continuity departments of the networks or individual stations before it goes out into the homes of the nations.

The attitude of broadcasters in general to WPA jests was reflected by a spokesman for W-G-N.

"While the question of WPA jokes has never come up," the official said, "we would not be inclined to permit wisecracks reflecting on the misfortunes of any one." We would apply the yardstick of good taste.

The attitude of NBC was set forth by Ken Robinson, head of the continuity department:

"While NBC has no set rules regarding this question," he said, "we would apply the rule of good taste. There may be jokes about the WPA that would not offend any one—including those who work in the WPA. Such jests would be acceptable to the continuity department. But gags which, in our opinion, would be resented and incite bitterness we would avoid."

A spokesman for CBS also stated there were no rules blue penciling WPA wisecracks.

"Our only restriction," he said, "is that material must not offend good taste. We do not want to insult or offend any one."

ELSON ROUNDS OUT TEN YEARS ON W-G-N STAF

Holds Record for World Series Broadcasting.

Bob Elson, W-G-N's veteran sports broadcaster, observed his tenth year on the station by packing up his bags last week and departing for California, where he will visit the training camps of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox.

Bob Elson.

Elson, of course, will be back on W-G-N in April reporting the daily home games of both teams. In addition he will give his nightly sports summary and conduct his daily interviews on the Ladies Answer period. He also makes many personal appearances at banquets and conventions.

Bob got his start in radio on a Minneapolis station in 1927. Then he went to KWK, St. Louis, and joined W-G-N in 1929. Elson has covered more world series games than any other announcer—every one since 1929.

He is the only announcer who has covered every all-star baseball game since the first of the annual events in 1933, and possesses the same record in all-star football games, starting the same year.

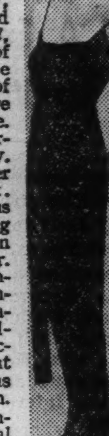
During his decade with W-G-N Elson has covered track and field meets, horse races, and boxing—especially the Golden Gloves tourneys.

Bob's favorite assignment is hocky, and his enthusiasm for that sport is attested by the thousands of fan letters he receives from all parts of Canada as well as the United States praising his good work.

Keeps Weight Down

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—

First, eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating Second, mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strenuous exercises or taking harmful drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.



Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅛ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

AERIAL TORPEDO?
HOW DOES IT OPERATE??
HERE'S HOW — IN THE NOSE OF THE TORPEDO IS AN ULTRA-SONIC SELECTOR — OR, IN PLAIN LANGUAGE, A SOUND MAGNET — WE CAN CATAPULT THIS TORPEDO IN THE DIRECTION OF A DISTANT SOUND AND IT WON'T STOP TILL IT COLLIDES WITH THE SOURCE OF THAT SOUND — AN ENEMY PLANE!
—AND THUS, OUR LITTLE TORPEDO, LOADED WITH A FEW POUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVE, WILL BLAST AN ENEMY BOMBER OUT OF THE SKY BEFORE IT GETS WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE OF OUR BORDER!!
BUT WHAT SORT OF MOTOR PROPELS THE TORPEDO, MR. GUMP?
A RADIO-POWERED MOTOR THAT MY LABORATORY HAS DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR THIS PURPOSE—
IF THE TORPEDO DOES WHAT YOU CLAIM, MR. GUMP, YOU MAY NAME YOUR OWN PRICE!!
MOST AMAZING!!!
I'M NOT HERE TO SELL THE TORPEDO — I AM HERE TO TURN IT OVER TO MY GOVERNMENT GRATIS!
MR. GUMP.
YES SIR—
ALLOW ME TO EXPRESS OUR PROFOUND THANKS — WITH PATRIOTS LIKE YOU BEHIND IT, THIS NATION WILL NEVER DIE!!

LISTEN, SCARDOL, FOR THAT HUNDRED SMACKERS YOU JUST GAVE ME, I'LL DRILL ANYTHING.
BUT YOU PURPOSELY PULLED THIS JOB IN THE RAIN—SO THE COPS WOULD TRACK YOU TO THIS ABANDONED GARAGE AND WE COULD KILL 'EM?
YEAH—YOU SORTA GET THE IDEA, KID.
MEANWHILE
YOU SEE, POP, CROOKS GET TOO SMART FOR THEIR OWN GOOD. THIS STICK-UP NEVER FIGURED MOTHER NATURE'S RAIN WOULD BE HIS DOWNFALL.
OKAY, THERE WE ARE, BOYS!
YEP! THE YELLOW KALSOMINE SPOTS GO RIGHT INTO THAT OLD GARAGE.
YOU FELLOWS COVER THE OTHER SIDE. WE'LL GO IN THROUGH THIS DOOR!
THERE'S THE CAR!
WATCH IT! THE LIGHT'S BAD IN HERE.
HEY, IN THERE! COME OUT WITH YOUR HANDS UP!
LET 'EM HAVE IT!
RAT TAT RAT TAT TAT RAT TAT
RAT TAT RAT TAT TAT
NO.... NO.. I CAN'T.... I.... I CAN'T KILL—I CAN'T KILL.
PUT THAT THING DOWN—YOU CAN'T OPERATE IT ANYMORE!
QUITE A TRAP YOU LAID, RAT.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
Why spend time commuting when you can live down here
NEAR THE LAKE
and near so many interesting things, with only a short walk to and from your office in the loop? [Perhaps you need that walk.] You will really feel at home if you live in the Cook Estate. We have Fireplaces, Bookshelves,
and other things to make you comfortable, and we try to take care of you after you do get in. Do you like a huge living room most unusual in design, flooded with both north and south light with 4 other rooms and 2 baths? Or a little heated 2 bedroom shaggy-roofed house in a little Pomander Walk at the second floor level? Or apartments with bay windows and combination dressing and sleeping rooms? 1 to 6 rooms. All on or near North Michigan-avenue.

Weekly Review of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Prodigals Return.

March 25, 1939.

THE pair of Muscovy ducks that wouldn't leave one of the farm ponds this winter surprised the flockmaster this week by coming back to the poultry yard for a short visit. All winter the flockmaster tried to persuade them to give up their cold and lonely quarters around the frozen pond. But they wouldn't do it.

The holdouts didn't stay around the poultry yard very long. They ate a good meal and then back they went to the pond. Now that the ice has gone the ducks again are enjoying grubbing around for wild food. But the flockmaster takes grain to them every day so they never have to worry about their next meal.

Concern for Starlings.

Bird fans in suburbs and on farms are, judging from letters received this spring, much concerned about the European starlings. Many readers want to know if the starlings interfere with our native species and compete with them for desirable nesting sites. Others would like information on how to keep starlings from taking purple martin houses.

Starlings are getting more abundant around farm buildings every year. In the winter they often roost in silos. On the Du Page county farm we see them increasing around some of the barns. One pair has found a small cavity in a maple tree in which they build a nest each season. When walking through the oak woods we see pairs of other birds that also have taken very small holes or cavities in trees and built nests in them.

The east already has found the starling an unbeatable pest. Some eastern cities have tried to get rid of huge flocks by every conceivable method except killing them. And all have failed to oust the birds which assemble in large flocks, become noisy, defile buildings and generally make themselves a real nuisance.

Take to Country Life.

Here in the middle west they adapt themselves readily to city or country life. If martin houses are available they will move in and keep the martins out. Some bird fans are trapping them on their land to get rid of them. Others seem to like these bold "immigrants" and encourage them. So there are two schools of opinion on their desirability as bird neighbors.

Although it still is too early for the farm workers to get into the fields and prepare for the growing season, the white rock chicks that are keeping warm and snug in their private quarters prove that this is a real growing season for them. The chicks, 149 in number, were three weeks old this week. When we looked at them the other day we could see why they are developing so fast. Their quarters are warm, morning sunshine can reach them, and food always is available so they can eat from sunrise to sunset if they want to.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

MRS. McN.'S MORTGAGE WAS PAST DUE. Also 2 years' taxes and foreclosure threatened. She came to us, really worried, because she was turned down by others and had no kin to advise or help her.

We investigated, and, because the sum needed was too large we got her debts cut down $800. Then we placed for her a new 15 year loan and on top of that one of our officers took pity and co-signed with her because her signature was not acceptable due to her advanced age. Thus we saved her from losing the little she had left.

We can honestly say that we will go a long way, much farther than other institutions to help deserving clients. That is no just talk, but a proven fact.

We grant absolute top loans, 5 to 20 years to buy, build, sell, repair or refinance homes, 2 to 4 flats—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old, and large apartment, store, garage, factory buildings. We place 80 to 90% F. H. A. mortgages. Our commissions are low. On choice F. H. A. loans over $5,000 no commission charge.

If even our most liberal loans won't do, we work to get your top heavy debts cut down. We are in nearly all cases successful because we deliver our check and don't waste time with loose talk.

We help our clients to redeem property, advance funds to heirs and creditors to close estates.

OUR SERVICE IS BY ODDS THE BEST.

"How I Got a Loan of $100 without embarrassment or delay."

"I needed $100 in a hurry. I dreaded to ask friends for a favor. And I had no security for getting a loan at a bank. What was I to do? Fortunately, I heard about Household Finance and so went to a nearby office. The manager was courteous and friendly. He merely asked me a few simple questions. The next day I got the money with 20 months to repay. Only my wife and I signed the papers. I was delighted to get a loan so simply and promptly."

Whether you are married or single, if you need a loan of $20 to $300 the manager of the Household office near you will be glad to discuss your problem with you in complete privacy and without obligation. Why not phone or visit him today?

UNUSED MILES

It is very gratifying to see the number of new Pontiacs on the street, which proves the way the public has accepted Pontiac.

The new Pontiac buyers are turning in good used cars that have plenty of unused miles.

We have thoroughly reconditioned these cars through our reconditioning dept. by a new process, which makes them entirely different than the average used car, called "COMMUNITY RENEWED."

Visit one of our branches today and prove to yourself that they are just what you are looking for.

Ask for our free booklet:

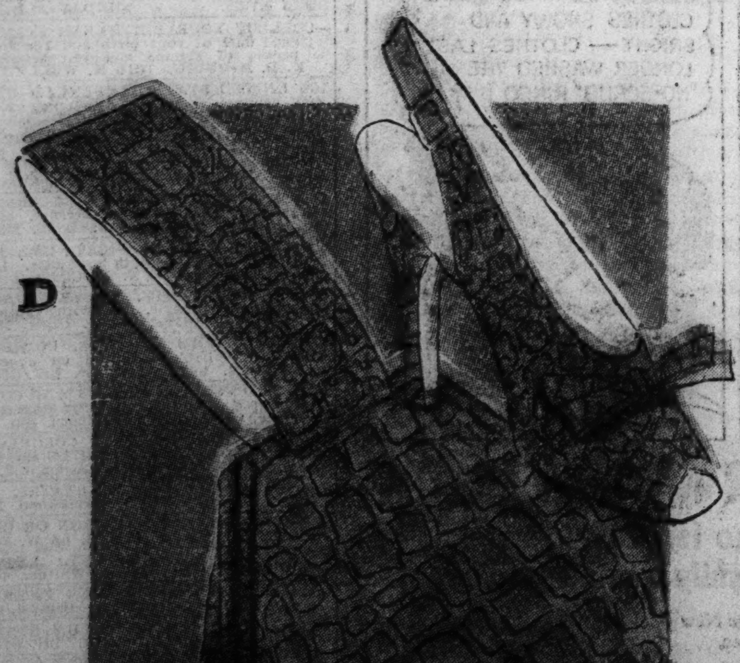
Latest Shoes in Bright Shades, with Handbags to Match, Provide Unusual Contrasts for Your Season's Costumes



By RHEA SEEGER

STEP OUT in color this spring, not only with sprightly tinted tweeds and soft silks but in delectably colored footgear. Rivaling the best color cards of the paint companies, new spring collections of high-fashion footwear provide all sorts of unusual contrasts for daytime and evening clothes. Everything is colored, from trim little street pumps to frivolous sandals with high heels and a twist of interlaced narrow straps over the insteps.

Fascinating kidskins, as soft as thick satin, come in unusual shades such as cyclamen pink, darker fuchsias, amethyst purples, dull old gold, several shades of green, and stunning blues. Presented for the first time in years are the many models in beige ranging from the pale tints to the darker tones. Kidskins combined with fabrics, kidskins with gleaming patent lether, and kidskins with grosgrain ribbon trim—you'll find plenty of all kinds.

Lastex insets, entire models of lastex kidskin, gabardine, and suede make the supercomfortable footnotes of the hour. Street models, dress parade numbers, oxfords—all use this amazing resilient material, and the results are extremely smart in line and tops in foot comfort.

The first showings of spring loot feature patent lether, sleek streamlined beauties for street suits, simple in outline, and graceful affairs with high heels in sandals for afternoon dresses. Bags to match come in every conceivable shape and style, with particular emphasis on very large flat affairs and the capacious pouches with long straps or handles. New this spring are the stunning black patent lether street combines of pump and bag trimmed with shining brass nailheads or studs. Belts, bags, and footgear are trimmed in these small, effective studs.

Beige alligator and beige kidskin make very dress-parade footwear in a neutral tone of beige that goes with everything. Hosiery to match exactly, the stunning bronze suntan shades, or the extremely new and high-fashion contrasts of blue and reddish tones in stockings are fascinating finds ready for the early shopper.

Lace clocks are tremendously important because of their decorative value and because of the short skirts. Black heels and thin back seams outlined in black thread do a grand job of keeping the anklelines slender. All spring hosiery shades are sultry in tone, vivid in effect, the better to dramatize ankles and the new sandals and street footgear.

Never before have there been so many matching bags to team with the slippers, pumps, or street oxfords. A variety of sizes, shapes, and styles makes them especially designed for the costumes which they are to dramatize. Huge sizes for shopping and street clothes, smaller affairs for afternoon dresses, pouches, envelopes, unusual shapes, and virtually anything in the shade or color desired are out now.

Some of the newest color fashions have been sketched. Bags, the right hosiery shades, and footgear all are picked for instant approval and high fashion success.

I suppose that if you want to be old-fashioned you will want to make your own soups, but with me it all depends. If I happen to have some good stock I certainly shall not pass up the opportunity to use it. Which brings up the question—when is a soup a good soup? The answer is simple. It's the stock that gives body to a really good soup.

In a good sized restaurant there is usually an abundance of stock—both beef and chicken, but this is not so in the average home. It's up to the housewife whether she wants to get soup stock the easy way or burden herself with plenty of work and expense.

This very situation came up in my home last night. I have a good recipe for making cabbage soup and had all the ingredients, except those to make the stock. So all I did was to open two cans of beef consommé which I diluted with an equal amount of water and then in a jiffy I had an excellent stock for my cabbage soup.

Now supposing you have no canned consommé in the house, but, instead, a jar of beef extract. All you have to do is to melt two tablespoons of the extract of beef in a little boiling water and then add and stir it into two quarts of boiling water.

Here is the recipe for cabbage soup:

CABBAGE SOUP.

1½ pounds beef and bones
2 quarts cold water
1 teaspoon salt
1 bunch soup vegetables
1 bay leaf
½ pound salt pork (or ham bone
1 small head cabbage, coarsely chopped
½ teaspoon caraway seeds
Salt and pepper to taste
Thick sour cream

Cover beef and bones with cold water, add salt and bring to boiling point. Boil briskly for five minutes, skimming the top of all froth. Add soup vegetables consisting of several stalks of celery and leaves, two carrots, one leek, one onion, several sprigs of parsley, and bay leaf. Let simmer for three hours until a good soup stock is obtained. Strain stock into another sauce pan, discard vegetables and bones. To the strained stock add diced salt pork or ham bone, coarsely chopped cabbage and caraway seeds and simmer for one hour. Season to taste with salt and pepper and serve. Have a bowl of thick sour cream on the table and serve one or two tablespoons with each portion.

Salted codfish when combined with eggs makes a tasty breakfast dish. Try it for a change.

SCRAMBLED CODFISH.

Wash codfish in cold water and soak over night. This will remove enough of the salt to make it edible. Never cut salted codfish with a knife but tear it or shred it with a fork. Beat four eggs and gradually add one cup of milk and one cup of shredded codfish. Turn into hot buttered frying pan and cook over moderate flame, stirring occasionally until eggs and codfish are set. Do not overcook, otherwise the eggs will be hard and dry. Garnish with parsley and triangles of fresh toast.

SWISS STEAK.

Have a thick slice cut from the top round, at least two inches thick. Place it on a heavy board or table and with the rim of a thick saucer pound into it a goodly quantity of flour, or about one-half cup. While pounding turn the meat often so that all the flour may become incorporated. Then season with salt and pepper and a liberal amount of paprika. Put one tablespoon of beef suet drippings in a hot skillet and brown one medium sized sliced onion in it. Then add meat and brown on all sides, turning often. When browned pour in one cup of boiling water and one cup of tomato juice, cover skillet and simmer until meat is tender or about one and one-half to two hours. Thicken liquid in pan with a little flour and pour gravy over steak.

BROILED LAMB CHOPS, CURRANT MINT SAUCE.

Have chops cut at least one inch thick. Put chops on broiler rack and sear quickly in hot broiler oven. Reduce heat, or set rack three inches below, cook slowly twenty to twenty-five minutes, turning once or twice. Season with salt and pepper and as chops are placed on hot dish spread with softened butter.

CURRANT MINT SAUCE.

1 glass currant jelly [6 oz.]
1 tablespoon finely minced mint leaves
Grated rind of half an orange

Combine ingredients and with the prongs of a fork mix thoroughly. Let stand several hours before serving to impregnate jelly with flavor of mint and orange.

BAKED EGGS AU GRATIN.

6 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup grated American cheese
2 tablespoons butter
Paprika

Drop whole eggs into well buttered baking dish, season with salt and dot with butter. Cover top with grated cheese and sprinkle with paprika. Place the baking dish in a pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven until eggs are set then place dish under broiler flame for a minute or two until cheese browns.

ZABAIONE.

This is a delicious Italian dessert and is also a delightful bit of nourishment for convalescents. The real Italian recipe calls for yolks of eggs only, but there is a recipe wherein the egg whites can be used, but then this method is not the genuine Zabaione, but good, nevertheless. The following quantity serves four:

8 egg yolks
½ cup powdered sugar
½ cup Sherry, Marsala, or Madeira wine

Beat egg yolks and sugar together until light and foamy. Turn mixture into top part of double boiler and cook over hot water, beating constantly and adding wine gradually. Do not have more than one inch of water in lower part of boiler otherwise the yolks will cook instead of foaming. When mixture has doubled in bulk remove from heat and serve immediately in small stemmed glasses.

Novel Turkish Stitch in Sweater

By Jean Macdonald.

String, linen, cotton, and lightweight wools are the choice for spring and summer hand knitted sweaters. Raglan sleeves and openwork patterns are being given a great deal of attention this season. The Turkish stitch used in the body of the blouse is a simple and quick knitting job, and is effective against the severity of the stockinette stitch which is used for the yoke in back as well as for the sleeves.

For instructions for knitting the sweater in the Turkish stitch, No. X-226, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

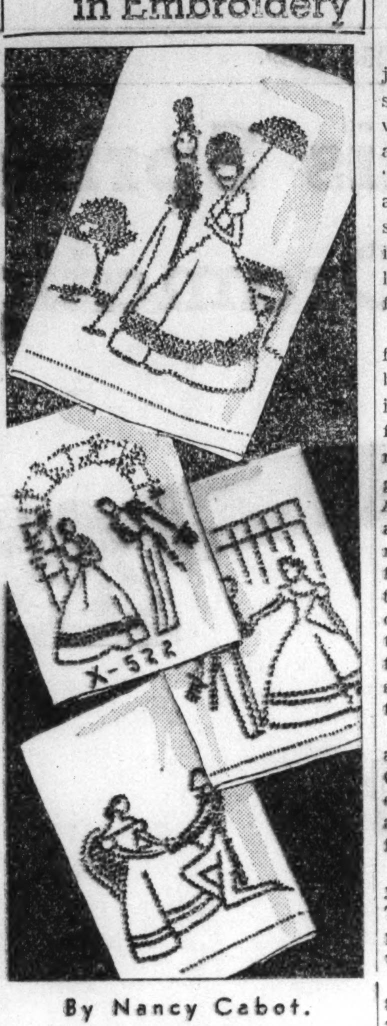
Romance Is Told by Seven Motifs in Embroidery



By Nancy Cabot.

Here is the answer to those many requests from readers for cross-stitch work. In seven pictures, four of which are illustrated, a story of an old-fashioned romance is unfolded. These hot iron transfer patterns may be used on towels, wall hangings, pillows, or for whatever purpose the individual may desire.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the old fashioned romance, No. X-522, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The Clotilde Patterns for the Children

Rightly so, styles for girls and juniors are being created along the same lines. The days are past when we all thought that one was either a little girl or a miss. There are "growing girls" only now, and they all wear clothes styled about the same. The pattern we are presenting today is just such a mode. It has princess lines which flatter every feminine figure, be the wearer 6 or 60.

Since the princess lines mold the frock so beautifully to the figure, no belt is needed, but you may have one if you like, just for the sake of extra finish and dressiness. The neckline may be styled variously, and two suggestions are offered in the sketches. At the left, a scalloped throatline with applique motifs at either side, a decoration in lieu of a collar. [The pattern for this applique is included with the one for the dress, and at no extra cost.] The other suggested neckline treatment gives the frock a collar that contrasts, and is edged with the same plaiting or ruffling that finishes the short puffed sleeves.

Both plain and printed materials are fashionable for this spring frock. Cottons, linens, and silks all make up effectively. If you make the dress of a washable silk it will serve as well for summer as it will for spring.

If you are partial toward boleros you might make one for this frock. The accessory will be particularly pretty with a floor length, evening version of the pattern.

Style No. 2606 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material for the dress, ⅝ yard of 35 inch fabric for the bolero, and ⅛ yard of 35 inch material for the applique motif.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Crossword Answer

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The special postage stamp to advertise the New York world's fair will be placed on sale at the New York postoffice next Saturday. This 3 cent purple stamp was originally scheduled for first day sale on April 30, but has been advanced thirty days in order to publicize the fair before it is actually opened.

This stamp will be a companion to the Golden Gate expedition stamp in its vertical form and large size, and will show the trylon and perisphere, outstanding architectural features of the fair, in white upon a dark background. The inscriptions at the top of the design are, "United States, Postage, and 3 Cents," in three lines of lettering, while at the bottom the words, "New York" and "World's Fair" appear in two lines at the left, with the date "1939" at the right.

Stamp collectors desiring first day postmarks on April 1, may send a limited number of addressed covers, not in excess of ten, to the postmaster at New York, with a cash or postal money order remittance to cover only the cost of stamps for affixing. Postage stamps will not be accepted in payment. Each cover should bear a pencil indorsement in the upper right corner to show the number of stamps to be attached thereto.

Envelopes for covers should not be smaller than 3x6 inches and care should be exercised, since the stamp is of the special delivery size and arranged vertically, to allow ample space for the affixing of singles as well as blocks. Compliance cannot be made with unusual requests, such as the affixing of plate number blocks, etc., and all covers must be fully addressed.

For the benefit of collectors desiring stamps of selected quality for philatelic use, the new stamp will be placed on sale at the Philatelic agency, postoffice department, Washington, D. C., on April 2. The stamp will be available at other offices as soon as possible.

The Vatican City cover used for the principal illustration bears stamps of four issues. At the upper left are three stamps of the Archeological congress held in 1938. The stamps show a view of the famous catacombs.

At the upper right corner of the cover are three stamps commemorating the Catholic World Press exposition held in Vatican City in 1936 and at the lower left are the stamps of the International Juridicial congress of 1934. The lone small stamp is one of the regular postage series and shows the papal arms.

Following the recent death of Pope Pius XI., the current Vatican City stamps were overprinted to indicate that the office of pope was vacant. It is probable that a new issue bearing the portrait of Pius XII. will be made available in the near future.

Stamp Notes.

The 3 cent Ordinance of 1787 stamp, which was released at Marietta, O., and at New York on July 13, 1937, and the 3 cent Northwest Territory stamp which was released at Marietta, O., on July 15, 1938, were removed from sale at the Philatelic agency on March 1.

The Philatelic agency of the Shanghai postoffice will furnish collectors with a list of the stamps which are on sale at present. These include the Sun Yat Sen stamps, both the original series and the reëngraved, the martyr series, air mail stamps of 1932, 1933, and 1937, orange series of postage due stamps, the Sun Yat Sen stamps of both series overprinted for use in Sinkiang, and the martyr also overprinted. Address Chief of Accounts, Postoffice, Shanghai.

Cachets and Covers.

E. S. Williams, 1270 Forrest avenue, Memphis, Tenn., will have a cachet for the annual voyage of R. M. S. Mascopie to the far north. The ship will call at the seven postoffices located in the Canadian Arctic and a cover will be postmarked at each. Since Canadian stamps are required, it will be necessary to send 3 cents for each cover and an additional 1 cent as a forwarding fee. Covers should be addressed and sent in sets of seven to reach Mr. Williams before June 1.

The maiden sailing of the S. S. Panama will be the occasion for a special cover to commemorate the occasion. This cover will be canceled in Panama and a special ship cancelation will be applied on board the Panama. A special cover will show the flags of the United States and of Panama and a view of the S. S. Panama and it is intended to prepay the postage with a special Panamanian issue or with the United States constitution commemoratives of Panama. Address Panama Line Philatelic department, 120 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

If Feet Are in Pain, Consult Your Physician

What are the six causes of dry hair? Antoinette Donnelly lists them in her helpful beauty booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

To the multitude of persons who are in trouble—foot trouble—and don't know what to do about it, Dr. Dudley J. Morton dedicates his book, "O, Doctor! My Feet!" [D. Appleton-Century Co.]. Dr. Morton is associate professor of anatomy, college of physicians and surgeons, Columbia university, and in his vital and informative book about feet, and matters concerning the feet, we are let in on valuable information about feet and their ailments, along with a revolutionary stand about to whom one's troubled feet should be entrusted for treatment.

Knowledge of the feet has not kept pace with the scientific advances in all other parts of the body, Dr. Morton points out. The ideas and concepts of the foot which prevail generally today are virtually unchanged from those held in 1900, he claims, although in all other branches of medicine remarkable advances have been made, with the consequence that treatment of foot ailments has drifted to a very large extent outside of the sphere of qualified professional help. That it rightfully belongs within the professional sphere is the theme of Dr. Morton's valuable volume.

No criticism is aimed at the orthopedic surgeons, Dr. Morton explains. They are recognized authorities on the foot. But their position, according to our informant, has been like that of a single doctor called to a bad train wreck. He has little time for a sprained wrist when surrounded by serious and mortal injuries.

The prevalence of foot trouble is so extensive that the general practitioner, or physician, is the most logical person to apply to for professional care, says our authority. "He is qualified by professional training, and sufficient in number, to meet the situation properly. In addition, the X-ray being the most reliable basis for diagnosing and treating foot trouble, it brings these disorders definitly within the professional sphere.

"When persons with foot trouble begin to consult their own physicians about it they will receive the best and least expensive help, and the foot problem will be on its way toward solution."

Dr. Morton presents a case history with many counterparts among us. The woman comes to his office crying of burning and aching foot soles and pain shooting through the front part of her feet so acute as to be discouraging. Behind her at home is a closet full of unworn shoes bought on what we might term willy-nilly recommendation. The woman begins to explain that she has fallen metatarsal arches.

Dr. Morton sets about dispelling the myth of the metatarsal arch, there being no such thing, in his professional knowledge. There are metatarsal bones, five of them, one behind each toe. In the normal foot, Dr. Morton explains, the first and second metatarsal bones, which lie behind the first and second toes, extend forward the same distance and appear to be the same length. The first is twice as thick as the second; the second is the same thickness as the third, fourth, and fifth. When the bone behind the big toe is much shorter than the one behind the second, and the big toe appears shorter than the second, as we interpret Dr. Morton, we are in for foot aches and pains, particularly if the second metatarsal bone is thicker or wider than the first. What happens is that the shortness of the first bone interferes with its ability to carry its normal share of body weight. Hence, its work has to be performed by the second metatarsal bone, in reality bearing the brunt of the body weight.

Women with such foot conditions are virtually walking and standing on their second metatarsals, whenever they wear high-heeled shoes.

"In other words," says Dr. Morton, "the first metatarsal, which nature designed to carry a double load, fails to carry any."

• • •

Rather than recommending any particular brand of shoes, recommendation of the careful fitting of any conservative shoe, that is, one conforming most closely to the shape of the individual's foot, is our authority's stand in this connection. Just because a person has a little foot trouble the doctor sees no need of putting ugly shoes on him or her. It's like thinking medicine must have a horrible taste to be effective. The feet themselves must be the final judge of what is proper and comfortably fitted.

Dr. Morton asks of a shoe that it have ample width for the spread of the metatarsal bones in the sole, as well as in the upper. The flexible shank is not imperative as witnessed by the fact that the wooden-soled shoes and wooden sabots or other rigid type of footwear have never noticeably impaired feet. There should be a snug fit of the heel. Forbidding the use of high heels, in spite of the fact that the greater frequency of foot trouble in women is directly due to them, is impossible, so our medical adviser asks that high heels be reserved for dress occasions only.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

Sketched are three patterns you will find useful in your daytime wardrobe, particularly if you have a figure that presents problems. The overweight woman has special difficulties in finding dresses to flatter her, but we think she'll like the trio of designs in our presentation today.

At the left a dress with the always attractive princess lines. It makes up beautifully in silks and cottons and is decidedly feminine. The square neckline is treated to the simple touch of lace, and the sleeves, which may be long if you prefer them that way, are puffed at the shoulders. There is no belt, for paneling does all the fitting necessary.

A V neckline that has a soft touch of a bow does the principal honors for the simple dress in the center. The shoulder is cut in yoke effect and the sleeves are allowed to flow gracefully from their puffed source at the armholes. There is shirring to soften the bodice lines and the skirt is semi-fitted. Choose prints for this model, for they're tremendously smart and well suited to the pattern.

Tailored lines prevail in the pattern at the right, with its shirtwaist collar, puffed sleeves cuffed to match, and narrow belt. Buttons do style honors down the front, and there are pockets if you wish them. This dress is styled primarily for tub fabrics, either silk, cotton, or linen.

Style No. 3493 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 39 inch material, with 1 yard of lace for trimming.

Style No. 2507 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2854 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 5 yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Work of Master Designer Will Live After Him

By Edith Weigle.

With the recent death of Johan C. Tapp, Chicago and the entire country lost one of the foremost furniture designers of our day, but the beautiful pieces of cabinet work of his creation, like those of Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton who inspired him, will live on as long as does the American home.

Johan C. Tapp.
[Stone-Raymore Photo.]

Mr. Tapp was born at The Hague, in Holland, Jan. 2, 1888, the son of a Dutch designer and cabinetmaker. He was brought up in the traditions of the old school of excellence and worth in art and was sent to the Academy of Fine Arts in his native city, where, because of his outstanding work, he attracted the attention of H. P. Mutter & Sons, a Holland firm having the reputation of doing the finest work in architecture, decoration, and the manufacture of distinguished furniture on the continent.

• • •

After his graduation he joined their designing staf. Ten years later, in 1914, he came to this country and studied its trends and tastes as well as the American way of living. After a few years' working with other manufacturers he started a small shop for the creation of examples of his own work.

In 1920, together with a few close friends, he organized his own company and his rare genius for fine design and his high standards of craftsmanship gave him a national reputation in the field of fine furniture. He adapted the best styles of the eighteenth century English craftsmen to pieces intended for our own day, in many instances scaling down chests, cabinets, and tables to fit rooms of average size.

He never attempted to "embroider" on the work of the masters of the golden age of furniture design. Whatever adaptation he made was done for the purpose of making the various pieces more useful in present day homes.

Mr. Tapp developed an extremely beautiful antique finish which gave his furniture a feeling of mellowness and age. It is hard to tell some of his pieces from originals of the eighteenth century which have been carefully preserved. Especially noteworthy is a grouping of dining room furniture of the Regency period, the chairs of which are beautiful enough to be museum pieces.

• • •

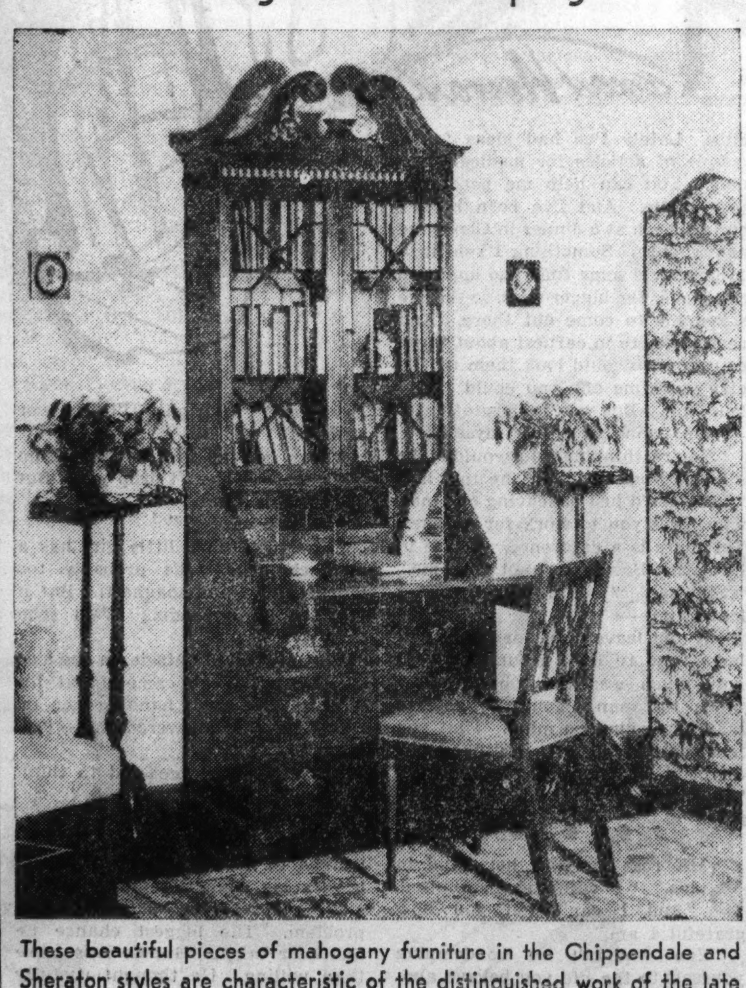
He also experimented with the modern style, creating a number of handsome, conservative patterned living room items: An upholstered, curved sofa, a cabinet and desk inlaid with bands of pewter, a nest of tables, and several other items. These were all done in light woods.

Some ensembles in the French style were also in his collection. These were carried out in a beautiful, light toned walnut. Upholsteries were brocades and satins.

Among Mr. Tapp's designs of bedroom furniture there were Chippendale beds with chair-back head and foot boards carried out in a rich mahogany. And for the living room, a charming Sheraton drum table with drawers beneath a top inlaid with lether.

The photograph today shows a secretary desk in the Chippendale manner adapted from an original piece made in 1777. Notice the beautiful broken arch top and the attractive brasses. A Sheraton side chair accompanies the desk. On either side are matching plant stands with tripod, carved pedestal supports, and a little fretted gallery around the top. All are excellent examples of the work of Johan Tapp.

Living Room Grouping



These beautiful pieces of mahogany furniture in the Chippendale and Sheraton styles are characteristic of the distinguished work of the late Johan C. Tapp, Chicago designer.

You and Baby Have Job to Be Done Together

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

You and the baby have a big job to do together.

Do you know what that job is?

No matter how delicate or complicated they may be, machines are simple compared to human beings. In fact, the more we learn from science about the human body the more we realize how subtle and marvelous it is in its workings and adjustments.

Science from many quarters passes on to us something of its findings and the scientist who has vision sees, while he studies this most exquisite piece of nature's work, how much he [and we] do not yet know. The physiologist, the biochemist, the nutritionist, the surgeon, the general practitioner, all of them, if they're seekers after scientific truth, admit the complexity as well as the fascination of their search. And this complexity is just on the physical side, if one can separate the physical from all else that makes a human being a person.

O, I know that the man who loves machines will want to take issue with the comparison. Any one who has a car, for instance, knows how machines vary and how they can act up. Any one who ever has felt the fascination of those most fascinating of all machines, the locomotives, knows how they develop individuality and exist as "she" to those who tend and run them. In spite of all this the most complicated and perfected of machines is simple compared with a human being. One pushes a handle, a throttle, touches off a contact, and the machine does the work.

But when you do something to, or about, another human being, your child, we'll say, it's a different story. You just don't pull a lever and start things going. You do something and your son and daughter may respond to it in one of several ways. But if one of those ways hasn't in it a coming together with you, that is, if your child can't see things your way and doesn't coöperate with you, then you're not going to get anywhere.

In that knowledge of the need for doing the job together, whether it's deliberate or intuitive on a parent's part, lies much of the secret of success. For you can't raise your baby alone. I don't mean that you can't raise your baby without the help of your husband, mother, sister, perhaps, or a nurse. I mean that you can't raise your baby happily and successfully without the baby's help or, to use that overworked word, his coöperation.

Does that sound silly to you? Being a mother, I know something about raising babies and I assure you that it isn't. And if you'll once get the idea firmly in your head that you must enlist the baby's coöperation you'll find things easier and more interesting. You won't, for instance, say: "Tact? That's just coaxing and wheedling. I intend to tell my child what to do and have him do it. He's got to learn to do things because I say so." You won't, as another instance, say: "Make the doing of things pleasant? Why should I? That's softening. No discipline in that. He'll do things because it's his duty." You won't sniff and say: "Earn a baby's respect! Huh. He'll show respect to me because I'm his father [or mother]!"

You won't, if you get the idea I set down, say or think these things. You'll see that, even if such treatment does succeed, it is either temporary or a surface result.

What it all amounts to, then, is this: You and your baby have a job to do together. That job is raising the baby. Did you ever think of it like this?

• • •

Let's step along, though, on the chance that your baby is no longer a baby. We see that:

You and your little daughter or son have a job to do together.

That job is rearing that small boy or girl.

Did you ever think of it like that?

But why stop there? Your toddler or your 10 year old may be at this moment in the 'teens. If so, you and that adolescent child of yours have a job to do together. That job is getting your tall son or daughter through to manhood or womanhood.

Did you ever think of it like that?

If you can visualize it so, with that togetherness in it, it will help you to success in being a mother, or a father. For, after all, it is a job, being a parent, and it takes some doing to put it over.

So, as I said before, you can't get anywhere without the baby's [or your child's] coöperation. You may fool yourself into thinking that you're bringing up the baby all by yourself, but you're not.

Think a minute of some of the theatrical examples of this, examples in which great big grownups are amusingly powerless. Did you ever see a small child lie on the floor and kick and scream and cry, in spite of commands to stop, to get up, and "people will think you're a baby"?

Did you ever see a little girl refuse to eat, sitting with locked lips, despite cajoling elders?

Did you ever see a baby keep a whole household on the jump from the time he's put in bed until the time his family retires?

I have. I've seen parents powerless to control situations because, in one way or another, they hadn't gotten together with their children. You can tell your small one [or big one] to do something, but actually you cannot make him do it. He's not a robot who obeys at a turn of the switch. If he doesn't choose to do what you tell him you cannot, literally, make him. The impulse to do or refrain from doing has to come from within him, from within any human being. It is because of this freedom of the human spirit that we have heroes, saints, and martyrs, those who have stood their mental or spiritual ground, not to be coerced by any sort of force.

What is the answer, then?

The answer is that you must manage your child, either intuitively or by thought and study, depending on your nature, so that he wants to do the things he needs to do for his own growth and well being in general.

In other words, you and the baby have got to get together on this job of raising him. And whether or not you get together depends upon you. You're the one who swings it. You're the one who "sets the tone" of your relationship to each other.

So do what millions of attractive blondes do. Use New Blondex, the special shampoo that washes it shades lighter and brings out the full radiant loveliness, the lustrous sheen and highlights that can make blonde hair so beautiful. Blondex costs but a few pennies to use and is absolutely safe. Fine for children's hair, too. Get New Blondex today at any good store.

Through the Looking Glass

Every woman who likes lovely, unusual fragrances will love a new cologne, perfumed with the blended scent of lotus and lavender. It combines the refreshing note with the sophisticated, and is unlike any scent you've known before.

Nothing that has come to our desk, always laden as it is with perfumes and powders and beauty gadgets of all sorts, has created quite so much commotion among the onlookers as a new lotus lavender cologne. A blasé audience of women, and even some men who profess to hate scents of all kinds, raved about the fragrance.

We did a little raving ourselves. And so will you, probably, when you come to know it. It's quite unusual. The scent of lavender we all know, and many of us like immensely. This is lavender—plus!

• • •

In this cologne the lavender note, brisk and fresh, is topped by the lotus note. We can't say we know much about the fragrance of the lotus, but we're told that it's a member in good standing of the water lily family. At any rate, the note we suppose is lotus in this exquisite blend is as pungent and sweet as water lilies are. The blend of the two gives one of the most intelligent and appealing scents we've found in a long time. The lavender and the lotus balance each other perfectly, the latter giving the cologne a sophisticated, lush accent that is missing in lavender alone.

The staying power of the scent is another pleasant and admirable feature of this new cologne. We tried it. All our willing experimenters were delighted to try it. And the final vote was that the scent was more highly concentrated than that found in nine colognes out of ten.

Does this all sound very luxurious and expensive? It's luxurious, undoubtedly, but it isn't expensive. We were delighted to find that this perfumed cologne had been priced the way colognes should be. Our pet peeve, often voiced to manufacturers, is that colognes should not be priced as perfumes are. Fancy bottles and fancy prices [the one usually means the other] make a woman feel that she must use her cologne gingerly, as she would an actual perfume. One of the important features of enjoying cologne to the utmost is in using it generously, as an after-bath rub or a fragrant, refreshing addition to the bath or shampoo rinse water. You can't slosh it around to your heart's content when it's expensive.

This lotus lavender sensation is in a simple but right kind of bottle, and comes in two sizes. You'll find it one of the beauty bargains of a lifetime, and unless we miss our guess, you'll find it a marvelous spring and summer aid to that precious sense of well being and daintiness.

THE STORY TO DATE

● Joan Armstrong learns that Adelaide Noonan, with whom she'd attended secretarial school, has collapsed with tuberculosis just as she was about to start work as secretary to William Bowen, executive of an export firm. Dr. Deering, friend of Adelaide's father, has gotten the job for her and has now arranged to send her to his uncle's sanitarium in Arizona. Joan has longed to work, but agreed with her parents that she shouldn't deprive some needy girl of a job. She has refused to marry faithful Tommy Emerson, whom she doesn't love. Now Joan offers to hold down the job for Adelaide and send her the salary. With the aid of Bob Deering she wins the chance in spite of the misgivings of Bill Bowen, her employer. Joan moves into an apartment of her own. From Alice Daniels, Bowen's ex-secretary, who left his employment when she married, Joan learns that her employer is married and that his wife is in a sanitarium, insane except at intervals since the birth of her son. Her elder sister, Anita Hadley, takes care of Bill Bowen's child and household. At Christmas time Joan shops for little Bill Jr., as his aunt is ill, and dines with his father in the latter's den, where Joan has decorated a Christmas tree for her employer's son. The friendship between Joan and Bill Bowen becomes more personal. Tommy teases her about falling in love with her boss, and Joan begins to wonder. Yet she is happy in her work and the friendship of Bob Deering. When she tries to promote romance between the doctor and Adelaide, Bob shocks her by telling her that he loves not Adelaide but herself. Because she is rich, however, he does not ask her to marry him. Martha Larkin and Anita Hadley strike up a friendship that has the "defeat" of Joan for inspiration. Martha cultivates Anita and encourages the latter's jealousy of Joan. Joan accompanies Bill Bowen on a business trip to South America. The emotional attraction between them proves too strong. On their last night there Bill takes Joan into his arms, and she responds to his kiss. They admit their love for each other. Torn with conflicting emotion on her return, Joan agrees to go on working for him. Martha starts rumors of scandal. When Bill refuses to dismiss Joan, Anita Hadley leaves his home.

ON THE following day Bowen spoke to Joan in the quiet and temporary privacy of his office.

"I'm sorrier than I can say—for everything."

She looked at him without speaking, waiting. And he added with sudden energy:

"That's not true. I can't be sorry for that moment in San Juan. I've tried. But I'm unrepentant. What I really mean is—the gossip. It hasn't been easy for you——"

"No." She thought of her mother and father. They hadn't been angry; it would have been better had they been. They'd been hurt, deeply. She knew that, although they had said nothing and demanded no explanations. "But it doesn't matter," she went on. "Please believe that."

He said, "It would be doing you a kindness to fire you." He turned and regarded her with his flashing smile. "Yet I can't bring myself to that, Joan."

She looked at him a moment. Then, "Have you heard from Miss Hadley?"

"Not a word." He stopped, regarded her keenly. "You don't think that there is any connection between the rumors going around and Anita?" he asked incredulously.

"No, of course not," Joan answered. But she was not so sure. However, she had no intention of adding to an already difficult situation by mentioning Anita's friendship with Martha Larkin. What would have been the use?

Bowen himself retained an unpleasant memory of a little talk with his senior partner. Kirk was not altogether pleased at the way events were shaping. He had said baldly:

"I suppose you know people are talking about you and Joan Armstrong?"

"Ridiculous!" said Bowen shortly.

"That's as may be. But I don't like it. We can't afford any sort of a scandal in the office; emotional involvements have no place during business hours. Not that they don't occur. But in this instance the whole situation is incredibly delicate. . . . If you'd gone off the deep end with, say, the Daniels girl—but Charles Armstrong's daughter——"

"That," interrupted his partner, "is an absurdly snobbish attitude—and damned silly. Ethically, what difference does it make whether the girl in question is my secretary with no outside source of income or the daughter of a rich man?"

Kirk sighed. He said: "You're impossible, Bill. Yet it does make a difference, whether you see it or not. It makes a difference in the kind of gossip and in the people whom that gossip will harm. And in your position——"

"Need you remind me of that?" inquired Bowen, and flung himself out of his partner's office.

He was gone from the office for two days. When he returned, on Friday, without explanation of his absence, he was markedly unhappy and irritable. Joan thought, with a tightening at her heart, "He's been to see Ellen." And after a while he told her. "I've been to Massachusetts," he said heavily. Then he looked at her desperately. "I've got to talk to you," he said. "May I come and see you this evening?"

"Of course," she told him quietly, but her pulse quickened and she was afraid, afraid of what must be said between them when so much had been left unsaid.

He came that evening after Lily had gone and looked about the apartment in a blind, unseeing sort of way. "So this is where you live," he commented. "I've wondered about it often enough. Tried to picture it."

He put his arms about her, drew her close to him for a moment. Then he pushed her hair back from her forehead with a careless hand and looked at her. He said, "You're so damned sweet," and then released her.

He had not kissed her again. He must not. She folded one hand in the other to stop their shaking. She said:

"Come, sit down here, Bill, and do try to—to relax——"

He laughed shortly.

"I'm tied up," he admitted, "tighter than a drum."

When he was settled in the biggest chair the room afforded, with a box of cigarets at his elbow, he spoke again.

"Ellen seemed better than I have seen her in years," he said.

Joan was silent. Her mouth was dry; she could not force herself to utter a word. What was there to say? You could hardly say, "How nice!" in a high social little voice. Or, thinking of yourself, you could not say, "How dreadful!"

So she said nothing. Bowen spoke again:

"It has been this way all along. Periods in which I try to become resigned. Then periods of hope. They don't last. I can't stand it much longer."

She was sitting quite near him. Now she leaned over and took his hand in hers and held it quietly. She said, "I know, Bill, but there's nothing one can do——"

His eyes were bright, a little defiant. "There are other states. . . . O, don't you understand, Joan? Six years is a long time—hoping, fearing, despairing. I've been groping around in a sort of darkness for an eternity. When you came it was like a light at the end of a passage. No one, no doctor, can give me any assurance that Ellen will become herself again."

• • •

SHE asked, very low, "But none will swear that she won't?"

"No. It isn't their profession to withdraw all hope," he said a little bitterly. "Yet I know that I have ceased to hope. It's as if she had died. Can't you understand that?"

She said steadily, "You love her, Bill."

"I love a ghost," he said shortly. "And you—I love you, Joan—you're not a ghost. You're living, breathing flesh and blood. I've a right to happiness. Billy, too. Billy has a right to a normal household," he said pleadingly. "He's fond of you already, Joan. You're sweet with him; he'd adore you, he'd be a different child, a happier child, under your care."

"Please don't talk like that, Bill. It's all so impossible."

"But you love me," he stated.

"I still don't know," she said slowly. "I—you're terribly attractive to me. . . . I want to be with you, want to be near you. If that's love—but——"

"That's love enough for me, Joan," he said. "Don't think I haven't been tortured by all this, wondering what was best for me to do for all our sakes. There's a man coming on from Johns Hopkins next week. He's to meet me here and go on to Massachusetts with me. He's supposed to be a final authority on such cases. I'll talk to him.

"If he can give me his word honestly that Ellen's case is hopeless, that she will be as she now is until she dies—will you marry me, Joan—after I have set myself free? It isn't as if she'd know," he said, haggard. "I'd go to see her as before. . . . And she would always have everything—every comfort and care money can buy for her—Joan——"

She shook her head. Without her knowledge the tears spilled over, poured down her cheeks. She said: "You couldn't. I couldn't, Bill. All our lives together I'd walk with fear — thinking that one day she might come to herself. You couldn't do that to her, Bill; it would be inhuman."

"Don't say that!" she cried, and winced as if she had slapped him across the face. "Don't you suppose I've thought of that, too? If I am willing to take the risk, why not you—if you love me?" He added softly: "Think of small Bill—if you won't of me. He does need you, Joan."

"I can't think clearly of anybody," she said unhappily, "not even of myself."

After a while he said dully:

"I mustn't come here again, I suppose. It isn't fair to you. But it's torment not being able to talk to you—be with you alone. I see you every day—and yet I can't have you to myself."

"Perhaps," said Joan steadily, "it would be better if you didn't see me every day."

"You can't deprive me of that," he told her.

He got up from his chair and went over and pulled her to her feet and held her close again, laying his cheek against her hair. He said, low:

"It's a long time to Monday, Joan. Will you come to see Billy tomorrow? We could take him to the zoo, you and I. . . . You promised you'd go with him again, you know."

She said half angrily, struggling to free herself:

"It isn't fair of you to keep bringing Billy into this!"

"All's fair——" he reminded her.

After he had gone she sat for a long time alone in the living room and wondered what she must do. There was no one to whom she could turn. She could be certain of her parents' sympathy with her in her distress but not of their understanding. She would merely talk to them across a chasm which even their great love for her could not bridge.

She looked at the clock. It was not yet ten. On a sudden impulse she sat down at the telephone and dialed Bob Deering's number. He had said—if ever she needed him. Well, she needed him now. It was, she thought wretchedly, a cowardly thing to do, to take advantage of his love for her. Yet she had no one else.

"Bob? . . . I'm glad I found you in. . . . Have you any calls to make tonight?"

"The last one's been made, unless some one rings me. Why?"

"I'm coming to see you," she said.

"No, I'm all right. I want to talk to you, that's all. And I won't take you out of your office. Some one else might need you," she said, trying to laugh and not succeeding.

"All right," he said briefly, "I'll be here."

She went to her bedroom, pulled a little hat over her curls, shrugged herself into a tweed topcoat, and went out. There was a sparkling freshness in the air; the stars were cold and distant. She hailed a taxi, gave Deering's address, and twice on the way there she contemplated telling the driver she had changed her mind and to take her back home. But she had committed herself. She would go through with it. There was no one she knew as sane and as level-headed as Bob Deering. He was young enough, too, to see things from her point of view—or could he, under the circumstances?

Presently she was in the office which had become so familiar to her since her first visit there the previous autumn, sitting in the shabby deep lether chair beside his desk, her coat over the arm, her hat flung aside.

"You'll think I'm a little crazy," she said.

"No." He looked at her keenly. "What's the matter?"

"I—O, I don't know where to begin!" she said hopelessly.

"Try the beginning; it's always safe. Go ahead. Talk as if I weren't here. I won't interrupt, I promise."

So she began, and so the story was unfolded, little by little. Now and again she stumbled, halted, corrected herself, and then went on. She did not look at him very much. When she did she saw that his face gave no sign of personal emotion except that if anything it was a little graver than when she had begun to talk.

She told him everything, not sparing herself. Her first antagonism against Bowen when she felt his matching hostility, her growing liking and admiration for him, her affection for his little boy, and her very real sympathy with Bowen's private tragedy. And how attraction between them had grown insidiously, and finally the trip to South America and all that had occurred then and since, and tonight. Tonight was the most important of all.

When she had finished she looked at him humbly.

"What shall I do?" she asked.

"The sensible thing," he told her, "would be to resign your position and take a long trip somewhere. But——"

"My family have been urging that," she interrupted. "They want me to go abroad with them. They hold out all sorts of inducements. The yacht hasn't been in commission for a couple of years. Father proposes to commission her this spring . . . she would meet us over there. Is that all you have to offer?"

"I said 'But,' didn't I?" he demanded. "I know that sensible counsel will not appeal to you. Let us look at the situation, if we can, as directly as possible. Tonight Bowen proposed to divorce his wife and marry you. All that stands between you is your fear that Ellen Bowen will some day regain the full authority of her mind and discover what has happened to her marriage since her illness. That it is in fact no longer a marriage. That's it, isn't it, Joan?"

"That's it," she agreed, shivering. "It sounds so ugly when you put it that way—uglier than I had thought. And I thought it bad enough."

"If some one," he said relentlessly, "would give you the absolute assurance that Ellen would never recover, then you would marry Bowen and be happy the rest of your life?"

"I——"

But he went on without waiting for her reply.

"So you've really come to me for that assurance," he said. "You know, I think, that there is very little I wouldn't do in order to make you happy, and so you feel, perhaps, that I will tell you, 'Go ahead, Joan, it will be all right.'"

Joan looked at him with frightened eyes.

"I didn't know," she said slowly, "I give you my word I didn't know that was in my mind. But perhaps it was."

He said:

"I can't give you that assurance, Joan. My knowledge does not go so far. I am not a specialist in mental disorders, my dear. Even if I were, I do not know that I could answer your question with an uncompromising yes or no. Yet because I cannot you will think that it is for personal reasons. You are bound to think that."

"No," she said swiftly, "not of you, never of you!"

"Thank you," he told her, and smiled. "But there is one thing you haven't told me, Joan. Are you in love with Bowen, deeply, irrevocably in love?"

"I don't know. I've told him, too, that I didn't know. When I am with him I am. But when I'm away from him——" She looked at Deering with pleading eyes. "I wonder if you can understand? It sounds so absurd. He's part of the adventure. Going to work isn't an adventure for most girls, even the most ambitious. But it was for me. So he's part of it. Being with him, seeing him, I can't dissociate him from the freedom, the excitement, the gratification I've had from the experience. And I don't know what to do."

He said: "I can't advise you. But I can suggest something I've been in a position to suggest for a very short time.

"While you were away an aunt of mine died in the west. She left me a legacy. It seems large to me. I will reconsider your offer to come here as my secretary, if you will. I'll pay you what Bowen is paying you, and your arrangement with Adelaide can continue. And on Adelaide's return the position can be taken by her if there is no other she would prefer. How about it?"

Joan drew a long breath. After a moment she said:

"But you told me you didn't need——"

"O, I can use you," he said, smiling at her. "I've been doing my own letters, getting out my own bills. Lately I've had ideas for a couple of articles for medical journals. You can help me get those into shape. And I've been booked for a speech at a dinner in Cleveland next month. Something I said in a brief article some time ago appealed to some of the bigger wigs, so they've asked me to come out there. And then if you're in earnest about those courses—we could look them up, I'd give you time off—you could really help me. But you're hesitating?"

"I'm trying to adjust myself."

"You're thinking you wouldn't be altering your position," he told her. "That you'd just be leaving one man who loves you to work for another. Yet there is a difference. You're in love with Bowen and not with me."

She said, "You think that if I leave him——"

"If you leave him, Joan, you will have time to look around and see how much was the job and how much the man. You'll be able to make up your own mind. That you must do for yourself. Neither I nor anybody else can do it for you. Think it over."

• • •

SHE rose and put her hand in his. "I will," she promised, "and I can't tell you how grateful I am."

"You wouldn't be condemning yourself to the life you believe aimless and futile," he said. "You wouldn't be eating out your heart for a time clock and an office while drifting around the world on a yacht." His slight smile took the sting out of the irony. "You'd have plenty of work to occupy you—if of a different kind from the work you've been doing. And you wouldn't be letting Adelaide down. She'd have a job—yours, or another that we'll find for her when she comes home."

"It's too much money," said Joan thoughtfully.

"Of course. But maybe you'll be worth it, and it's the only solution—if it is a solution," he added, half to himself.

"You shouldn't have to pay for it."

His eyes were very bright and dark regarding her. "I'll pay for it," he said, "one way or another. Aunt Mattie's money will run to it." He put his hands in his pockets as they stood together at the office door and tilted himself back on his heels.

"But I wanted to work for you for nothing."

"That wouldn't save Adelaide's face," he told her.

"No. But need she know—until she returns?"

"Don't start any tangled webs," he advised her. "Personally I'd be delighted to have you work gratis and supply Adelaide out of your own pocket. You can afford it, and I have no finer scruples." To her amazement, his eyes were alight with amusement; she had never seen him in a gayer mood, and it had come, now that she thought about it, very suddenly. "But I intend to make you work for the money. You told me once that volunteer workers were irresponsible. Remember?"

"Who was Aunt Mattie? Why haven't I heard of her before?"

"Well, she was my great-aunt. We had a disagreement some years ago. Or rather she disagreed with my parents, gave them, in fact, as bad a case of emotional indigestion as you'll ever see. But she relented eventually; hence the small fortune. Nicely done up in excellent bonds which dropped into my lap. I—called you up when the lawyer's letter arrived. But you were—in Arcadia."

"Where?"

"South America," he said gravely.

Joan flushed hotly. She said: "I see. . . . Bob——"

The telephone rang, and he answered it. She heard him ask alertly:

"What's her temperature? Repeat that, please. One hundred and two point four. Where is the pain? You haven't given her a cathartic, have you? All right. I'll be over at once."

"Let's go," he said, turning from the phone. "I can't drop you. But I'll get you a cab."

"What's wrong?"

"Mrs. Cifarelli's little girl has a stomach ache. It's probably too much candy—and spaghetti. But it may be an appendix. We'll soon know."

His car waited outside on the side street, and a cab came up at his whistle. He said, handing her in, "You haven't answered my — proposal."

"Give me the week-end to think it over."

"Very well. Good night."

The cab drove off, and Deering walked to his car. He was taking a very big chance, should Joan decide to accept his solution of her problem. The biggest chance he had ever taken. But he was more than willing. He thought ruefully of Aunt Mattie. He remembered the day the letter had come and how he had looked incredulously at the typewritten lines and then picked up the telephone to call Joan at the office. Something he'd never done before. He'd say, "Let's go out and celebrate."

A lot of money for a young doctor. A hundred thousand dollars, well invested. An income aside from his practice. An income which would be pin money to Charles Armstrong, in common pins, too. Yet security to offer a girl, even a rich girl. He'd settle the money on her; he didn't give a damn for money except for what it would provide for some one he loved. But Joan had gone to South America. And Bob Deering read the papers.

So he hadn't said anything, not even after she returned. And he hadn't told her that quite recently he had sat uptown in Charles Armstrong's library, talking to him for two hours, very late at night.

"We are worried. . . . I don't know why I tell you, burden you with this—but Joan is fond of you, and you——"

"I'm in love with her, Mr. Armstrong, and she knows it; but——O, don't look so sorry for me. I haven't a chance. Lately I've dreamed I might have. Even if I had thought she cared for me I couldn't ask her to share my particular kind of life—she wouldn't be happy. Or would she? I don't know. . . . And I hadn't the remotest intention of asking her to marry me until recently."

"What changed your mind?" asked Charles Armstrong.

Then he'd told him about Aunt Mattie.

"It wouldn't seem anything to you, sir," he said, "but it's a lot to me. And I thought——"

Armstrong waved his hand. He said: "Don't be stuffy. It's a lot to any one. I don't know of any one I'd rather have Joan marry, Deering. I can tell you that frankly, for, although we've seen very little of you, Joan's mother and I—— My dear boy, to have let money stand in your way for a moment——.

"Some day Joan will have what has been ours. I can't see that far ahead; it may be much less than we had planned, the way things are now. There is no reason why she shouldn't have a good share of it beforehand. I have never believed in making young people wait for dead men's shoes. . . . You could practice where you pleased——"

"I would have been afraid of that," he'd said with a rueful grin. "No, I'll always have to earn my own way. But I thought, with this legacy—that I could at least promise you that Joan would be safe."

"She has an income of her own—in about the same amount."

"I know. I'd planned to tell her to spend that on charity," said Deering. "I could find lots of charity for her to spend it on. But what's the use of discussing this now?"

Armstrong said: "I know we shouldn't discuss it at all. But we feel that she relies and depends on you. And that if ever she should come to you for advice you would give it to the best of your ability. But then I didn't know what you just told me."

"Now you think I can't be impartial?"

"I'm afraid so. You're not superhuman, my boy."

"No, but I'd try to be," Deering told him. "I can't promise anything; she may not ask my advice. She might have some months ago. Now I don't know. And if she does I may not be able to help her. Perhaps not in the way you wish. And she mustn't know we've talked her over. She'd lose all faith in us both."

Thinking of this, he drove toward the Cifarelli stomach ache. And a little later, climbing the stairs of the walk-up flat and bending over the small flushed child in the battered crib, he forgot everything but that child—Joan, Aunt Mattie, the belated legacy, and Bill Bowen, whom he could not bring himself to hate—even now.

On the following morning Bowen telephoned Joan early. She answered him drowsily. She had not slept until early morning, and it was hard to arouse herself.

"Going to make a day of it with Billy and me?" he asked.

"Why——" she hesitated. "I don't know. I mean——"

"He expects you. I'm giving Miss Williams time off. We'll call for you at noon, have luncheon, and then on to the zoo."

She said weakly, "All right."

So at noon the car came with Billy bouncing like a mechanical toy in it. He assured her gravely, while his father smiled, that it had been so long. He held her hand and looked at her with his great dark eyes. She thought with a sudden pang at her heart, whatever happens, Bowen couldn't forget Ellen. The boy must look so much like her. But she didn't want him to forget Ellen. Or did she?

Billy was talking about Aunt Nita. Where was she? When was she coming home?

Neither his father nor Joan, exchanging glances about his dark red head, could answer him.

They had a perfect day. The sun shone, the grass was brighter than early April, and the trees showed a shimmer of green. There were early flowers in the park. In the zoo Billy trotted between them, a hand clasped in each of theirs. And when it was time for tea they had a party in a big hotel overlooking the park, Billy with his glass of milk and his sponge cake. There was an orchestra playing softly, and a great many pretty girls and young men.

"This is nice," said Joan, sighing.

"Nicer than nice," agreed her host, his eyes on hers. And Billy piped up gayly:

"Let's do it every day!"

"You'd get tired of it," Joan warned him, smiling.

"Not if you were there," he protested stoutly. Then he said, "Please come home to supper with us."

"Darling, I can't."

But his father said softly:

"Darling, you must."

Billy looked from one to the other, round-eyed. And after a moment Joan said, wondering where all her will power had gone, "All right, then—this once."

This once, that's what one always said. This once, and meant it at the time.

• • •

IT WAS, she soon saw, a tremendous mistake, going back to the apartment, free of the hostile barrier of Anita's presence, sitting with Billy after she had helped him with his bath, and watching while he ate his supper. And later tucking him up in bed. Too intimate, too sweet. The small hands clung to her, the black eyes were heavy with sleep. "Please stay, Joan. Please don't go 'way."

Later she dined alone with Bowen in the apartment. Miss Williams would not return until after dinner. "So we'll stay with Billy," said his father, "won't we?" So they stayed till he slept and then had dinner within earshot. It was quiet and pleasant and as if she belonged there. But she didn't. Ellen belonged there, not she.

Miss Williams returned at eight, and Joan went through to Bowen's library presently, stood by his desk and looked thoughtfully and unhappily at the picture on it. But Bowen caught her away and into his arms. He said:

"After today you can't say no, Joan, you can't say no!"

She was afraid that she could not. Yet she must. She couldn't spend her life with a ghost, a ghost which might at any moment return to life and reproach her, with every right. And not alone reproach her but claim her own. Bowen was her own, the child was her own. Joan the usurper, the second best—the proxy—there it was again—love by proxy.

She said unsteadily:

"I must go home."

"I suppose you must. I'll drive you."

They were silent during the drive. When she reached her apartment she gave him her hand.

"It's been such a lovely day——"

"I'm coming in."

"No—please——"

"Just for a minute."

The door was opened, they went inside, the door shut. He took her in his arms, kissed her until her knees turned to water. "Now can you still say no?"

She said unevenly, "I can't say yes." And drew away, looking at him with haunted eyes. "There's no use," she told him. "I can't think clearly. I can't act like a rational being. I'm too close to you always. There's just one way to come to some sort of grips with myself and to decide what's best for us all."

"And that way?"

She said slowly, having made up her mind, "I'm resigning from the office, Bill."

(To be continued.)

"If some one would assure you that Ellen would never recover, you would marry Bowen?"

The week ahead looks rather low for the easy worriers; the wise thing will be to stick to hard, cold facts—no guesswork; take no risks. Today: Tendency to be fearful, but being practical is better; be sociable and coöperate.

The Fourth Stage

The fourth stage of human development in awareness is that of the state, or nation. Just as individuals join to become families, just as families join to become clans or cities or organizations, so also do clans join to become nations. The national consciousness is pretty far ahead of most of us in the world today; we use it chiefly in its negative application—when we are "patriotically" afraid.

Your Year Ahead

Your year ahead, from today to next birthday, gets increasingly better, especially April 18 to July 7, Aug. 21 to Oct. 19, and Dec. 4 to Feb. 11. Push ahead. But straighten out past factors. Danger: From now to April 3; Dec. 28 to Jan 15, 1940.

Narrow Lines Ahead, Style Dictators Say

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Fashion dictators have this in common with totalitarian states: They never let us settle down peacefully to the blessings we have. They always are broadcasting new styles, as soon as our clothes programs are all set. And it isn't just "nuisance value," either. They mean business. This spring houses such as Molyneux and Schiaparelli are making a bid to alter the frontier lines of the dress from wide skirted freedom to narrow body lines, with bustles here and there, and aprons, and high waistlines, and, before all, restricted skirt zones pared down to pencil proportions.

They are being backed up by pressure groups of the smart set, who already have begun to spread propaganda for this narrow silhouette by wearing it around in public places. The grossly exaggerated hoop and crinolined dance dress already has received a death wallop. It is replaced by the dress with a wide, but limp, gathered, or plaited, or shirred skirt. And that's just the beginning. The ultra chic are going out to dinner in skirts without a smidge of fullness, except that found in pert bustles at the back, or none at all. Molyneux's Directoire evening dresses, like those Empress Josephine wore, with high waistlines, skimpy skirts, and long chiffon scarfs, are being given a whirl in the high altitudes of top society.

Schiaparelli's equally narrow frocks with bustles and small three cornered shawls around the shoulders, are stepping around in the same circles. Cartwheel hats trimmed with gorgeous plumes are worn with such dresses after dark, and they reduce the visibility of the man in the seat behind you to virtually zero, but nobody cares. It's the last word in chic.

While the full skirted peasant dress is a big shot in daytime fashions, the pressure groups have a word to say in this section, too. Fashionables are beginning to wear afternoon dresses that have very narrow lines, relieved a bit by perky apron tunics or low set fullness, or bustle-like bows at the back of the waistline. The way it looks to me these narrow lines will be high style only for some months but look out for a big putsch of slim line styles after that. So now you know what's ahead.

For the future the dictators also announce a very different color program. Schiaparelli, the author of shocking pink and fuchsia and all the bluish reds and pinks, states that orangey reds are her choice. Corals, tomatoes, and such reds, with strong military red, containing no blue, are what she's okaying. Molyneux serves notice on navy blue to get out of town and brings in marine green, a dark bluish shade, to take its place. Pinks in both camps are pure blush and rose pinks, minus that purple reflection that has dominated even lip stick shades lately. Rich browns, hennas, and sienna are popping up in the biggest houses, the latter paired off with golden yellow and making an enchantment for the eyes. Café au lait [coffee-plus-cream] beige is touted by the big dressmakers.

What the narrow line fashions look like may be seen by consulting some of the latest models. Molyneux's Directoire evening line lends enchantment to a dress built of white and silver brocade, and very like the dresses Mme. Recamier wore for her famous portraits. Silver spangled leaves edge the square neckline, the highest waistline, and the top of the narrow skirt hem. A very long scarf of gray chiffon goes with the dress, and the hair is bound with silver ribbon.

Schiaparelli's bustle dress is made of white satin printed all over with quaint looking ladies carrying parasols, and colored red, green, and purple. The tiny sleeves are made of self-material ruching which edges the back décolletage. Long black gloves are worn. The accompanying enormous hat of black straw has blue, green, and purple feather trimming.

Schiaparelli's famous slim-line apron dress for daytime is made of black brocaded silk with a triple apron, like a maid's apron, below the front of the waistline. It fastens on pearl leaves studded with silver stars. With this dress a ruffled black handbag is worn, and a hat with a ruffled sash of white organdy.

Also from Schiaparelli is the daytime bustle line, done with white piqué, which makes a vestee and bustle bow at the back, the latter having patch pockets and hanky. The dress is black wool. The sailor hat is trimmed with white flowers.

A French Dress for Maturity of Silhouette

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—French couturiers have come brilliantly to the rescue of the mature figure. Too often the women with silhouette problems are overlooked in the grand rush for something new to glorify their slimmer sisters. This year there is no forgotten woman. I'm offering this tremendously smart pattern as proof and I think you'll agree with me.

I didn't have to look far for this model. I stepped into one of the distinguished salons recently and there was a beautiful gray-haired mannequin modeling the dress for one of the smartest matrons in Paris. The original of this frock is in dark blue satin, an elegant fabric with rich sheen to it. It is the perfect material for this frock, since the lines call for a good deal of draping. [A soft crêpe would do as well, of course.] The V and surplice neckline is a tradition in clothing the heavier figure, and it is present in this dress. The stylist has given the model an "uplift" waist that slenderizes the midriff and softens the bust contours. The tied sash echoes the bow treatment of the shoulders. The sleeves are puffed and become fitted as they extend toward the wrists. Almost everywhere in this dress there is deft shirring and the skirt is flared.

Style No. 5287 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement.

Do You Cook for Only Two? Here Are Tips

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Cooking for two in a kitchenet apartment should be a simple matter, but it often isn't. If you're going to get haphazard, careless meals, then it's easier to cook for two than for a larger number. But if you have a conscience and think enough of your own wellbeing and that of the person who eats with you to prepare full and attractive meals, cooking for two is a problem.

You've found, if you're running a twosome household, that except for meats and dairy products there's not much economy in purchasing small amounts of food.

• • •

You sometimes feel silly asking the grocer for a half pound of meat, a single tomato, and two parsnips, and you can't see why in the world parsley and watercress should come in such large, wasteful bunches. It's bothersome to divide recipes, and there are leftovers if you cook full-sized ones.

And yet you are lucky in a number of ways. You have to please only two palates, and this is much easier than to satisfy all of a larger group. You may buy expensive cuts of meat more frequently when there are only two portions to be served. You may wrap your desserts in slathers of whipped cream, for a half pint of whipped cream will go a long way in a small household.

Equipment for cooking and serving food in small quantities is available in department stores, ten cent stores, hardware stores, and even in some drug stores. Pretty colored bowls, small glass casseroles, small frying and baking pans, pint size saucepans, a small double boiler, undersize bread, cake, and muffin pans, a small, heavy pot for deep fat frying, a two cup coffee maker, and an egg beater which will beat a single egg in a cup, these are some of the convenient pieces of equipment which the small household needs.

TO MAKE COOKING FOR TWO EASIER.

1. Keep pastry, cake, biscuit, and pancake mixes at hand at least some of the time. They are great labor and time savers, and aren't an extravagance for a small household.

2. Buy canned vegetables and fruits in small size containers [two servings] to avoid having leftovers.

3. Use a refrigerator dough for bread or rolls. Make it up in different ways for different meals: plain rolls one time, coffee cake, or cinnamon rolls another. Make a full recipe of baking powder biscuit dough at once, but store half for the next day, to be used as shortcake. Or bake it in a waffle iron for the second serving.

4. Make a full recipe of pie pastry, baking individual piclets for one meal and saving the rest of the pastry for tarts several days later. Or use the remainder for the jackets of apple dumplings.

• • •

5. Half a cake batter may be baked as cupcakes, and the rest refrigerated [except angel or sponge batters] for baking next day in another way. Upside-down cake, cake with a fruit sauce or a change of frosting are possibilities.

6. When you have more lettuce or chicory than can be used for salads, cook it and serve as a hot vegetable with butter. Scraps of vegetables such as celery, green pepper, and carrots, when not enough for two servings, may be combined with other vegetables for a buttered or scalloped dish, or for soup.

7. Leftover cooked vegetables may be combined with dressing and used for salads, or may be mashed, seasoned with dressing, salt and pepper, and used as luncheon sandwich filling.

8. These are some of the meats easiest to buy in small quantities: pork or lamb chops, veal cutlet, round steak, hamburger, bulk sausage, frankfurters, canned Vienna sausage, pork links, spare ribs, club steak, porterhouse and T-bone, sirloin, sliced ham, bacon, sweetbreads, kidneys, liver, two-pound pot roasts of beef, broiling chickens, squabs, and canned boned chicken. Fish fillets and steaks, whole perch and other small fish, and shellfish are easy to buy in small quantities. Canned salmon, tuna, shrimp and the like may be kept on hand for emergencies.

9. When bread becomes stale, dry it out in the oven, roll the crums fine, and store in a glass jar for toppings for scalloped dishes. Or use dry bread for bread puddings.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

One of the style successes of the season, whether on campus or off, is the jacket dress. Its versatility is undisputed, its chic standard. With or without the companion jacket it can go to classes, business, and informal social events. The latest brain wave of yours truly is offered for your approval today.

The one piece dress which makes up beautifully in washable silks [mine is a vertically striped material] has a scalloped neckline bound with fabric matching one of the colors in the stripe. If you use a plain color, use any shade that contrasts effectively. The same binding is used around the simple puffed sleeves. A slide fastener, or buttons if you like, does duty down the front. There is a casual air about this dress, and it fits to perfection. The skirt is paneled for slight flare, and there are no plaits to make perfect grooming a problem.

The jacket is not a bolero but a semi-fitted model without a collar and styled so that the front of the dress shows. The sleeves are styled like those of the dress. At the waistline the jacket nips in and is fitted with two buttons. There is a slightly flared peplum.

If you select a striped fabric, make the jacket in a harmonizing plain color. If you use a print, the same principle applies. But if you make the dress in a plain shade, the jacket might be anything.

Style No. T-8614 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20.

Vanderbilt Heiress Knows How to Save Her Pennies

Miss Gloria Laura Vanderbilt, 15, of New York City, is a $4,000,000 heiress, but she knows how to save her pennies. Her thriftiness was disclosed in court records recently, which showed she spent only $52.99 of her yearly $250 allowance for pocket money, and returned $197.01 to be banked for her at interest.

Maid Service Booklet Is Aid to All Women

For a personal answer to your etiquet problems, address your requests to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

By Helen Bartlett.

About six weeks ago we announced, through this column, the completion of a little booklet which apparently our readers were looking for. At least, 4,000 readers were waiting for it. The booklet is entitled "Maid Service for the Average Household." We mention it again for the benefit of those who didn't see the first announcement, or those who forgot or destroyed the paper before they sent in their order for a copy.

• • •

It has been such a popular booklet that we knew you would like to be reminded that it is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby. The price is 5 cents at the counter, or 7 cents postpaid.

The booklet will be interesting to housewives and servants, maids and mistresses alike. For instance, in it is a long discussion of the rules of table setting and the approved methods of table service, all very important in the duties of a maid and equally important to the success, the poise, and the self-possessed calm of the hostess. There is a plan for organizing the housework, too, so that the daily, weekly, and seasonal tasks may be accomplished with all possible efficiency.

Even the women who do their own work, who have no maids, but who are inexperienced housekeepers, might make their job easier.

• • •

Do you know how to announce dinner correctly?

Do you know how to answer the telephone?

Do you know how to receive callers and answer the doorbell?

As mistress of the house do you know what responsibilities you should bear?

There's a copy of "Maid Service" waiting for you. And we'll put a label on it with your name and address just as soon as we hear from you. Address your request to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

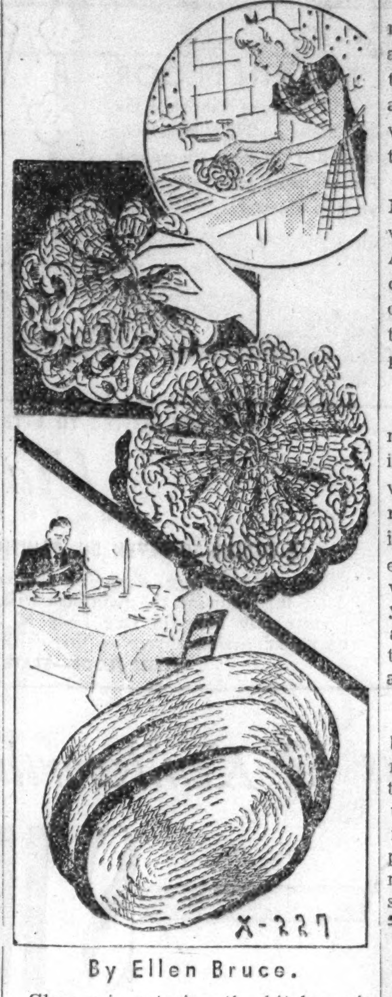
Glamor Entering Kitchen by the Dish Cloth Route



By Ellen Bruce.

Glamor is entering the kitchen via the dish cloth route. This clever and unusual dish cloth is the most utilitarian and best looking of its kind, and also may be used for a boutonniere or one of those foolish little hats. Crocheted of coarse cotton, it is edged with candlewick cotton in a vivid color. The hot plate mats in three sizes are attractive crochet items to be used as shower gifts or prizes. These household gadgets require little time to create, and give a touch of the unusual to the well regulated home.

For instructions for crocheting the dish cloth and hot plate mats, No. X-227, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

If you no longer use your sewing machine, perhaps you'd like to give it to Mrs. X., who lives on the northwest side of the city. She is the mother of two children. Her husband is ill and in a sanitarium at the present time. Friends have given clothing which could be made over for the youngsters if the mother could obtain a sewing machine. She can arrange transportation if the article is available.

Surely some attic or storeroom harbors and old croquet set. I have a recent request from a group of patients in a local tuberculosis sanitarium who are anxious to have one. It is the only outdoor game they are permitted to play, and they would much appreciate having a discarded set.

It Seems 'Kiss the Boys Good-bye' Has a Social Meaning

But Play Critic Prefers Just to Enjoy Gags

By Cecil Smith.

Some weeks ago, when "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" was about to be published in book form, Clare Boothe decided to prepare a preface which would explain her play to the reading public.

When "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" was presented on the New York stage, and later in Chicago, everybody found it to be an enormously funny satiric comedy, making light of the movies' maudlin publicity scheme of working the innocent public up into a sweat over the search for an actress fitted to play Scarlett O'Hara in the film version of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone with the Wind." While the characters seemed rather unlikely occupants of the same Connecticut house over a weekend, they were well devised for the author's satiric purposes, and provided ample opportunity for Miss Boothe to deliver a large number of her celebrated potshots.

Unfortunately, both critics and general public missed the point of the play, as Miss Boothe envisaged that point. My colleagues in New York and Chicago missed it. So did I. Only Miss Boothe knew what the play really meant. Finally, some months too late, she proceeded to let an incredulous and flabbergasted world in on the deep secret.

• • •

"Kiss the Boys Goodbye," according to Miss Boothe's belated confession, is "a political allegory about Fascism in America." While it was conceived in the vein of light comedy, it was intended to carry an undertone of social prophecy that no single auditor ever discovered of his own accord.

This all may sound too unlikely. Actually, however, I am convinced that Miss Boothe's preface is sincere, and that she is making a confession of genuine humility in admitting that she has "missed her target." She missed it in "The Women," too, it seems, for that comedy was never intended to be a general satire on all women, but merely "a sober sided if impolite genre study of Manhattan manners."

She makes a good case for her allegory in the preface to "Kiss the Boys Goodbye." Offering the plausible argument that fascism may heighten its magnetism by presenting a charming instead of an ugly guise to the peoples of a nation, she seizes upon the emotional patterns of the old aristocratic south as patterns of a fundamentally authoritarian, fascist cast.

Cindy Lou Bethany, so beguilingly impersonated at the Harris theater by Lucia Lull, thus becomes the symbol of a fascism which is presenting its most disarming front. And Cindy Lou wins out over her antagonists in the end, just as Miss Boothe fears that a disguised, alluring fascism may some day worm itself into the affections of the unsuspecting American populace.

• • •

So far, so good. But Miss Boothe's allegory—if we accept it at face value—becomes weak drama because it does not pit equal forces against each other. Cindy Lou represents fascism in its most attractive, and therefore its most potent, form. But what of the representatives of democracy, on whose shoulders fails the task of outwitting this choice symbol of totalitarianism? They are human oilcans of the first water—all of them, with the exception of a Mrs. Rand, who is a nonentity in the drama, and of a nitwitted polo player who may be a capitalist but is certainly not a democrat. In an unequal dramatic struggle the only whole character in the play quite appropriately comes out on top, because she is the only one carefully enough conceived to have much credibility.

I propose, therefore, that we give Miss Boothe credit for her attempt at social allegory, and equal credit for her failure to achieve her end. Then I propose further that we all close our Nazi primers and drop the subject of social philosophy altogether.

I wondered how the comedy would affect me, in the light of the preface. So I went back to it last Monday night. As one of a very large audience I fell into the fun of it all much more wholeheartedly than at the opening, and came away convinced that "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" is twice as funny as I had originally thought. The only feeble passage in it is, ironically, the only passage in which fascism is actually mentioned. The rest is a riotous romp, much better acted than ten weeks ago, and a source of real hilarity for all except those who do not care for a bit of dirt here and there.

The cast is unchanged since the première. It has not been permitted to languish, however, or to develop bad habits. Brock Pemberton, the producer, visited last Sunday's performance and pointed up the direction still further. Two days later his assistant, Antoinette Perry, came on from New York for further rehearsal. Consequently the performance is the best it has ever been, and it has always been competent.

Richard Kendrick, the young roué who almost tempts Flora Campbell away from Philip Merivale in "Angela Is Twenty-two" at the Selwyn theater, once worked as office boy in a Chicago brokerage house. His incumbency of this position took place some time between his birth in Vermilion, S. D. and his matriculation at the University of Michigan. After his graduation from college he encountered exactly those difficulties in finding a job on the stage which confront every tyro in the profession. Before he finally broke into things on Broadway he played in stock in Minneapolis, Denver, Ann Arbor, Santa Barbara, and Grand Rapids.

His first New York opportunity was no more than a walk-on part with Lillian Gish in "Camille." Parts in "Double Door" and "Spring Dance" followed, with an interval in which he toured as pianist for Tony Sarg's marionettes. He introduced himself first to Chicago—and very successfully—last season with Joan Bennett in "Stage Door." He makes smooth work of his rôle in "Angela Is Twenty-two," and mildly resents my crack to the effect that he sometimes sounds like Fred Allen. He claims he has never heard Fred Allen utter a syllable.

• • •

His important rôle in "I Married an Angel" at the Grand Opera house would, one would think, be enough to keep even so energetic an actor as Dennis King pretty thoroughly occupied. Yet even though "I Married an Angel" has many more months of life ahead of it, Mr. King has already begun to dream about what he is going to do next. He and a couple of friends want to produce another musical comedy themselves, and what is more, they have a hundred thousand dollars in the bank waiting to be used in the production. But—they have no play! Mr. King genuinely hopes that somebody in Chicago may come forward with just the musical comedy script, or even the germ of an idea, that will be the script or idea the musical stage is languishing for. This, I am assured, is no publicity gag. Mr. King really wants a script, and will be glad to have promising material submitted to him at the Grand Opera house.

In passing, it might be remarked that the total receipts of "I Married an Angel" in ten months at the Shubert theater in New York were $1,000,384. Business is good here, too.

• • •

Beginning on Friday the Chicago theater will present its own seventy minute swing version of "The Mikado" on the stage. A cast of ninety colored performers has been directed by Howard Rogers. John Pratt, who designed the costumes for the successful WPA production at the Great Northern theater, has made new costumes and settings for the production.

Further notes on various swing "Mikados": The ex-Chicago WPA production is pulling 'em in in New York. Michael Todd's "The Hot Mikado" has just opened to give it keen competition. The first jaz "Mikado" was given in Berlin twelve years ago, and included the Charleston among its dance routines.

Kay Ewing, favorably known for her direction of such Federal theater plays as "Big White Fog" and "Within These Walls," is in charge of the Chicago Repertory group's production of "One Third of a Nation." The Chicago première of this play, cast in the form of a "living newspaper," will take place at the Repertory theater, 29 East Balbo street, on Saturday evening. The title, which indicates the subject matter of the play, is drawn from President Roosevelt's second inaugural speech, in which he asserted that "one-third of the nation is ill-fed, ill-clad, and ill-housed."

The Blackstone theater, vacated last night by the departing Federal ballet, will reopen April 11 with Shakespeare's "Othello." Ian Keith will play Iago. A repertory of three Shakespeare plays is projected, with "Hamlet" as the second and possibly "Macbeth" as the third. In addition to acting in the dramas, Mr. Keith is directing them.

Francis X. Bushman, former idol of silent movie audiences, will play the central rôle in the Chicago Mummers' theater performance of "The Bishop Misbehaves," by Frederick Jackson, in the Woman's Club theater April 8. Others in the cast, directed by Sherman Marks, are John Goldsworthy, Lawrence M. Hurdle, Kay Miller, Walter Crowley, Peggy Joyce, Lucy Lancaster, and Herbert Nelson.

EMPIRE ROOM DANCERS

Living up to their billing as "diversified dancers," Miss Franklin Crawford and Joseph Caskey are currently headlining the Empire room floor show at the Palmer House.

CHARM FOR LEWIS PLAY

Plausibility is given the name part of "Angela Is Twenty-Two" by the charm of Flora Campbell. The Sinclair Lewis play is at the Selwyn theater.

Chaps and Girls See Nude Ranch Girls, No Chaps

By Burns Mantle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—[Special.]—The approach to San Francisco's cross-continent preliminary to New York's world's fair is best made at night. In fact, the approach to any world's fair is best made at night—when the more garish of the exhibits and all the unfinished work is mysteriously hidden in the shadows and the outstanding beauties of the scene are brought out in all those indescribable lighting effects to which the present century is the fortunate heir.

The approach, either by ferry or bridge, is startlingly beautiful at night. A dream city on an island in the sea in very fact, as the word-painters have insisted. I had but two nights and an afternoon there, and so, to get an idea of which exhibits attracts the most people, I did a pretty good job of following the crowds.

Well, as you might reasonably suspect, the crowds are favoring the lighter and more frivolous exhibits and the sightseeing elephant trains—caterpillar trailers drawn by motors with elephant shaped hoods, and pretty ugly. Crowds always do favor the frivolous. Still the gayway was far from crowded and when I left San Francisco there were stories in the papers announcing that the fair directors were busily hiring men to think up newer and gayer entertainments.

• • •

The most popular of the exhibits, again, of course, were those with a physical or scientifically anatomical background. There is a Mayo clinic in one of the main buildings in which you can pick out your favorite or most feared operation and study in detail what the surgeons may have done, or should have done, or are, perhaps, going to do to you. Interesting to see the size of the groups about the exhibits featuring operations currently popular or greatly in the public mind. Gall bladders were having their usual run, and stomach ulcers, but the appendectomy corner was still going strong.

And on the gayway, naturally, it was the Sally Rand nude ranch. They are shrewd showmen, the promoters of Sally Rand's nudes. They work the sex lure two ways. Outside the shack in which the nudes cavort the ballyhooers are all big, handsome cow hands wearing the gayest silk and satin shirts of varied colors which are quick to attract the attention of the female of the species as she passes by.

The barking of the ballyhooers, however, is all on the male side. They leer politely and suggest, in a kind of hoarse whisper, that there have been certain subtle changes in the costuming of the Sallies inside.

"We're just trying it out," they say, "and we don't know how long they will let us go on with it. But, brothers, if you take our advice you will see the show now!—Tonight!—Right this minute!—For twenty-five cents! — And stay as long as you like! !"

Whereupon one of the other boys chips in: "Yes, sir! Stay as long as you like! See everything! One old gentleman has been in there since Friday!"

• • •

The arrangement inside is ingenious. You pay your quarter, pass in with the other gigglers and find yourself at the head of a narrow forty-foot hall. At your left a row of plate-glass windows behind which are the B-girls—boots, belts, and bandanas their only visible covering. We would add brassieres if they wore any, but they don't.

Another handsome cowhand stands at the end of the aile at which you have entered, urging you on. "Right down past the windows," he instructs you "Then you can join the other customers back of the railing—and stay as long as you like."

Ordinarily you would be a mite conscious of passing down the aile in front of a hundred, perhaps two hundred, staring eyes. But not this time. The eyes are not staring at you. They never even see you, except subconsciously, as you shut off their view for a split second. So you, too, turn at the end of the aile, urged on by a third husky red shirt, and stop when and where you can find standing room to see what you can see. Of course the tall fellows have the advantage.

The scene is an attractive setting of ranch life against a backdrop of mountain scenery. Four of the B-girls are playing badminton. One or two are lying on their stomachs on Navajo blankets basking in the spotlights and reading. One or two are practicing with their lariats. Others wander aimlessly up and down. All are striving, apparently, for an attitude of complete casualness. If the flopping bandanas worn as chest coverings become disarranged in the heat of play the wearers calmly take time out to rearrange them, while the gigglers "Oh!" and "Ah!" good-naturedly.

There are probably no more than a third as many women as there are men among the railbirds. Frequently no more than a sixth. Mostly they seem embarrassed but interested, preserving a discreet silence and exchanging no more than fleeting, frightened glances with their escorts. Occasionally, of course, they are more brazen, and certainly more critical in their remarks, than the men.

The display of the Sallies is really little different from similar displays in many musical comedies. But the nearness of the stage and the awareness of the audience provide the sensation that is crowding the Rand shack and enlarging the Rand bank account, not to mention the government's tax barrels.

• • •

The real beauty of the fair, however, is as I have said, outdoors, and at night. The courts and the lagoons, the fountains and the palms, the fine buildings, sprayed with under water and over water lights, are pulse-stopping. I don't suppose there ever has been such a display of lighting in any of the world's fairs, considering the day-to-day progress lighting engineers are making. Nor ever will be another such display—until Mr. Whalen opens his exhibit next month in New York.

It isn't quite fair to judge the San Francisco fair this early in its performance. It still is no better than 85 per cent ready. And the weather has been unusual much of the time. I, for example, arrived in an unusual rainstorm and spent most of my three days in unusual mists, overcoated and raincoated not too warm even then.

Caught a glimpse of George Creel, United States commissioner, on the lot, and very enthusiastic about the government's display. I had time for no more than the federal theater feature of this, and here the setup is quite amazingly complete.

A fully equipped stage, electrically manipulated, designed, built, and operated by talent the WPA has had a hand in uncovering, notably that of a youthful electrical wizard named George Izenour of Los Angeles, has a proscenium spread of fifty-two feet. With side pylons that can be electrically operated the opening can be closed to six feet. An innovation is the placing of the electrical room back of the balcony so that the electrician is always in visual touch with the performance on the stage and in telephonic communication with a second board back stage.

It was Hallie Flanagan's idea, supported by that of her immediate superiors, to show in this exhibit both the quality and character of the work accomplished by the theater project. Therefore, there will be forty-five and fifty-minute shows covering the living newspaper, the drama, the dance, and marionette shows that have become factors in the Federal Theater project's work. There are really three theaters in the project—the theater auditorium proper, seating 500, a marionette theater where children can be parked while their elders are in the theater, and a sylvan theater in the court of the Federal building where pageants and other open air shows are to be staged.

Novelty Series

Pierre Monteux and the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, which he conducts, plan to do a series of American novelties during their recently opened season. These include a concertina for orchestra by William Denny of the University of California; a suite by Horace Johnson of New York; an oriental tone poem by Henry Eicheim of Santa Barbara; a symphony by Tibor Serly, formerly with the NBC Symphony orchestra; a dance by Leo Ornstein; "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," by Charles Griffes; "The Last Knight," by Hilda Emory Davis of Philadelphia, and two interludes from the opera "Macbeth," by Ernest Bloch.

"Day's End" Wins.

The committee on playwriting awards of the Dock Street theater in Charleston, S. C., with Du Bose Heyward as chairman, has chosen William Rose Benet's one act play, "Day's End," as the winner of its national award for 1939. Playwrights are invited to submit manuscripts after Oct. 1, this year, for the 1940 awards.

Marine Room Returns Mills to Bandstand

The Edgewater Beach hotel, having discovered an orchestra that fits the suave formality of its Marine dining room, has broken a season precedent by returning Jay Mills to the bandstand. Original plans called for a band a month and a show a week, but the popularity of Mills proved too much for the schedule makers.

The Mills type of music is admirably suited to the softly lighted greens and whites of the famous north shore terrace room. The Mills type of showmanship, based as it is upon years of trouping over the entire country, seems as logical in a vocal presentation of "Gotta Get Some Shuteye," as it does in the presentation of a concert arrangement for the seven violins.

In addition to Mills' own vocals, Mary Fran Sackley, Eugenia McGee, and Stuart Fraser carry frequent solos. Miss Sackley is making her professional debut in the room where she made her amateur debut as a Northwestern co-ed singer on college night programs.

The Mills will grind for three more weeks, then Ray Herveck's orchestra comes in.

An April shower of stars is scheduled for April Fool's eve at Chez Paree Friday night. Five headline acts are scheduled: Cross and Dunn, comedy team; Mary Raye and Naldi, ballroom team; Adelaide Moffett, New York's most successful fugitive from amateur singing ranks; Russ Morgan, current musical sensation of the Chez, and the Weir brothers, three dancing comedians. Kay Taylor is the other member of the new show's cast. A kaleidoscopic background for the show is being prepared by Fred Evans and will be presented by the Adorables.

It will be an all-star finale Thursday for the current Chez entertainment—Benny Fields, Helen Morgan, Paul Haakon, Gloria Day, Everett West, and Harris and Shore.

* *

They never run out of star singers at the Colony club, as Connie Boswell proved Friday when she replaced Peggy Fears, who heads west for a coast engagement. The Boswell voice is perhaps the best known of any on the season's list at the Colony.

The Colony's Monday and Thursday rhumba nights have been taken over by Robert Luis, handsome Argentine instructor of many movie stars. Jose Manzanares plays for the "classes" which are free.

* *

The most spontaneous ovation given a single act this season in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel was accorded Dean Murphy, impersonator, in his debut a week ago—an ovation that resulted in a four week contract. Murphy's mimicry is acid, yet smooth; incisive, yet good natured. Ranking first in popularity is his portrait of President Roosevelt, in which the smile and the head tossing and the hand waving are as effective as the voice.

Joining Murphy, Friday night on the show were Peppino and Camille, dance team. Bob Rich, Northwestern university singer, continues.

Wayne King's restful rhythms come to an end a week earlier than at first scheduled. The Waltz King will take his little princes on a stage tour after April 13. Sixteen more nights to hear Wayne sing "I'm Lonesome," and play "Deep Purple."

* *

Boswelling the Bistros:

It's official now. Tony Owen points with pride to the gaudy peacock over the bar of the so-named cocktail lounge in the Congress hotel. . . . Orrin Tucker's hardest assignment as a maestro was getting his musicians to play sour notes sour enough. It was part of the musical lights novelty, and the players found it hard to be good and bad. . . . Stuff Smith can play music on something besides a violin. The tune of the La Salle's Blue Fountain room cash register was a record breaker for January and February. . . . Celebrity stuff; Shirley Ross, Don Budge, and Mickey Rooney at the Blackhawk, practically on each other's heels. . . . Lou Holtz leaving Sam Lapidus at the Hi-Hat to have a fast and serious game of badminton with Gibby, the deep voiced restaurateur. . . . Found: some one who can give "Basin Street Blues" the same resonant swing that Romo Vincent does—Bob Crosby. . . . The manager of the Stevens hotel, and author of the Continental room dance team's most popular waltz number, is a keen fellow all right but his name is Jones, not Hones, as an errant typesetting machine had it here recently.

* *

If his name were Smith he would be billed as a featured vocalist, but as it is, he's just Bob Crosby, whose band is setting attendance records at the Blackhawk. Crosby's voice is slightly reminiscent of his brother Bing's, but the Crosby named Bob has a distinct singing personality. Crosby keeps the spotlight on his band, and his featured feminine vocalists, sultry Marion Mann and pixilated Dorothy Claire.

Vaudeville

On the Chicago theater stage this week a vacation cruise, "Caribbean Nights," provides the entertainment motif. It features Ciro Rimac and his rhumba-samba band, the novelty trio of Barry, Breen and Wyler, and the Ziegfeld Follies veteran, Jack Durant. The screen attraction presents James Cagney in "The Oklahoma Kid."

At the Palace theater the stage bill lists George Beatty, singing comedian; the Kim Loo Sisters; Oldfield and Ware, comedy acrobats, and the twenty-four Chester Hale girls in new routines. Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer are starred in the motion picture, "Love Affair."

The eight vaudeville acts at the State-Lake theater include the following: Belva White, torch singer; Eugene, xylophonist; Chuck and Chuckles, Harlem comedians; Freddie Craig Jr., mental wizard; York and Tracey, song and dance team; Mardo and Faye, comedians; the Six Jordans, circus attraction, and Billy Reed, master of ceremonies. On the screen "Four Girls in White" offers Florence Rice, Una Merkel, Ann Rutherford, and Kent Taylor in the leading rôles.

In the "Follies Continental" stage revue at the Oriental theater are to be seen Red Donahue and company, Jack Lane, the three St. John Brothers, Helen McFarland, Moran and Wiser, and the twelve Hollywood starlets, a chorus. "The Girl in the Moon" and Lois Fair, amateur contest winner, also perform. The two screen features are "Code of the Streets" and "Tail Spin." The theater is now offering weekly amateur shows on Monday and a radio quiz on Wednesday on its stage.

Star of the Rialto theater's stage production is Evelyn Meyers, with Kenny Brenna, comedian, prominent in the supporting case. The screen feature is "Slave Ship," starring Mickey Rooney, Wallace Beery, Warner Baxter, and Elizabeth Allan.

Enticing Novelties to Enliven Week's Symphony Program

Two Chamber Concerts Due for This Week

By Edward Barry.

Two chamber concerts of extraordinary interest brighten these final days of March. Tuesday evening the Manuel and Williamson Harpsichord ensemble will be presented in concert in Thorne hall by the University college of Northwestern university. Tomorrow afternoon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel the Hans Lange Chamber orchestra and the Philharmonic string quartet play the third program in their series of four.

The two concerts are interesting for quite different reasons. The one Tuesday promises some seldom or never heard works of Johann Sebastian Bach. The Lange program offers first Chicago performances of two modern pieces—a Hindemith quartet and a Florent Schmitt lied and scherzo.

The nucleus of the Manuel and Williamson Harpsichord ensemble is Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson themselves. Dorothy Lane, long an associate of theirs, plays the third of these ancient instruments. For Tuesday's concert there have been enlisted in addition two violinists, a violist, a cellist, and a flutist. Sydnie Smith Cooley, contralto, will be heard in three songs.

• • •

The program is all Bach, and offers two excerpts from "The Art of Fugue," as well as three bits from the infinitely better known "Well Tempered Clavichord." The Fifth Brandenburg concerto, the C major toccata, the C minor passacaglia, and the trio sonata from "The Musical Offering" are the other purely instrumental items of the evening.

To the accompaniment of various groupings of instruments, Miss Cooley will sing "The Power of Ruling," "If Thou Be Near," and "Gods Above Defend Us." The last named is one of Bach's few ventures into comedy and features a hee-hawing instrumental background.

We virtually never hear Bach's works for the instruments for which they were written. Some of these instruments are obsolete, some are not adapted to large modern concert halls. His combinations, in particular, lack the sonority which the present day ear is thought to demand.

Tuesday night's concert derives part of its great interest from the fact that authentic reproductions of eighteenth century harpsichords will be used and that combinations of instruments will invariably be small and in the eighteenth century tradition. Although no one will go so far as to claim that all the music to regale us Tuesday is an exact duplicate of the music of the age of Bach, still the comforting thought remains that it is much closer to that music than anything we are accustomed to hearing. Some of it, indeed, will be as nearly perfect a duplicate as scholarship and study can produce.

• • •

Tomorrow Hans Lange's chamber program opens with a Mozart serenade in five short movements for two oboes, two clarinets, two horns, and two bassoons. From that it proceeds to the two premières. Paul Hindemith, whose quartet in C major will be played by the Philharmonic string quartet, is a hugely important present day German composer. His Mathis Der Maler" music is familiar here—likewise the music which he wrote in the course of his collaboration with Leonide Massine on the ballet, "St. Francis of Assisi."

This C major quartet was composed in 1922 and happens to have been performed that same year in Frankfurt, Germany, by Hans Lange and his quartet.

The Florent Schmitt lied and scherzo is scored for brasses and woodwinds. Despite his name, Schmitt rates as a French composer. His parents were both Alsatians. He has been represented a few times on programs of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

• • •

Today comes one of the great bargains of the music season when the Civic Orchestra of Chicago plays its fourth concert of the year at Orchestra hall. For purely nominal admission prices, patrons are offered a fine live young orchestra and a good soloist. Hans Lange conducts all of today's program except the overture to Weber's "Euryanthe," which he will turn over to Lillian Poenisch of the Civic orchestra's conductors' class.

This Civic orchestra constitutes a training school for orchestral musicians, and is a principal source of personnel supply for various symphonic organizations of importance. The young musicians are tutored in small groups for the most part, but this sort of instruction is supplemented frequently by full orchestral rehersals and occasionally by public concerts.

Soloist today is Alice Tully, American soprano. She is an intelligent, experienced musician who has toured not only her own country but various foreign lands as well. She will sing "Divinités du Styx," from Gluck's "Alceste," and "Dich Theure Halle," from Wagner's "Tannhäuser."

In addition to the three pieces already mentioned, the program contains the Debussy rhapsody for clarinet and orchestra, "Siegfried's Rhine Journey," from Wagner's "Die Götterdämmerung," and the third symphony of Bernard Wagenaar. This last work, from the pen of a Dutch born composer who became an American citizen and now lives in New York, has never before been heard in Chicago. Wagenaar's compositions have been programmed much in the east by top ranking conductors, but he is still largely unknown here. His overture, "Cyrano de Bergerac," has had two performances by the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

SOLOIST TODAY

The first Chicago performance of William Walton's viola concerto will be played this afternoon by Stella Roberts with the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Great Northern theater.

Current Music News

Izler Solomon conducts an unusually attractive program on the Illinois Symphony's concert at the Great Northern theater today. The chief item of interest is the Chicago première of William Walton's Concerto for viola and orchestra. The Englishman—he will be 37 this Wednesday—wrote his concerto in 1929 and no less a person than Paul Hindemith was its first performer. As the first of his mature works, the concerto, with "Belshazzar's Feast" and the symphony, has raised the composer to the front rank of young English musicians. Playing the solo part this afternoon will be Stella Roberts, who has served the cause of music in Chicago long and well as teacher, performer, and composer. The program follows:

Symphony No. 88, G Major.............Haydn
Enigma Variations.....................Elgar
Concerto for viola and orchestra......Walton
[First performance in Chicago.]
Stella Roberts.
Mephisto Waltz.......................Liszt

For the annual concert of its twenty-ninth season the Chicago Singverein has chosen to perform Max Bruch's "Das Lied von der Glocke" ["The Lay of the Bell"]. It is the setting of a poem by Friedrich Von Schiller made by the German composer in 1878. Its last performance in Chicago, in April of 1928, was also by the Singverein. Walter H. Steindel will conduct the presentation on Friday night in Orchestra hall. Besides the chorus the performance will enlist the services of members of the symphony orchestra and the following soloists: Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Freda Draper, alto; Henry Thompson, tenor, and Mark Love, bass.

Fullerton hall will witness a recital tonight by Maria Parissi, soprano, and Andrea De Parry, baritone. George Rott will add a group of piano solos to the program, largely devoted to operatic arias.

Nadia Boulanger returns to the city for another appearance at the Arts club on Sunday night, April 2. This time she will perform instead of lecture and she brings with her Jean Françaix, the young French composer who is Mlle. Boulanger's special protégé. Together they will give a two piano recital, playing several compositions new to Chicago.

The finals of two annual city-wide contests take place this week, both of which are open to the general public for a small charge. On Tuesday night the "young artists'" section of the Society of American Musicians' contest will be held in Kimball hall. And on Friday night, starting at 6:30, the contest sponsored by the Woman's Musical club will take place in Curtiss hall.

A huge three day music festival will begin on Tuesday night in the International amphitheater under the auspices of the board of education. Massed singing and playing will be presented by some 10,000 students from the Chicago public schools. In charge of this project is Helen Howe, director of music in the public schools. She is assisted by Noble Cain, supervisor of choral music; Oscar W. Anderson, supervisor of instrumental music, and a corps of 125 instructors. The programs are open to the public for a small admission fee, tickets being obtainable at the board of education, room 460, at 228 North La Salle street.

Harry K. Gilman will depart from his duties as conductor of the Mundelein orchestra to give a violin recital at the college this afternoon. The program, beginning at 3 o'clock, lists two large works, Vieuxtemps' Concerto in D minor and Wieniawski's "Faust" Fantasie, besides numerous short pieces.

Two European male choruses are headed for this town at the end of April. The Finlandia male chorus, conducted by Prof. Heikki Klemetti, will sing in Orchestra hall the night of April 29. On the following Thursday, May 4, the Norwegian Royal university chorus will be heard in the Auditorium theater. Sigurd Torkildsen directs this 94 year old organization. It has been announced that their royal highnesses Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha of Norway will be present at this concert.

The Hampton quartet from the institute of the same name in Virginia will sing several Negro spirituals, work songs, and plantation melodies at the 7 o'clock service in Orchestra hall tonight. At the Sunday Evening club gathering an hour later Edgar Nelson will conduct the choir in a program of "pre-Palm Sunday" music.

An all-Beethoven program will be given as the next of the "Masterpieces of Chamber Music" series at the Federal Music Concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street. The "Kreutzer Sonata," the Trio in B flat [op. 97], and the String Quintet in C will be played. The program begins at 8:15 o'clock on Tuesday evening.

Third and last of the features to be presented on the Art institute members' dance series will be Clarita Martin, Spanish dancer. May 10, 11, 12, and 13 are the dates of this attraction, scheduled for the Goodman theater.

Carla Bradley will make her Chicago debut as a solo dancer at the Arts club on Monday, April 10. Formerly with the Ravinia Opera ballet, she has since danced extensively in Paris and London, and in 1934 was principal dancer with the San Francisco Opera ballet. Despite her training and experience in classical ballet, Miss Bradley now uses the modern idiom.

The Fine Art Opera company has undertaken the stupendous task of giving all of Wagner's famous operatic cycle, "The Ring of the Nibelungs," on four Sunday afternoons during April and May. Zerline Muhlman Metzger is directing the performances, which will be given in Kimball hall on the following dates: "Das Rheingold," April 16; "Die Walküre," April 30; "Siegfried," May 14; "Die Göterdämmerung," May 28.

Pro Arte String Quartet Will Play Tuesday

By Cecil Smith.

With four brand new works and one almost new one to play this week the Chicago Symphony orchestra peppers its Orchestra hall programs with enticing novelties. In a Tuesday's matinée program departing far from the usual rut of conventionality the celebrated Pro Arte String quartet will appear with the orchestra in new works by Marcel Poot and Bohuslav Martinu. Felix Borowski's Third symphony, recently given its world première in Orchestra hall, will be repeated. The Thursday evening-Friday afternoon pair of concerts offers the first Chicago hearing of Leo Sowerby's organ concerto, with E. Power Biggs as soloist, and the local première of Edwin Stringham's "Nocturne No. 2."

The Pro Arte quartet, hailing from Brussels, Belgium, has won its full measure of approbation here in Chicago. The four capable players have visited the city a number of times, always heretofore under the generous and gracious sponsorship of their patron, Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Both last year and in 1937 the quartet played a cycle of concerts at the University of Chicago. The 1937 series, presenting all the quartets of Beethoven, aroused special enthusiasm.

The engagement of a chamber group for a solo appearance with the orchestra is not wholly novel. Both the Kolisch quartet and the Trio Italiano, of which Alfredo Casella was a member, have performed a similar function. Many years ago the Flonzaley quartet also appeared on a program. The existing répertoire of music for orchestra with chamber ensemble is extremely limited. Most of it is by modern composers, although of course the concerto grosso form of the early eighteenth century also employs a chamber group in contrast to a full orchestra.

The two works chosen by the Pro Arte quartet are Bohuslav Martinu's Concerto for quartet and orchestra and Marcel Poot's Ballade for the same forces. Both Martinu and Poot are relatively young, though old enough to expect that their music might be better known in America than it has yet become. Martinu, a Czech now living in Paris, was born in 1890. Poot was born of Flemish parents eleven years later.

Oddly enough, both composers attained their first prominence from program pieces concerned with aviation. Martinu's "La Bagarre," a symphonic poem portraying the tumult and excitement over Charles A. Lindbergh's landing at La Bourget, was brought to notice by Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony orchestra in 1928. In 1930 at Liége, Belgium, the International Society for Contemporary Music presented the world première of Poot's "Le Poème de l'Espace," which Nicolas Slonimsky in his excellent documentary book, "Music Since 1900," calls a "discordant glorification of a trans-Atlantic flight."

In the last decade such attempts at music representing the last word in aviation have gone out of style, along with music about iron foundries in full swing [Mossoloff's "Soviet Iron Foundry"], skyscrapers and riveters [Carpenter's "Skyscrapers"]; football games [Honegger's "Rugby" and Martinu's "Half-Time"], and railroad locomotives [Honegger's "Pacific 2-3-1"]. The pendulum has swung back and contemporary composers are interested chiefly in purer forms of music, even when, like Poot in the symphony the Chicago Symphony orchestra played last year, they endeavor to employ a jaz style or to introduce other up to date devices of harmony and rhythm.

Leo Sowerby's organ concerto, to be heard Thursday evening and Friday afternoon, received its first performance in Boston last April. Serge Koussevitzky conducted and E. Power Biggs played the organ part. Mr. Biggs, a native of England, is an organist of considerable attainments. At the Germanic museum of Harvard university, where there is a new organ built along the lines of the baroque instruments of Bach's period, Mr. Biggs has played many recitals distinguished by scholarliness and musicianship alike.

Mr. Sowerby's music, happily, has been given frequent performances in Chicago ever since his return from a Prix de Rome fellowship in 1924. He has developed far from the exuberant, youthful style of "Comes Autumn Time" and the orchestral suite, "From the Northland." As a result partly of the evolution of his own musical thought and partly of the evident influence of Vaughan Williams, he has come to write in a thoughtful, often poetic vein which turns the devices and materials of moderate dissonance to a personal expressive end.

When he writes for the organ Mr. Sowerby, better than most American composers, knows what he is doing. If his teaching, his composition, and his direction of the music at St. James' Episcopal church were not enough to keep him busy he could hold his own entirely as a concert organist.

Edwin Stringham, whose second Nocturne appears on the Thursday-Friday program, will be remembered as the native of Kenosha whose first, somewhat impressionistic Nocturne Hans Lange conducted two years ago.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Tonight's auspicious occasion is an opera première—a Greek one at that. "Marco Bozzaris," the work of a nineteenth century Greek composer, Paul Carreri, will receive its first local performance at the Civic Opera house.

Carreri, born in 1829, studied in his native country, Paris and Milan. In the latter city he not only worked under the Italian genius, Verdi, but also saw his first opera, "Dante," performed. Inspired by the struggles of Greece to free itself from Turkish domination, he wrote "Marco Bozzaris," adjudged his greatest work. Supplied with an Italian libretto by Giovanni Casialoupe, the opera was premièred in Italy. Later in a Greek translation it was given in the composer's native country, where it has remained popular to this day.

In the performance tonight three of the leading rôles will be taken by Elizabeth Brown, contralto; Marion Schroeder Booras, soprano, and George Bakriges, baritone. Members of the large chorus are nonprofessionals, drawn from among the Chicagoans of Greek extraction. The production is under the sponsorship of the Hellenic Orthodox church of Chicago, and under the general direction of Mr. Fardulli. Greek will be the language used.

The Chicago Concert and Opera Guild, directed by Silvio Insana, will present excerpts from two operas at the Beaux Arts salon this afternoon in the Medinah club. "Madame Butterfly" and "La Traviata" are the two works, and those participating in them will be Frances Glickman, Lilian Padorr, Estelle White, Louis Jacobi, Esther Block, Irving Feld, and A. J. Bragagnolo. Two groups of soprano solos will be sung by Janet Schultz, who makes her Chicago debut on this occasion.

Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Franz Lehar's "Gipsy Love" constitute the double bill which the American Opera company is staging at Kimball hall tonight. Violet Mumsen and Grace Wolf have the leading soprano rôles in these works.

Since most of this column has already been devoted to operatic activities it will be suitable to mention here the latest developments in the resident company's next season. Jan Kiepura, who has sung here with the Civic Opera company but not with the City Opera company [the present organization], has been engaged for some of the leading tenor rôles. Tito Schipa comes back after a season's absence to sing in those parts for which he is so well liked by local opera fans—Wilhelm in "Mignon," Lionel in "Martha," and Almaviva in "The Barber of Seville." Grace Moore's répertoire for the 1939 season will include "Louise" [first time], "La Bohème," "Manon," and "Madame Butterfly" [first time], but not "Tosca" as originally announced. Gladys Swarthout will have the title rôles in both "Mignon" and "Carmen," neither of which she has yet sung here.

A musical for Paul H. Douglas will be given at 8:30 on Tuesday at the Aragon hotel, 5401 Cornell avenue. Those who will supply the music and entertainment are Agatha Lewis, soprano; David Moll, violinist; Harriet Parker, pianist, and the actor, Ian Keith.

Subscribers to the Musical Arts piano series of the Adult Education council have until April 1 to insure their favorite Orchestra hall seats for the 1939-'40 series. After that date, assignments are made on the basis of "first come, first served." The unusually brilliant array of artists secured for next year includes Gitta Gradova, Rudolph Serkin, Arthur Rubinstein, Thaddeus Kozuch, Alexander Brailowsky, and Walter Gieseking. Subscriptions may be obtained at the offices of the council, 224 South Michigan avenue, or reserved by calling Harrison 9047.

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon the Chicago Mandolin orchestra will play in the Logan Square Masonic temple, 2453 North Kedzie boulevard. The occasion is the annual spring concert and ball of this nonprofessional organization.

The admirable series of free organ recitals in Kimball hall continues this Friday at noon. Archer Lambuth will be this week's performer, and he has included on his program Gardner Read's Passacaglia and Fugue, of which he gave the world première. The Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists sponsors these recitals.

Traces Story of Washington and Jefferson

[This is the sixth of a series of articles on the sesquicentennial celebration of the Presbyterian church of the U. S. A., which is dedicated to higher education.]

By the Rev. John Evans.

Although the Rev. Hezekiah Balch, founder of Tusculum college, Greeneville, Tenn., had gone southwest from Princeton university to establish both church and college, the same compelling log college spirit behind Princeton impelled the Revs. John McMillan and Thaddeus Dod into the western Pennsylvania wilderness.

These men, like Hezekiah Balch, had fortitude. They not only worked their own farms for a livelihood and established churches but also built log colleges on their farms.

Dr. McMillan began his work in 1780, the same year that Dr. Balch moved into eastern Tennessee, and about the same time Dr. Dod began work toward the establishment of an academy. Somewhat later another Presbyterian minister in western Pennsylvania opened a school in his own house. In 1787 his pupils were transferred to Dr. McMillan's care.

Dr. McMillan, a native of Pennsylvania, was of Scotch-Irish descent; Dr. Dod, although brought up in New Jersey, was of New England puritan ancestry. These two strains, each of such significance in the establishment of American traditions, were joined in the opening chapter of the educational and religious history of western Pennsylvania.

The three log colleges were allies rather than rivals, and shortly they were leaders of a movement for the establishment of a single institution which would offer wider advantages and facilities for students.

Washington academy, at Washington, Pa., was chartered in 1787, and Benjamin Franklin gave fifty pounds for the purchase of books for its library. Washington college, on the foundation of the earlier academy, was chartered in 1806, and Jefferson college was chartered in 1802. The two institutions were united by an act of the Pennsylvania legislature in 1865.

The union of the two colleges was the climax of a bitter struggle between residents of the town of Canonsburg, where Jefferson college was located, and those of Washington. The latter was finally victorious, and the whole of Jefferson college was carried overland nine miles to the present location of Washington and Jefferson college.

The Rev. Dr. George Hays, one of the first presidents of the new institution, obtained many large gifts for the building of an endowment.

But it remained for the Rev. James D. Moffat to be the president, who extended the Washington and Jefferson influence throughout the land. He became president in 1881 and remained in office until his resignation on Jan. 1, 1915. Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison was called from the presidency of Teheran college in Iran in 1931 to carry on the log college spirit among the present student body—the largest in Washington and Jefferson's history.

[Next week a list of the fifty-two Presbyterian colleges, with leading points of each, will conclude this series.]

Recordings

Columbia's new recording of Mozart's Concerto No. 24, in C minor, has been made by Robert Casadesus, pianist, and the Orchestre Symphonique of Paris, Eugene Bigot conducting. The concerto's rippling animation is projected lightly, with its serenity of style and refinement of detail never compromised by too casual or too forthright an approach. The piece fills seven sides [four discs] with the odd face given over to Mozart's D major rondo.

Another newly recorded piano concerto is Mendelssohn's bustling G minor. The occasional lyric passages come through singingly, the rushing parts with vigor and conviction. The pianist is Ani Dorfmann, the orchestra the London symphony. Walter Goehr conducts.

And still more piano music is ready in the new Columbia album of Debussy preludes. Except for "La Cathedrale Engloutié," there are present here all of those fragrant wisps of musical imagination which compose the first book of the Debussy preludes. In addition there is the famous "Jardins sous la Pluie," by the same composer. All of the pieces are played by deft Walter Gieseking, who reproduces the Debussy magic like no one else.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Here's a picture that husbands and wives can enjoy contentedly together, for no man should crab over his spouse's partiality for the magnetic Boyer when Irene Dunne is on hand to delight the masculine eye and ear.

As a romantic team these two popular players are top notch. Each has skill and engaging personality. They work together smoothly and "Love Affair" proves a honey of a vehicle for them.

It tells a good little story, so skillfully directed that the action invariably eases away from soppiness sloughs into the pleasant valleys of laughter.

The principals are a gay American girl and a fascinating foreign philanderer who meet aboard a ship bound for New York. . . . She is returning to a life of ease, financed by a pleasant gentleman named Kenneth. He is about to marry a wealthy gravel heiress. . . .

Cupid has his perfect way with the two of them, cinching his plans during a visit to Marnay's delightful old grandmother who lives in Madeira—one of the ship's ports of call. . . .

Both Terry and Michel are, so to speak, lilies of the field who have neither toiled nor spun for a living. . . . Both agree that the latter should find a job before they marry. In six months, they figure, he will know whether or not he is really a painter—dilettante painting being the only occupation to which he has ever turned a hand. . . . In six months then—on July 1—at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, they agree to meet on the top floor of the Empire building and, they hope, be able to plan for a future together.

The day comes. Marnay waits in vain. . . . For tragic Fate has laid a hand on Terry's shoulder. . . .

Parted for a time by events, the picture shall show you, the two come together again in a manner you shall learn from "Love Affair."

This is a touching and arresting photoplay, with bright and unexpected shafts of rich humor. . . . You will be delighted by some unusually brilliant "bit" playing. Note especially the spot where the happy landlady holds forth and the scenes in the lovely and peaceful home of Mme. Marnay. . . . THERE is an actress! . . . Marie Ouspenskaya as this delicate, brainy little old lady does a most exquisite character portraiture. [She has a dramatic school in New York, so I am told.]

Miss Dunne, never lovelier, sings several songs effectively and brings grace, humor, and sincerity to her rôle.

Mr. Boyer—GIRLS! He can say more while saying nothing than any man I'm able to think of. [At the moment.]

The picture is beautifully staged and costumed.

It should be popular.

See you tomorrow.

Tremblay Sonatas.

Two piano sonatas by George Tremblay are printed in the January issue of New Music, a quarterly of modern compositions. The composer is a native of Ottawa, Ont., but came to this country in 1920, when he was 9 years old, and has lived here since. He is now living and teaching in Los Angeles. Arnold Schönberg is listed among his teachers.

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Double	Redouble	2 diamonds
Pass	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opens the diamond king. How must declarer play to fulfill the contract?

Answer: Dummy's diamond ace wins and a low heart should immediately be led from dummy. West wins with jack and the best defense is for him to continue with the queen and jack of diamonds. Declarer must not ruff the third diamond lead in dummy—he must discard a club and give West the trick. Now West's best continuation is a trump. Declarer wins, leads a heart to the ace, and ruffs a heart. He then cashes the spade king, leads a spade to the ace, and discards the queen and deuce of clubs on dummy's established hearts.

If declarer ruffs West's third diamond lead in dummy he cannot establish and finally reach heart tricks in dummy, hence will have to lose two club tricks, in addition to one diamond and one heart.

Contract According to Culbertson

Bridge Strategy Is Trading Little Cards for Big

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Much of the play of declarer and defense consists of a struggle to force opponents to give up their ranking cards [officers] in exchange for small cards [pawns]. Here the tactics of the play of cards closely parallel the tactics in the play of chess, where each player tries to force the exchange of a high piece for a low one. Take this example:

NORTH
8 7 5

WEST
10 9 4 3

EAST
A 6

SOUTH
K Q J 2

South must not lead out the king, hoping for the best. He should strive to get a lead from North through East's ace. If East plays low South should take the trick and transfer the lead back to North in another suit, so that the latter can lead again. In this manner he succeeds in preventing East from playing his ace upon an honor which would have promoted a trick in West's hand. Even with solid sequences, such as K-Q-J-10-2, with two little ones in partner's hand, not the slightest precaution should be neglected. An ace may be alone, which would release a trick to a "worthless" suit like 9 x x x x.

Observe the extreme caution of the declarer in the following deal:

NORTH
♠ J 9 8 6
♥ 7 4 2
♦ 10 8 6 4
♣ Q J

WEST
♠ K Q 10 2
♥ None
♦ 9 7 3 2
♣ K 9 8 7 3

EAST
♠ 7 5 4 3
♥ A K 9 8
♦ J 5
♣ 10 4 2

♠ A
♥ Q J 10 6 5 3
♦ A K Q
♣ A 6 5

Against South's contract of four hearts West opened the king of spades, which South won with the ace. Barring the remote chance that the trump suit would be divided 4-0 the contract seemed safe. But the wise man guards against remote chances. If East holds all four missing hearts two leads from dummy will prevent his winning more than two tricks with them.

Since, regardless of what may happen, a club trick must be lost, South's first play was a small club, which West won with the king. A diamond return put South in with the ace and another club was led to the queen. Now the deuce of hearts was led, East played the eight, South the ten, and when West discarded a club it became apparent that the precautions South had taken had been very wise. East had originally held hearts A K 9 8 and would have made three tricks in the suit had South made the mistake of first leading his queen.

All that was necessary now was to put dummy in the lead again, and this need was supplied by the ruffing power of dummy's small trumps. South led his club ace and on it played North's heart four, ruffing his own ace in order to supply an entry. The lead of the heart seven held East to two heart tricks.

No other line of play would have allowed South to make his contract. Had he first played a high heart it would have been too late, because the important third trump which gave North a ruffing entry would have been gone.

Special care is required when choosing a card to lead toward a tenace. Many players, when seeing in the dummy three "worthless" cards such as 9 7 4 of the finessable suit, play any old thing. Sooner or later they will come to grief.

When playing to a finesse play the lowest, except when prepared to stand for the cover. For example:

NORTH

WEST
♠ 8 5 3 2

EAST
♠ K J

SOUTH
♠ A Q 10 6

The spade nine in North's hand is a very important card. If the nine is led South must lose a trick to West's spade eight. If two low cards are led dummy can capture the third trick with the nine and South's ace remains to capture the eight.

It is practically impossible and unnecessary to remember all the various types of finesses. Once the player has grasped the mechanics of direct and indirect finesses he should be able to solve for himself each problem as it arises. To do so he must develop the following mental habit:

When considering a finesse count up your own and dummy's cards, subtracting them from thirteen. Divide mentally the balance in the opponents' hands in the most probable way, visualizing the outstanding ranking cards with their guards. Now consider what will happen if you lead a particular honor, assuming the best play by opponents. Repeat the same process of visualization, only this time with the next most probable combination and, if necessary, with the least probable combination.

The principle of promotion solves this problem automatically:

1. An honor must be covered whenever a possibility exists that a trick might be promoted in your own or partner's hand. A defender does not see declarer's or his partner's hand, so he must assume that any ranking card which is not seen on the board might be held by his partner.

2. An honor led must not be covered when it is evident that by so doing no trick may be promoted in your own or partner's hand.

If four top honors are killed on the first round the ten controls the second round and the nine the third.

If any three of the four top honors are eliminated in the first round the ten controls the third and the nine may control the fourth.

Figure 1

NORTH
♦ A J 9 8

WEST
♦ K 3 2

EAST
♦ 10 7 6

SOUTH
♦ Q 5 4

South, as declarer, leads the diamond queen. West mentally visualizes that if he covers the queen with his king and North wins the first trick the second trick will be won by the jack, in which case the diamond ten, which may be in partner's hand, will go into the third round play as a trick. West does not know that partner has the ten, but if there is a mere possibility that he has it West should cover.

♥ A J 10 9

WEST
♥ K 6 5

EAST
♥ 8 7 4 3 2

♥ Q

NORTH
A J 10 8

WEST
K 5 2

EAST
9 7 6 4

Q 3

In figure 2, to cover the queen with the king serves no useful purpose, for West can see that no card in his own or his partner's hand can be promoted. But in figure 3 the lead of the queen must be covered by the king, for it may promote the nine into the position of control over the eight in North's hand, and in this example it saves a trick.

In certain situations it is a better play to defer the covering of an honor until a second honor of equal value is led. For example:

NORTH
♦ A 8 7

WEST
♦ K 4 3

EAST
♦ 10 6 5

SOUTH
♦ Q J 9 2

NORTH
♦ A 8 7

WEST
♦ Q 4 3

EAST
♦ K 9 6 2

SOUTH
♦ J 10 5

In figure 1, when South leads the queen, West should not cover with the king; if he covers, North, after winning the trick with the ace, may lead the diamond eight and finesse against East's ten, thus capturing all four tricks in the suit. West can block this play by refusing to cover on the first play, being prepared to cover the jack on the second lead.

In figure 2, when South's jack is led, West should play low. He can cover on the second round with equal effect. In this case, if West covers, South wins a second trick.

Music Museum

One of the numerous houses Beethoven used in Vienna—the one standing near the university at 8 Moelkerbastei—is now being converted into a museum. The house belongs now to the provincial government of Lower Danube [formerly Lower Austria], and furniture and other objects associated with Beethoven's life will be placed in rooms which he occupied.

Although the composer frequently changed homes he lived at Moelkerbastei from 1804 to 1815 with but one interruption. In his day the open country began there, and from the top floor [his quarters] he could see idyllic villages with the hills of the Vienna woods as a background. Here he wrote the fourth, fifth, and seventh symphonies and part of the music for his lone opera, "Fidelio."

Glyndebourne Opera.

From June 1 to July 15 the Glyndebourne Opera will hold its 1939 festival. Now in its sixth season, this English institution will present the following works: "The Marriage of Figaro," "Don Giovanni," and "Cosi Fan Tutte," all by Mozart; Verdi's "Macbeth" and Donizetti's "Don Pasquale." Fritz Busch and Carl Ebert are the artistic directors.

Students' Guild

A year ago a group of students at Sarah Lawrence college established an organization covering all musical activity on the campus. Having formulated their own standards and beliefs, they then decided to exchange these ideas with similar organizations from other schools. A conference of representatives from such groups was held, resulting in an Intercollegiate Music guild, complete with a constitution. The gist of the latter is herewith quoted:

The guild "will be an organization through which music students from various centers get together to give concerts, to form small touring groups, to exchange both individual and concert groups. It should serve as a common ground for the exchange of ideas, for lectures, forums, publications, and other developments. It is also our wish to promote concerts, broadcasts, and recordings performed whenever possible by student musicians, and through our enthusiasm and endeavor to support any worthwhile musical activity, especially student composition."

A step toward this goal will be made when a festival of music is held in March at Sarah Lawrence college. Three joint concerts of programs will be presented by the various participating colleges, offering works of students and contemporary American composers. Bennington, Bard, Vassar, Westminster Choir school, and Sarah Lawrence are the schools thus far enrolled in the festival.

Group Theater

William Saroyan wrote a one act play called "The Man with the Heart in the Highlands" which New York's Group theater liked very much. So the author expanded his work and shortened its title to "My Heart's in the Highlands," making it even more likable to the group. The biggest production problem was to find a satisfactory 13 year old actor for the leading rôle. He has now been found, and the play will be given a series of Sunday night performances, beginning April 2. Sidney Lumet, seen in "The Eternal Road" and the screen version of "... one-third of a nation ..." is the lad who was chosen for the chief part. Appearing with him will be Philip Loeb as the child's father, Art Smith as an old man, and, probably, Sam Jaffe as the grocer. Robert Lewis directs.

HEROINE OF PLAY ON YOUTH

"What a Life" ends its Chicago run on Saturday night. Heroine of this comedy at the Erlanger theater is Connie Nickerson.

Many Parties, New People Fill City with Color

By Cousin Eve.

There's nothing like a cruise to far countries to make one count one's blessings at home. They say our town is having spring doldrums, but to me everything is full of color. New people at every turn—all the parties sizzling with electricite, strangers of allure within our gates. And as for the little playmates, never did they appear more delightful.

Gazing into the crystal ball—there again are matters new and nice to spice our urban life with variety. This very night Chicago Greeks are producing opera at the Civic Opera house. "Marco Bozzaris" is its name, after the great Greek liberator who chased the Turk, I think it was. Music quite compelling, costumes, and effects also have come from the museums of Athens, its national opera, and private collections. It is an affaire de charite to benefit the Orthodox Greek church in America.

It seems that Miss Elsie McCormick's collection of old Greek embroideries now showing at the Art institute started this Greek excitement. The February reception that opened it, I hear, was fascinating where everything was Greek except the Art institute itself, which remained neutral.

The Greek consul general, D. C. Benetatos, and his handsome wife are having a party tonight, also Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, who are among the tremendous list of patrons, and Miss McCormick. Mrs. Benetatos, who is by birth a Rumanian, is clever and distinguished. I met her at the Andre Maurois luncheon the other day with Mme. Pero Cabric, the very pretty wife of the Rumanian consul general. European women have a graciousness and desire to please which is captivating and makes one want to go and do likewise. But how long do one's good resolutions last after a foreign trip, about those little amenities that make life beautiful?

The Arts club, always and forever on the qui vive for charming Sunday night parties, is having one April 2, a supper with music to follow. The program sounds too good to be true—two pianos played by two artists very much in the public eye, Mme. Nadia Boulanger and her protégé, Jean Francaix. I happen to like piano best of all, and two pianos are better than one. Mme. Boulanger was here in January, staying with Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, and while looking like a New England school mistress she turned out to be on closer acquaintance one of the most fascinating of enchantresses. Wearing her hair plain in a little knot at the back and inattentive to makeup or coquettish dress, she is one of the world's charmers. She has led a woman's orchestra in France, has taught theory and composition at Radcliffe, has a woman's choir in Paris of which the chic Polignac women are members, and at present is lecturing over America on music.

Jean Francaix is 27 years old, a pianist and composer who came over to fill an engagement with the Philharmonic in New York. He has written music of all kinds, has made arrangements for the Ballet Russe, and will play some of his own works that night at the Arts club soirée. M. Francaix is married and comes of a musical family living in Mantes, and they say is a tremendous fellow among the younger musicians of Paris.

Of outstanding personalities, nobody makes a stronger impression than Andre Maurois. He's the author of so many biographies that it would take much time and brain work to name them—Byron, Shelley, and Chateaubriand, the latest, are all masterpieces. Maurois himself is kind and gentle, with such a courteous mentality that he autographed a mountain of his own works piled up in the Arts club corridor to oblige the admirers with whom he had been lunching. The Alliance Française and the Caxton club got together on this party, which was a lively one at the Arts club with a long horseshoe arrangement in the dining room. The seats of the mighty were at the east end, the Caxton club and its wives to the west.

Andre Maurois is not a large man, of graying hair, large intellectual dark eyes, and much facility in English. He had been lunching in London a fortnight before with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of England. [Not that he made this public, but maybe it will add to his aura and his fame, that Anglo-Saxon honor him as well as his own people.] Maurois is a member of the French Academy, and wore the ribbon of the Legion d'Honneur. President Robert H. McCormick made good business for the famous writer's books by naming them in his address. Mr. McCormick has a charming voice, young and ringing, and after his speech Mr. Maurois rose, speaking to the worshipful company in English and telling some witty stories. It was done in a light, playful vein, which is useful these days when the temptation is to be a bit priggish, not to say censorious, of our fellow men.

Mrs. Ralph James in early spring blues, Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. John Crerar, Mrs. Rene Weiller, and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus were seated at the high table, being officers of the Alliance. And some of Chicago's young and lovelies were scattered among the two hundred guests. Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Kay Goodman, Mrs. Charles Dewey Jr., Monique Storrs, and Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed, who had landed that minute from Arizona, all wore new spring lids that cheered the eye.

Ruth Page and Tom Fisher had a very nice party Friday in a gallery of Diana court, where one went to stay five minutes but remained an hour. The noted ballet dancer, who in private life is the wife of Thomas Fisher, is also a delightful hostess. The large room rapidly filled up with all sorts of interesting people, far more stimulating than the cocktails—the party was for the Archipenkos.

Ruth herself looked wonderful, like the incarnation of some Egyptian princess, with long sleek hair to the shoulders and an extremely Pharaoh chapeau. But the party was rather more Russian than Egyptian, for besides the gifted sculptor, whose works were being shown throughout the gallery, there was his attractive wife, Weidman, who dances with Ruth Page, and Mme. Korelenko, who has been singing with success up and down the land. All in all it was an excellent party.

A late comer was Marochka Chatfield-Taylor, looking big eyed and wistful, which always touches the heart. She is having fun with her new career, however, designing clothes for pretty people. And perhaps making pretty clothes for designing people. Among her earliest patrons was a young and beautiful niece, Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, daughter of Wayne, who made her debut last fall here and in Washington. The frocks Adelaide wore were ravishing and after Marochka design.

Other guests were Dr. and Mrs. William Nitze, Mrs. Walter Paepcke wearing a doll's size hat on ripples of blonde hair, the Harold Pynchons, Mrs. Bryon Harvey, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Dudley Crafts Watson, and Dudley Jr., and, last but not least, Margaret Fisher, whose success in the world of fine arts has been—well—one can't think of a nice enough word for it. Del Quest exhibited a group of her water colors and a few drawings in January, but Duncan Phillips, the millionaire collector of Washington, bought two oil studies of hers in February and placed one of them in his famous gallery along with all his celebrated moderns. The Charles Goodspeeds were there and a score of others.

Hardy Scots have been coming this way, and South Americans, too. Henry Field brought home for tea one day Sir Duncan MacKenzie, a big, upstanding military man who has seen over thirty years of service with the raj in India. The conversation was interesting, but highly specialized, being spiced with maharajas, rajahs, ranees, shoots, and the names of places one can't even spell. Henry Field, distinguished curator of the Field museum, kept up his end, which happens to be the near east, with emirs and sheiks and local color of sorts until, on the whole, what was supposed to be mere tea table talk was more thrilling than a movie.

Sir Duncan, who is retiring from active service, is on his way home to Rosshire. For the past five years he has been British resident at Hyderabad, whose ruler is the richest of Indian princes, and the court ladies the most bejeweled and beautiful. The residency is a marvelous palace of marble, of great vistas, with long flights of marble steps and brilliant uniforms. The scented gardens, fountains, neighboring palaces, all made for a life of great pomp and circumstance, quite different from the cool but bonnie braes of Scotland. Sir Duncan is a charming man, a man of quick decision, eyes very blue, skin very tanned. His traveling companion is Sir Anthony Hogg.

Mrs. Henry Field, with her two youngsters, has gone south for a fortnight's visit with her mother in Alabama. Dr. Field lectured before the Friday club two weeks ago on his life and scientific studies in Iraq. It seems to have been the high spot of the winter, and the members were utterly pleased and delighted with the address, which was exciting and technical as well.

Mrs. Quincy Wright spoke at the following Friday club meeting on the Lima conference. This she attended, acting in advisory capacity for Miss Lewis, daughter of the labor boss, who was an appointed delegate. Mrs. Wright is a very pretty and smartly dressed woman of the University of Chicago sector, charming and intellectual, and her report was amusing as well as interesting. She had been called on the telephone one day last autumn by Secretary of State Hull himself and invited to join the Lima conference.

The high excitements of this conference were twofold. Everybody's private papers and personal luggage were more or less examined and turned over, which annoyed some of the delegates no end. And then a Brazilian lady burst upon the scene—Mrs. Rosalinda Miller of Rio, appointed by Brazil's dapper little President Vargas. Very black haired and beautiful was Mrs. Miller, with lovely figure and superb clothes. At the grand banquet climaxing the conference Mrs. Miller, it seems, walked off with Secretary Hull, who got the impression that she was his dinner partner and was most attentive and conversational with the sparkling lady.

But Mrs. Miller was not intended to be the American secretary of state's dinner partner, nor even seated near him, so the "kidnaping" by the little Brazilian was the sensation of the hour at Lima.

Of luncheons there are always many. Mrs. Loyal Davis had a large party at the Arts club for a lovely young Argentinian, Mme. Felix Le Borgne. Dr. Le Borgne, a surgeon of Montevideo, is here taking a course at the Chicago Tumor institute, established latterly by Sir George Lenthal Cheatle of London on funds from the Carnegie Foundation. Mrs. Arthur Meeker is chairman of the women's committee of the institute and was present at the luncheon, as were Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, president of the women's board of Passavant; Mrs. Robert Dunham, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Mrs. Henry Field, Mrs. Orville Babcock, Mrs. Mark Trude, and several other women of the Passavant committees. Mme. Le Borgne is a daughter of the former Argentinian ambassador at Washington, M. Purreydon, and was educated in this country, making her debut here and staying until a change of government sent the family into exile in Uruguay. Here Mlle. Purreydon met and married Dr. Le Borgne, one of the handsomest of men. Madame herself has a luminous sort of beauty, lambent eyes that are neither gray nor violet, but thickly lashed, dazzling teeth, and white skin. South American women have the charm of great femininity, and Mme. Le Borgne has been given a whirl in Chicago.

From her came an interesting sidelight on the use of perfumed ether during nights of carnival in Brazil. Brazilians stress the fact that there is no serious drinking among the people and alcohol is almost taboo. But they take a good long whiff of this ether, which carries them far more exuberantly than anything alcoholic.

The large luncheon of the week for Rene and Mrs. Weiller, who are due to retire from the foreign service of France this year, was given at Kungsholm. It was the first of a series of farewells to the popular Weillers, who, however, have not yet been recalled. They've been here seven years, which they say, were "their happiest." Another diplomat described them in a few apt words the other day as "two people who are truly nice." And they are. I knew just what he meant. They are so uniformly gracious, friendly, hospitable.

Mrs. William Rippey arranged this party for those who have been decorated by France in the past seven years. The ones who have the medal, "Les Palmes Academiques," wear a small purple ribbon and are called "les violettes." The Legion d'Honneurs wear a scarlet ribbon in the button hole, and quite a few of them were at the party, too. The table was a huge square, seating forty, with so much space around the center floral piece that John Storrs became frivolous and began to wish for a skating divertissement. But instead we had touching speeches of farewell from Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. Rippey, Henri David and M. Weiller himself. The world is moving along very fast these days, and the best we can do is to look up our friends in their new homes on our travels.

Rene Weiller has thought of buying a manoir or château in France in the Orleans district, not far from the charming of thirteenth century "Chautecaille" of John Storrs. Very beautiful old houses are scattered all over the Loire country, which has a good climate. It is never too hot in summer, and rarely below zero in winter. Tours, the lovely old capital of Touraine, has become a center for Americans of small fixed income. I found last summer several people I knew well living there, and also numbers of American students whose families believe it to be a safer and better place for their children than Paris.

Status of the Family Will Be Experts' Topic

By Betty Browning.

What is happening to the American family in this world of shifting economics and conflicting ideologies?

Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall. [Lavecchа Photo.]

Psychiatrists and educators, physicians, lawyers, and sociologists will bring their knowledge to bear on this question at a two day conference under the joint auspices of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education and the recently organized National Conference of Family Relations Friday and Saturday at the Morrison hotel.

This is the first midwest conference of the organization, which was formed last year to coördinate the work of persons interested in various fields of family research and welfare.

Conditions affecting the rural and the urban family will be considered at preliminary committee meetings. Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, president of the New York State Conference on Marriage and the Family, will preside at a committee meeting on work of state conferences. B. F. Dr. Haydon, who is professor of comparative religions at the University of Chicago, will talk on "Family Orientation for the Adventure of Living."

The Chicago Woman's club is inviting other organizations, specialists in the field, and the public at large to hear Dr. Clarence C. Little discuss "Recent Advances in Cancer Research" at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street. Dr. Little, a former president of the University of Michigan, now is director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

Mrs. Mary Redfield Plummer.

The meeting is planned as a memorial to the late Mrs. Mary Redfield Plummer, who died of cancer last October. In 1928 Mrs. Plummer initiated the club's activities to further research and public education concerning cancer. She was the club's parliamentarian from 1916 until her death, and for years was parliamentarian of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs.

Light will be thrown on another concern of the community when Prof. W. Lloyd Warner, sociologist and anthropologist of the University of Chicago, and his assistant, Horace Cayton, give advance reports on their study of Chicago's Negro population at 2 o'clock Thursday before the Woman's City club. This study, which has proceeded for three years, covers health, housing, education, recreation, and other phases of Negro life. Miss Roberta Burgess, chairman of the race relation committee, will preside.

Adult education, still another matter of general concern, will be the subject of a symposium to be given Tuesday morning before the Chicago Woman's Aid. Alice M. Farquhar of the reader's bureau of the Chicago public library, and Glenford W. Lawrence, education director of the Chicago Commons, will speak. At luncheon afterward, Walter M. Alderton of the Chicago Theological seminary will discuss "The Rôle of the Church in Adult Education."

Tapestry Depicting Fort Dearborn Is to Be Presented

A hand woven tapestry depicting Fort Dearborn will be presented by Chicago's Norwegian women to Crown Princess Martha of Norway when she visits Chicago May 4 and 5. The tapestry which measures four feet six inches by eight feet, will be on exhibit from 2 until 9 o'clock today at the Chicago Norske Klub, 2350 North Kedzie boulevard. Mrs. Caspara Sarhein heads a committee of forty women which is collecting money to purchase the tapestry.

American in its subject matter, the tapestry represents a revival of the old Norse art of weaving. Mrs. Lilla Doe, a Chicagoan, made the tapestry by hand with specially treated and dyed woolen yarn from Norway. She studied weaving under Mrs. Frida Hanse of Stavanger, Norway, who rediscovered the Norse method of weaving in remote mountain districts about 60 years ago.

The tapestry is woven by hand on a vertical frame, and the design is equally perfect on both sides.

Horses, Gold Are Twin Lures of Wickenburg

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Wickenburg, Ariz., specializes in gold and dude ranches. From early days of the fabulous Vulture mine until the present, gold has been mined successfully around Wickenburg. Easterners living on the dude ranches roundabout find an added thrill in living in a community where gold is an ordinary topic of conversation, and where operating gold mines are within riding distance.

Dominating the Wickenburg scene from a mountainside is the "RR" brand of the Remuda ranch. When we came to Remuda last Sunday, the guests were resting from a large evening at the Firemen's ball. The volunteer fire department of Wickenburg is like a private club—waiting list and all—and its annual ball at El Recreo is the social event of the season.

Mrs. Taylor Strawn and Mrs. Batholomay Osborne, who are spending the winter at Remuda, had just returned from a three-day pack trip with Carl Stibolt to the TP ranch, owned by Mrs. Strawn's brother-in-law, De Forest Hulburd. Mrs. Strawn's children, Louise and Taylor, are visiting her on the ranch now. Mrs. Osborne's son, Nate, arrived from Andover March 17 to spend his vacation with his mother.

• • •

Other Chicagoans at Remuda are Mrs. Hollis Kirk and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kettering and their children, Chuck, Jane, and Susan. Mr. and Mrs. Kettering are building a home on the ranch beside the new swimming pool.

On the guest ranches around Wickenburg the corral is the center of activity, and a fine string of horses the principal attraction. Just now the Remuda corral has taken on new interest, for Freeplay, grandson of Man of War, has come to live there, and is being taught to jump. "Toodie" Burden, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burden, and "Hankz" Aldrich, head wrangler, are showing the Remuda horses in the Phoenix horse show this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, who are staying at El Rancho Grande at Mesa, had luncheon at Remuda on Monday.

Across the Hassayampa river from Remuda is the Monte Vista ranch. The name is well chosen, for it has a beautiful view of foothills which roll up as high as 5,000 feet. Chicagoans staying at Monte Vista this winter include Mrs. John Hasbrook and her daughter, Annette, of Hinsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Corley of River Forest, Mrs. Bruce Brown of Evanston and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna L. Brown of Chicago, and John Main of Evanston.

A guest arriving at Kay El Bar must have a feeling of assurance that he is coming to the real west, for the road winds in and out of rugged country, only to end in a beautiful green patio surrounded by adobe ranch buildings. The walls of the buildings, over a foot and a half thick, and the rafters of the main building carry a bit of gold rush history, for they were taken from the old El Dorado mine, sixteen miles away. Visiting at Kay El Bar have been Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker Black of Evanston with their children, Bill and Skippy; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Johnson of Oak Park with their children, Phyllis and Nancy; Mr. and Mrs. William Black and Dr. and Mrs. Sidney B. Conger and their daughter, Julianne, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Davis of Kenilworth.

Just south of Wickenburg is a natural oasis which must always have been a stopping place for men and animals. Here amid towering palms is one of the oldest of the guest ranches in Arizona—the Lazy R C.

The central building of the ranch was started in 1862 as a way station on the stage route between Tucson and Fort Whipple at Prescott. It was built in three sections with courts between to afford shelter to the stage from the arrows of hostile Indians while unloading. All of this country for many years was in danger from the Apaches, and the visitor riding the old trails, some of which were the scenes of Indian massacres, has no difficulty in imagining the terror which lurked behind every rock for the traveler of a day just gone.

Chicagoans at the Lazy R C this winter include Mr. and Mrs. "Bill" Robson of Winnetka, Miss Louise Purricher of Chicago, Milton J. Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. Jules Friedlander of Glencoe.

ENGAGED TO ALABAMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Paltzer of Riverside have announced the engagement of their daughter, Clarissa Woodruff, to John Mancill of Robertsdale, Ala. Miss Paltzer attended the University of Chicago. She is spending the winter with her grandfather, C. A. Paltzer, in Daphne, Ala., and is attending the Alabama State Normal college. [Koehne Photo.]

Protectorate to Summarize Season's Work

Nearly 2,000 women and girls of 29 denominations and 39 nationalities were helped during the last year by the Protestant Woman's Protectorate. Tomorrow friends of the organization will summarize the season's activities at the annual spring luncheon in the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman.

Mrs. Fred W. Waterman.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, Methodist bishop of the Chicago area; Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, and Miss Mary Bell Mainland, superintendent of the protectorate, will be speakers. Mrs. Fred W. Waterman, president, will make a welcoming speech, and the Rev. Ralph Wakefield, president of the Chicago Church federation, will give an invocation. A male quartet of the Presbyterian Theological seminary will sing.

• • •

The protectorate is now in the midst of a membership drive for 1,000 sustaining members whose contribution will be one dollar each. Founded in 1917 by the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation, at the instance of the Traveler's Aid, the protectorate is endorsed by the Chicago Church federation, and the Chicago Association of Commerce; is a member of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, and is affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs. Its board is composed of fifty women, representing the major Protestant denominations.

The spiritual, economic, and social welfare of unattached women and girls is the concern of the protectorate. Two departments, a free employment service and a case work department, function in close coöperation, providing service ranging from friendly advice to assistance in legal, financial, and health problems.

• • •

Special guests at the luncheon will be Mrs. William T. When Chicago Was Young: Clyde Fitch's "Beau Brummel" Was Popular

By Herma Clark

Chicago, Dec. 2, 1890.

Dear Julia: Will and I attended the theater last evening. I don't go as often as I used to, but I did want to see Richard Mansfield in "Beau Brummel." As you've been ill, you probably didn't see it in New York.

Clyde Fitch.

I like historical plays and this has a foundation of fact, although I suppose there's much in it that doesn't square with history. Beau Brummel was a real person, although some of the legends about him aren't true. He was, I know, the friend of the dissolute prince of Wales; he did quarrel with the prince and he did say to Sheridan, when the prince "cut" him: "Who's your fat friend?"

But the incident in the play, in which he gives up a girl he had hoped to marry, is not true, I believe.

• • •

I am so interested in the young playwright who has written this delightful work. Clyde Fitch is his name, you know. Of course, Richard Mansfield makes any character live, so that it may not be such a work of genius, but it really seems to me that this young writer has a literary touch, so that he should give us more good plays. And we do need them, certainly. I heard from some friends, who were sitting near us last evening, that Mr. Mansfield has been studying for some time the life and times of Beau Brummel and, learning that a college comedy by young Mr. Fitch had had a great success in Boston, he approached him with a request that he write a play about this famous character.

The romance of "Beau Brummel" is supplied by his self-sacrifice in giving up the girl he wants, but the dramatic effectiveness lies in the contrast between the days of the "Beau's" glory, as an arbiter of fashion, and those of his poverty and distress. Of course, he had a small salary as British consul in Caen, France, but he needed a good deal of money to live as he liked to live.

The last scene in the play made me get out my handkerchief, when he sat in poverty, his mind, as well as his body, in rags. His memory gone; his pride vanished; gluttony the sole survivor of his past characteristics.

A sad scene, indeed, as he sits there is a poverty-stricken environment, reliving the past, having his door open and great people announced, such as the duchess of Devonshire, Lord Alvanley, Lord Sefton, and others he had known, many of them under the mossy marbles by that time while he grabbled a court phrase or worn-out compliment as he crouched over his miserable fire.

Another interesting scene was Mansfield's portrayal of Beau Brummel's contempt for the money lender and the creditor, showing how the Englishman of fashion of his time regarded the debt of honor as so serious, while the commercial debt was of small consequence.

The tailors who served him had a pretty bad time of it, but perhaps he felt that he did them a favor merely by patronizing them. And perhaps he did. You probably know the story told of the tailor who said to a customer: "The prince wears superfine, and Mr. Brummel the Bath coating. It is immaterial which you choose, Sir John. Suppose we say the Bath coating. I think Mr. Brummel has a trifle the preference."

Mansfield's makeup was, as usual, a marvel of the art. And through all the earlier scenes his self-confidence, or impudence, I think it should be called, left nothing to be desired. You felt that, for the time, he really was Beau Brummel.

I do hope you are feeling much better.

Your loving friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

"Beau Brummel" [George Bryan Brummel], Englishman of fashion, was born in London in 1778. From his early years Brummel paid great attention to dress and at Eton cultivated the acquaintance of the rich boys in school. Here he met George, prince of Wales, over whom he was to have much influence later.

For years an arbiter of fashion in London, he finally fled to France to escape his creditors. He died in Caen, France, in 1840, in a charitable asylum.

Clyde Fitch [1865-1909] was one of America's great playwrights. "Beau Brummel" was a great popular success, remaining one of the most important of Mansfield's plays. Fitch wrote more than fifty plays, the majority of which were highly successful.

"The Moth and the Flame" [1898].

"Mistress Betty," written for Modjeska.

"Gossip," in collaboration with Leo Dietrichstein, written for Mrs. Langtry.

"Barbara Frietchie."

"Captain Jinks."

"Granny," written for Mrs. Gilbert.

"Nathan Hale," written for Nat Goodwin.

List of Coming Events Abroad Numbers 1,000

Over a thousand events of popular interest to tourists will occur in Europe this year. Never before has there been planned such a gorgeous parade of pageants, exhibitions, sport championships, art and music festivals as are set forth in the coming calendar of attractions across the sea. An average of more than three outstanding events daily are listed for all the countries of Europe visited by hundreds of thousands from this side of the Atlantic.

After having been absent from such attractions for two years, Spain's events again appear in 1939. A large list appears in the interest of the most visited lands: The British Isles, Germany, France, Italy, and Switzerland, but other lands, such as Poland, Holland, Belgium, and especially the Scandinavian countries of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, have prepared an impressive list of colorful fêtes, expositions, and days devoted to the observance of quaint old folk customs.

Curie Lecture to Raise Funds for Settlement

Eve Curie's lecture on "The Magic of Radium" Wednesday evening at Orchestra hall will mark the first attempt of an energetic group of young women, the Chicago chapter of Rosary College alumnæ, to give a benefit of major proportions. The 450 members, whose youth is indicated by the fact that the River Forest college graduated its first class in 1926, have a major project in mind, a neighborhood house to be opened in an underprivileged community.

The location will not be decided upon until after Easter, but the settlement will be centrally placed in order to enable members from all parts of the city to come there to work among the children and adults whom the settlement will serve.

• • •

Hitherto the alumnæ had worked through small card parties and dances to raise money for the college's endowment fund, but that project was completed last year. With the decision to found the neighborhood house came the need to sponsor a larger benefit. Mrs. George O'Leary, president of the Chicago alumnæ, is chairman of the event.

Mlle. Curie, whose biography of her mother, "Mme. Curie," won a prize as the best nonfiction book for 1937, will be introduced by René Weiller, French consul general, at her lecture Wednesday evening.

Two other community centers, those of the Urban league, will be benefited through the proceeds of Roland Hayes' concert next Sunday afternoon at Orchestra hall. The Urban league last Sunday opened an enlarged community center at 2024 West Maypole avenue. Last summer the south side center was moved into larger quarters at 4564 Indiana avenue.

Swift Pace of History Shows in Art Trends

By Eleanor Jewett.

Events are moving so swiftly in Europe, and drastic changes occur today with such lightning rapidity that even the mildest cultural activity is touched in some fashion by history in the making. For example: on Tuesday of this week, March 28, the Scammon lecture at the Art institute will be given by Irina Khabroff of New York City, on "From the Middle Ages to the Twentieth Century in the Gardens of Czecho-Slovakia," with delightful tales and pictures of Prague gardens dating back to the time of the great emperor, Charles IV.

The lecturer will discuss the beautiful baroque gardens of the 17th and 18th centuries, and the garden colonies of today [which already have vanished] with their typical tiny "democratic" gardens of the 20th century city dweller. Even as the lecture is given, the Prague it mentions has ceased to exist.

Again we have news that the National Exhibition of Contemporary American Prints, which was sent to Sweden in the spring of 1937, is being shown through the month of March in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, under the auspices of the Graphic Arts Society Hollar. This particular American exhibit was planned for last fall in Prague, but was postponed until now because of the unsettled conditions in that country. These conditions have now caught up with the season. One doubts if an American exhibit will be popular with the present Prague, even if the prints will escape destruction.

But enough of foreign coincidents with their indisputable flavor of might makes right. There is enough to keep us busy on our own side of the Atlantic. Might is certainly making right as far as contemporary showings of American art are concerned in the expositions at either end of the United States. The WPA art is to be shown at both fairs. Government, you see, has might. In fact, the government has a great deal more to do today with the distribution and encouragement of art than have those agencies more definitly connected with pictures and sculpture, the galleries, and the artists themselves. Happy are those museums and those artists who are lined up on the side of might!

There will be a large and comprehensive exhibition of WPA art at San Francisco, installed by Mrs. Increase Robinson in the De Young museum. New York has the debatable group of works selected here as representative of Illinois [but in truth being a one sided picture of a very small part of the art being turned out in the state] in addition to the larger WPA exhibit.

The single Illinois painter whom we know to be honored by an exhibit at each exposition on the merit of his pictures, and with definitly no connection with WPA or any other federal agency, is Lane K. Newberry, a member of the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, and who, at the instigation of Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson, president of that society, began several years ago to paint scenes and places of historical importance in Illinois. Now Mr. Newberry's paintings can be numbered in three figures. Many of his painting are owned in private collections, and more he has reserved for himself. They have been shown in Chicago and throughout the state, and always have commanded the deepest interest.

In the Illinois building at the World's fair in San Francisco twenty paintings by Lane K. Newberry of historic places in Illinois have been hung. At either end of the exhibit is a little statement telling concisely that the exhibit is not part of any WPA project. In the Illinois building at the New York World's fair paintings from Mr. Newberry's Lincoln group will be shown. In New York an unusual method of lighting the paintings will be used. They are to be recessed and lighted from the botton by an indirect lighting arrangement.

Another Chicago contribution to the San Francisco fair is the series of exquisite miniature rooms, the work of Mrs. James Ward Thorne, which were seen with such keen delight by the many visitors to the Chicago Art institute last summer.

The international water color show opened last Thursday at the Art institute and will be discussed next Sunday in this column.

The annual spring water color exhibition of the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts opened last Monday at the Stevens hotel, and is a most intriguing show with many gorgeous pictures to its credit. Louis J. Kaep, a new member, shows several very good things, among them a breezy western landscape and a still life of a loaf of bread and a kerosene lamp. R. E. Esbensen, another young painter and a new member, shows a particularly fine study of a boat.

Jessie Field contributes several bold and vigorous pictures. Even flowers, under her brush, assume a definite, compelling personality. Her "Bird of Paradise" is superb. Another beautifully handled still life, with a most meticulous and intriguing painting of ears of corn, "Indian Corn," is by Sister Isobel Don. Alice Mae Jackson gives us an exquisite little bowl of flowers, and Nina K. Griffin has a stunning picture in "A Bit of Mexico." The "Snowstorm," by R. K. Hibbs, is fascinating, and the farm with a heavy storm cloud lowering overhead, by R. J. Rice, is one of the most stirring things in the show.

"Carpet Rags," by Adam Emory Albright, is an entrancing study of little girlhood. The child is seated at an open window. Sunlight falls on her, a ball of rags lies on the rug at her feet, a ball that gradually grows bigger under her nimble fingers. The colors are radiant and yet subdued. The painting is one of the most exquisite Mr. Albright has painted. Richard A. Chase outdoes himself, too, and we find ourselves keenly alive to the serenity of his view looking north along Michigan avenue and to the brisk beauty of a fall landscape in Lincoln park.

The Woman's club of Evanston is the scene Tuesday of the opening of the 18th annual art exhibition of works by north shore artists, an exhibit to run to April 5.

The Northwest Art league opens its Annual Spring Showing of Works by Members at the Edgewater Beach hotel April 1 to continue to April 15.

The Business Men's Art club has been holding a most successful show this month in the Clubwoman's Bureau, Mandel Brothers. Four sales have been made, which is a record in these days. The show will continue to April 1.

Paintings by Karl Ouren are on view at the Club house, 2414 North Kedzie boulevard, through the courtesy of the Norwegian Singers' society, to March 30, from 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon to 9:00 o'clock in the evening.

Water colors and gouaches by Rainey Bennett are being shown to April 5 at Georgia Lingafelt Books, 126 East Delaware place.

An exhibition of paintings by former prize winners of the Hoosier salon is current in the Marshall Field galleries to April 6.

"JULIA SULZER GRIFFITH: ARTIST"

The painting of one artist by another is not a very frequent occurrence. Ted Vognild has done this in her fine portrait of Julia Sulzer Griffith, who is well known for her paintings of landscapes and boats. The portrait is in the Annual Spring Water Color exhibition by artist members of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, current in the corridor gallery, Stevens hotel.

Winds Tie Up Big and Little Tars at Miami

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Amazing but true—accommodations on Miami Beach still are at a premium. Nautical news from headquarters of junior yachting circles recorded that choppy weather on the Roney plaza pool last Sunday necessitated postponement of the regatta in which four Chicago children had entered racing craft within specified measurements, 12 to 24 inches. Old salts of 12 years and youngsters of 2 are to compete in seven events when the event is held in the 100 foot pool. Awards will be lollypops.

Also avoiding Sunday's choppy weather was the annual Biscayne bay regatta, postponed until Monday and Tuesday, when half the pleasure craft in the harbor lined up with luncheon and tea parties aboard to watch the oldest yachting event in American waters.

When the Glenn J. Chells went fishing Monday, Mrs. Chell caught a medium sized kingfish, hooked a sailfish which she lost after five minutes, and then her angling was finished, for about that time Mr. Chell hooked a ninety-three pound wahoo, the largest ever caught in American waters. This feat took the record away from another Chicagoan, Leonard Florsheim, whose forty-five pound wahoo had held top rank since Jan. 11. The fish shattered North American, United States coastal, Atlantic, and Miami records.

Not satisfied, after lunch Mr. Chell caught an eighty-three pound white marlin, which took the first daily double award this year. In addition he holds first claim on a huge piece of sterling silver plate, the Pancoast trophy for the largest wahoo of the season. Mrs. Chell ordered the wahoo mounted, and threatens to remodel their home, if necessary, to accommodate the 5 foot 10 inch fish, with a girth of thirty inches.

George F. Getz III. was 5 years old Friday and a birthday party which will not soon be forgotten by his twenty guests was staged at the home of his parents, the junior George F. Getzes. A circus ring was set up in the gardens of the estate. Trained monkeys, dogs, and horses performed. Guests included George's entire class from the Pelican kindergarten. Assisting the host was his younger brother, Bert, and his parents. Chicago children included the two children of the Henry Paulmans, Theodore S. Gary III., young son of the junior Theodore S. Garys, who are visiting Mrs. Gary's parents, the Hewett Browns of Coral Gables, and Elsa Melodee Atherton, granddaughter of the August Kochs. Mr. and Mrs. Getz will take a party of friends for a Sunday cruise on their yacht following a week at the races.

Miss Ann Goddard of Chicago, accompanied by her friend, Miss Goey Ross of Cleveland, arrived Friday from Smith college, where Miss Goddard is in her junior year, to be guests of Miss Goddard's grandmother, Mrs. George B. Storer Sr. Mrs. Storer entertained for the girls last night at the "Bon Voyage." This was the last of ten Saturday night gala dinner-dances at the Surf club.

Mrs. C. Winn Canfield, who has been with her father, Frederick A. Poor, left for Chicago Wednesday morning with her house guest, Miss Marilyn Brownlee. Mr. Poor, chairman of the St. Francis hospital board, entertained with a dinner at the Bath club, of which he is president, for members of the board, hospital staf, and other physicians and surgeons, and a few prominent men who have been interested in the hospital. The stag dinner was served in the great hall at a cross-shaped table elaborately decorated with green to represent the green neon cross which tops the hospital on Allison Island in Indian creek.

The streets of Cairo replaced familiar landmarks at the Bath club Thursday night when special entertainment was substituted for the regular Thursday night dinner-dance. Ocean front sands became a desert and oasis. Egyptian fortune tellers revealed the future to those who haunted their Arab tents. Among those entertaining large parties were the August Kochs, who included in their party their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Doris of Chicago.

The George E. Van Hagens and their daughter, Elizabeth, are staying until May.

Rome Works to Earn the Title of "The Quiet City"

ROME, Italy.—After three years of intensive work on noise abatement this Italian metropolis has emerged as one of the quietest cities in the world, it has been announced by Rome's trafic officials.

Streets of "the Eternal City," whose cobblestones once echoed to the clatter of Caesar's Roman chariots, are strangely quiet now. Main roads have large signs at the city limits warning motorists not to blow horns. Fiesta loving, noisy Italians now think twice about the $10 fine they must pay for using their auto horns. Consequently, some cars have had their horns removed. In order to cater to the inherent urge of the impatient driver to blow his horn, however, automobile manufacturers now equip their vehicles with dummy horns which the driver can lean on to his heart's content without making any noise.

Although there are 67,000 motor vehicles in Rome trafic is not slowed by elimination of horn blowing. Actually, due to the moral obligation of a driver to depend on his brakes and driving ability rather than his horn, trafic accidents have decreased 40 per cent. Italy has no speed laws whatever, but rigid physical and driving examinations must be passed to secure drivers' licenses, another means of cutting down accidents. The maximum penalty for driving without a license is a year in prison plus a fine up to $200.

Pasadena Wedding Jubilees

By Ruth Billheimer

PASADENA, CAL.

Brides and bridegrooms of 1939 step aside this month to honor a number of couples who have shared a quarter century to more than fifty years.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan B. Higbie of North San Rafael avenue, who came here several years ago from Chicago, were in the limelight a few days ago when they celebrated their fifty-fourth anniversary with two of their four great-grandchildren present: Harold Ferris White III., and Palmer Higbie White, who with their mother, Mrs. Harold Ferris White Jr., returned Tuesday to Chicago after an extended visit here. Mrs. White's mother, Mrs. Percival B Palmer Jr., who arrived a short time ago from Chicago, was also present and will stay on for a few weeks visiting her parents. Others present were Mrs. Harley Higbie and her children, Harley Jr. and Hugo Scherer Higbie; and her mother, Mrs. Hugo Scherer of Detroit.

Almost simultaneously in San Francisco Mr. and Mrs. William Benson Storey of Chicago and Montecito were honored on their silver wedding day by Mrs. Storey's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hall Rose of the Bay city. The Storeys, too, have now returned to their Chicago home.

The Harrison Barnett Rileys of Pasadena are celebrating their golden wedding April 3 with a tea. The Oakleigh Thornes of Montecito and Milbrook, N. Y., grandparents of the Oakleigh Lewis Thornes of Mount Kisco, N. Y. [Honore Palmer, daughter of the Potter Palmers], observed their fiftieth anniversary in Montecito, Feb. 26.

Another interesting party which gathered together a host of friends of Judge and Mrs. John F. O'Connell of Chicago was a St. Patrick's event given by their friends Saturday night in the Montecito Country club. The dining room was transformed into a bit of old Ireland and the table had for its centerpiece a relief map of Erin. It was made of Irish moss and planted with little shamrocks. Nothing was lacking, not even Lake Killarney, nor the River Shannon, nor the peat bogs.

Place cards of shamrock design were cleverly decorated with pictures to represent the guests' hobbies. Judge O'Connell's bore the picture of an old world barrister with a white wig and his wife, whose given name is Adeline, was designated by a quartet singing "Sweet Adeline" upon her shamrock. The Rev. Father Michael O'Connell, brother of the honoré and president of De Paul university, was pictured in cap and gown. Also among the guests were the Mark Lowells of Chicago. Mrs. Lowell's card was a cartograph of California and Florida to represent her friendly arguments over the two states. Mr. Lowell, the banker, was pictured "in the counting room." Miss Elizabeth Cudahy's shamrock bore a picture of the Old Mission, one of her deepest interests.

Visiting the George Dawsons, former Chicagoans who live now in Altadena, are Mr. Dawson's brother and wife, the John Dawsons, who will remain until nearly Easter. They were honored recently at a large tea given by Mrs. Dawson and her daughter, Mrs. William E. Hansen [Betty Dawson], in the home of the former which overlooks the entire San Gabriel valley from its high vantage point in the foothills.

Mrs. Henry Boyd of Evanston was honored at a luncheon at picturesque La Venta inn in the Palos Verdes hills this week when Mrs. Stanley Wehen, formerly of Chicago, entertained at a table for six. From the veranda can be seen the entire chain of channel islands that extend along the California coast from Santa Barbara to San Diego.

Young Moderns Old-Fashioned, Adviser Finds

By Doris Blake.

Acting on the theory that none can give so adequately the youthful point of view as the young people themselves, we sat in upon a discussion of two themes of interest to the young of both sexes, conducted by the young themselves. "What Boys Like in the Girls They Date" was one topic. The other, "Ladies Prefer Gentlemen."

As an instructive pastime, we recommend a wider adoption of such themes, for no one is better able to enlighten the younger element on what pleases and displeases than their own contemporaries. The reason is obvious. They can't accuse their own contemporaries of being behind the times, of belonging to that era, the label for which they sometimes use to confront their parents, namely, "the olden days." Finally, because it is not the older generation they aim to captivate but their own. Consequently, criticism and praise from their own quarters must bear more weight.

• • •

The forthrightness of today's young thinking group is delightful, as noted in the group meeting referred to above. To an onlooker belonging to the parent generation, it is amusing to hear youth extolling the qualities and virtues which, coming from parental lips, probably would be viewed as quaint and old-fashioned. A healthy sign, however, and one over which not to quarrel with our young moderns. If they think they have discovered something for themselves, let them think it, though you of the older generation well know your part in imbedding the fine and decent principles.

But to get on with the discussion, featured by the Girls Service Club of New York, and shared by members of each sex:

One thing on which the boys are in accord is in the use of cosmetics by girls. "Discrimination" is what they ask of the fair ones in this respect. We have a theory in this connection, after noting the way boys will hop to the subject of makeup and hearing their definite views. They probably know nothing about makeup colors as women know the subject. Deep down in their consciousness is a hangover from "the olden days" of the connection between makeup and what used to be termed "scarlet ladies."

Whether boys recognize the full import of their attitude, we do not know. But their ready comments on the subject indicate a prejudice and association more deeply rooted than their years would indicate. That's why they beg "discrimination" in the use of makeup, the word itself insinuating its prejudicial connection. It is one of the first criticisms that occurs to a young male, indicating, we interpret, how closely the theme lies to the character and personality of the girl. This is why we tell girls not to resent boy friends telling them they use too much makeup. It's a compliment. Every man wants his girl to appear to others as he knows her to be.

Another development in the discussion is the honesty of the young man about loving flattery, or, as one of the speakers put it, "I like the girl who can compliment me and inflate my ego." Another put it: "Boy, I go for flattery!" A third declared he liked a girl who was thoughtful and kind and who could make him "tingle" with her appreciation of him. He added that the flattery should not be too obvious, of course, the subtle treat to the ego being more appreciated.

One of the young speakers said he liked a girl who had poise and knew what to do in embarrassing situations. He said it was "darned important" for a girl to be able to help a fellow out when he was at a loss as to what to do in a tight situation. He liked a girl who considered the size of his pocketbook, who didn't try to "steal the show," who did not talk too much, and who did not "flutter" around. He liked a girl with spirit and spunk enough to come out at the right time with what she thinks.

"Temperament" was agreed upon by the men to be a simple show of a bad disposition, not the involved personality requiring subtle understanding its owner likes to believe it.

When the girls' theme, "Ladies Prefer Gentlemen," was taken up the young man's personal appearance was voted of prime importance to the girl he dates. In this, too, as in the boys' attitude toward makeup, one reads a deeper meaning than just sartorial correctness. A good appearance implies ambition, certain commendable character efficiencies, pride, poise, assurance, in other words, the man bent on getting somewhere, thus assuaging the feminine urge for a protector-mate. The "rough diamond" type may have done for an earlier era, but the economic pressure of today demands a personableness in the man akin to that of today's feminine jobholder, if not more so. Then, too, there is the fact that woman's pride in her man constitutes no small ingredient in her love for him.

A man with the type of personality that insures the ability to get along well with others registers successfully with the fair sex. He can be dominating to a certain extent, we learned, but he would be better liked did he not thrust his attentions on a girl.

Girls like men with a sense of humor, men who do not think that they know everything. They like a man who will admit he can be wrong. Any honest occupation is acceptable. Handsome men were deemed too hard to hold for comfort's sake.

New Theater in Paris Built on Too Huge Scale

By May Birkhead.

The anxieties of this time leave little energy for considering the arts.

PARIS Yet Paris would not be Paris if she neglected altogether the call of the muses. And this reminds us of an anecdote. About a century ago a large, handsome, dazzling blonde, Louise Colet, was determined, by hook or by crook, to make a name for herself in letters. She relied on more than literary talent, which was not accorded to her in extraordinary measure, to gain her ends. Her particular friend at that time, none other than the great Gustave Flaubert, was called on for help.

One day, or rather one night, Louise locked up Flaubert and another real writer—Théophile Gautier, if we are not mistaken—in a room and insisted that before the night was out they should indite a poem of 300 verses that she meant to sign and palm off as her own for a literary prize.

She hounded the critics, one of the most influential of whom at that time was Sainte-Beuve. After he had talked with her he said to a friend: "I expected to find a muse and I found a—cornemuse [bagpipe]."

• • •

The other night the varied élite of Paris gathered at the Palais Chaillot, which is the structure that stands on the site of the Trocadero. The occasion was the opening of the theater that was supposed to be ready at the opening of or during the exposition of 1937. It is now thrown open to the public and the inaugural night saw as brilliant an audience as Paris could muster.

The auditorium and its approaches and promenades are on a scale which makes it comparable to the ship Normandie or Rockefeller Center. One of the leading dramatic critics of Paris, Pierre Brisson, makes gay with its dimensions and concludes that, whatever else it may be good for, it is too grandiose for theatrical representations.

When one thinks of the masterpieces that have seen the light in small theaters in Paris and elsewhere in many parts of the globe, it is difficult to refuse assent to the view that the scale can be too vast to throw the humans into the right relief. Mme. Clara Longworth de Chambrun, who writes dramatic critiques for one of the English speaking newspapers in Paris, quite approves of M. Brisson's strictures.

• • •

And this reminds us that we saw recently a performance of Racine's only comedy, "Les Plaideurs," a short, gay piece that is read by students of French all over the world. It was given on the stage of the Theatre Pigalle, put up a few years ago at enormous expense by one of the Rothschilds of Paris.

The players form a troupe identified with one of the little theaters of the capital in a workingmen's district, and they figure that they are not fulfilling their purpose unless they have coöperation from the audience. One of the players explained this to the assembled crowd before the play began and said that he and his companions felt the best effect could not be produced unless the audience bore in mind the kind of settings they were accustomed to.

For the performance the players appeared, as occasion required, from all parts of the auditorium; they talked with the spectators and there was no sense of distance or false dignity and grandeur. Nearly all the busiest Parisian theaters are small enough to produce the feeling of intimate contact between players and the crowd on the other side of the footlights.

On the House

By Louise Bargeit

There is now on the market for home or apartment use a portable "steam" radiator which weighs only 40 pounds, is mounted on air conditioned sliders, and can be connected to any electric outlet. It will deliver extra heat when the temperature drops, or quick heat in the late spring and early fall before the central heating plant has really started working. No piping or special wiring is needed. You just "plug it in" where and when you want it!

* *

The comfortable and abundant heat which our central heating systems deliver to our house and apartment rooms is sometimes hard on the walls. There's a special buttermilk treatment for these washable walls of ours which keeps us from having to wash them too often. Children's fingermarks go no deeper than the buttermilk and the very thin coating of starch with which it is mixed. And all you need to apply this mixture is a good whitewash brush.

To waterproof that stucco or brick home, there is a type of waterproofing compound which comes both clear and colored.

College Boys Gladden Days at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA. A few days of snappy weather—welcomed by the golfers—descended upon Palm Beach just as spring was putting in its official appearance. The presence of a large number of collegians down for the spring vacation is adding to the design of living among the younger set. The derth of dancing partners in Palm Beach this season has caused many a furrow in the brows of hostesses. One dowager was known to have sent out an SOS call for "two black coats" for a dinner-dance.

Among the young college men here are William McLennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. McLennan, who came from Hotchkiss, accompanied by Dave Luke of New York and Kenneth Templeton of Lake Forest. George F. Williams and Jack Williams are with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Williams, at their home on the Ocean boulevard. Herbert Sheldon Johnson, a student at the Asheville School for Boys, is with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Johnson, and S. Mitchell Harper Jr., from Hotchkiss was accompanied to Palm Beach by Robert Knight of Highland Park.

Many of the younger Chicagoans will attend Miss Marie A. Bassett's debut dance at the Everglades club April 3. This will be the first coming out party Palm Beach ever has witnessed. Miss Bassett's mother, Mrs. Francis Shaughnessy of Jackson, Mich., has taken over the club for the occasion.

Marquis and Marquise Georges D. Cuevas entertained Wednesday night with a large dinner-dance at their villa on Sea Spray avenue.

Mrs. John A. Chapman is rejoicing over the arrival of a new grandson, Carteret Woodhull Fenno, born in Boston to Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Fenno Jr. [Virginia Chapman]. Mrs. Chapman recently attended a large cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont for their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Mrs. Ross J. Beatty gave a tea at the Breakers Wednesday afternoon; in her party were Mrs. Grant Warren Spear, Miss Emily Spear, and Hawley Faber of New York. Miss Joanna Fortune gave a luncheon at the Beach club on Thursday.

Mrs. William A. Yager, who left for Chicago Tuesday night, has leased a house on El Bravo way for next season.

The John Charles Thomases have probably issued the earliest invitation for next season, for a dinner-dance at the Bath and Tennis club next Christmas eve.

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, who has been at the Whitehall since early in the season and dazzled the eyes of all and sundry with the Hope diamond, left on Tuesday for Washington. At a party just prior to her departure Mrs. McLean wore the diamond and, in addition, was virtually handcuffed in diamonds and emeralds.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham of Chicago who has been quite active socially, expects to remain at the attractive house she has taken until late in May.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Beman G. Dawes at Hobe Sound.

Miss Mary Mitchell Wallace of Waterbury, Conn., is a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum, parents of her fiancé, Richard E. Baum, who also is here from Chicago.

As the season wanes, society seems to take on new life. One day last week there were forty parties. Yet in some utterly mysterious manner, the Chicago colonists fnd time to play golf, go cruising, and catch the bigger and better variety of fish out in the blue gulf stream.

New Transparent Covers Keep Dust from Furniture

The ghostly appearance of a room that results from swathing furniture in sheets during the summer vacation has been eliminated from the list of household bugbears.

New transparent furniture protectors, introduced recently in the Merchandise Mart, afford protection for furniture during summer months, or during the house cleaning period without the unsightliness of the ordinary furniture cover. Made of a pliant film, a transparent, tear-resistant material, the covers are noninflammable, dustproof, acid proof, odorless, and sanitary. They are easily cleaned with a damp cloth and never get brittle or hard.

The new covers are made in standard sizes to fit all sizes of davenports, davenport beds, chairs, loveseats, and lounges, and are bound in tape. The protector is placed over the entire piece, and is then flattened down to conform to the shape of the piece of furniture.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Let Books Make Your Trip Both Pleasant, Easy

By Edith Weigle.

The happy traveler is the man or woman who goes prepared. We're not referring to dark glasses for the tropics, or comfortable shoes for the cathedral towns, but to a preparation that is made in advance and that can be carried in the head. Read about the places you are going to visit. Fill your mind with some of their atmosphere, their history, their traditions.

And, for that matter, profit by the experience of seasoned travelers by reading some of those convenient little books about travel itself. They'll tell you all about tips, luggage, clothes, what to buy, and ever so many other useful bits of information.

Following is a list of travel books, all of them of recent publication:

"What to See and Do in Mexico," by George W. Seaton. [Prentice, Hall, $3.50].

This handy little book, nicely illustrated with photographs, is a simple, readable, concise guide to that neighbor country of ours. There are descriptions of places to eat, things to buy, hotels, and side trips. The area around Mexico City and throughout the country is divided into zones to enable the reader to learn how long it takes to visit certain spots, how much it costs, etc.

"Vagabond Voyaging," by Larry Nixon. [Little Brown, $2.25]. The only book that has been published about freighter travel. This excellent guide book has been a best seller. It gives specific trips, freighter lines, costs, and all you need to know about this leisurely, inexpensive way of seeing the world.

• • •

"100 Vacations Costing from $50 to $500," by Horace Coon. [Doubleday-Doran, $1.98].

Here's an excellent volume that budgets your trips for you, tells you just how much a trip to Havana, for example, will cost, including your expenses aboard ship, your hotel bill, your shopping sprees, etc. Vacations at home and abroad are described in detail and each one is numbered. The book is interestingly illustrated with photographs.

"A Key to New York," by Rosalie Todd and Ann Slocum. [Harpers, $2].

These two authors write a splendid guide to New York City, listing places and objects that will interest all the members of the family. There is a paper edition at 95 cents.

"California, an Intimate Guide," oy Aubrey Drury. [Harpers, $3.50].

If you're planning a motor trip to California you'll find this book a welcome friend, telling you of places to visit and things to see all over the state. It's well illustrated with photographs.

"Beautiful Hawaii," by Joseph W. McSpadden. [Crowell, $2.50].

This is a guide to all the islands in the Hawaiian group, telling something of their history, topography, and peoples. It's full of photographic illustrations.

• • •

"The World Is Your Oyster," by Helen Eva Yates. [Henry Holt, $1.75].

If you're new at traveling this clever little book is worth its weight in gold. It's written by a woman who has been around the world a number of times and who passes on her helpful tips about globe trotting to you. She explains the custom of tipping, she tells you what luggage she's found to be most practical for both long and short journeys, she helps you cut corners in expenses, she gives you guides to any number of good times.

This is absolutely the best book about the islands of the West Indies we've come across. We've used it, and it stood the test. All the islands in the Windward and Leeward group are included, as well as Haiti, Bermuda, Havana, and ports along the South American coast.

Portal Rock of Gibraltar Is Awe-Inspiring

By Frederic Babcock.

GIBRALTAR.—Madeira and the Canary Islands served as curtain raisers for the drama of our Mediterranean cruise; Gibraltar provides the setting for the opening act. And the polyglot town and supposedly impregnable rock take adequate care of the röles assigned them. The sheer majesty of Britain's mighty fort, rising straight out of the water and guarding the portal to the Mediterranean's adventure lands, inspires almost as much awe among tourists seeing it for the first time as it does among Britain's enemies wondering how many bombing planes it would take to blow it to pieces.

The stronghold is honeycombed with tunnels and gun galleries—how many, only those who are in on the empire's defense secrets have any means of knowing. The lower galleries are open to visitors; the upper ones are as cloistered as a Tibetan monastery. Nearly three miles long, a mile wide, and 1,400 feet high, it is the world's greatest fortress.

That yarn about the woman tourist who looked in vain for the insurance company's sign on the rock has long since outlived its usefulness. But that isn't the only misconception regarding Gibraltar. This traveler, for one, had always imagined that the giant guardian stood at the point where the Atlantic meets the Mediterranean. It stands well inside the strait, twenty miles from the Atlantic. Moreover, we had an idea it was as barren as the pictures show it to be. It looks that way from a distance, but closer inspection shows a good part of it covered with vines and shrubbery—as if nature had tried to belie the rock's warlike reputation.

• • •

Tarifa, instead of Gibraltar, is the first to greet the newcomer from the west as he enters the strait. Situated on the most southerly point in Europe, it is a Spanish town with a Moorish accent. Barbary pirates once maintained a fortified castle there and exacted a generous toll from every passing ship. Free traders like to remind their opponents that this was the origin of the word "tarif." At its narrowest the strait is less than eight miles wide; the mountains around Tangier and Cueta, at the northern tip of Morocco, are easily discernible.

There are, of course, two Gibraltars. One is the rock and the other is the town. The town is unmistakably English; we noted such signs as "Piccadilly buffet," "Cornwall lane" and "Hargrave's parade," along with those advertising that certain shops were "selling off." We were puzzled by the signs "No hooting" until we discovered that they were directed against the tooting of auto horns and not against any possible signs of derision on the part of the populace toward us foreigners.

But the place also has a distinct Spanish seasoning. Everywhere are goats and donkeys, and the faces of the natives are olive hued. Mingling with the Spaniards are Moors, Hindus, Nubians, and representatives of some thirty-five other nationalities. The town has no industries; it is entirely dependent on the soldiers and the tourists.

• • •

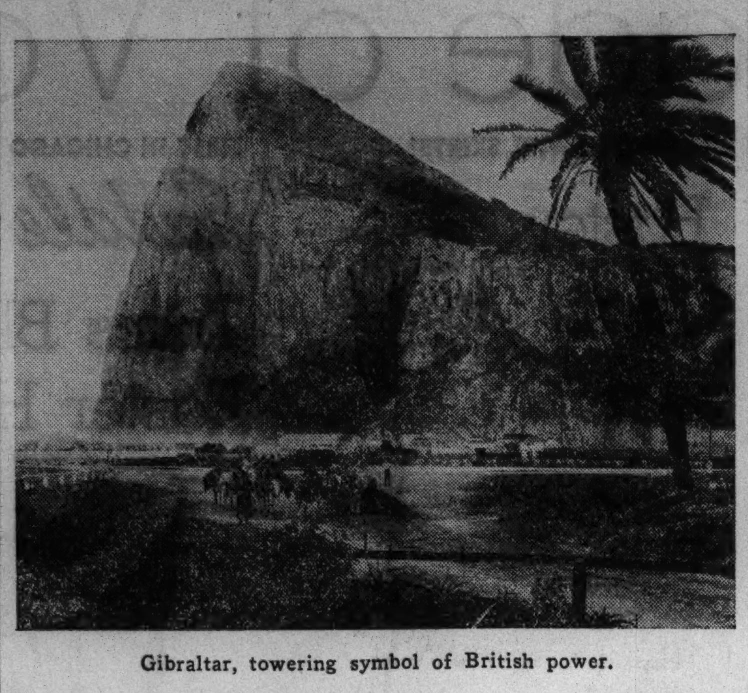
We went sightseeing through the lower galleries, and the Alameda gardens, and to the great catchment basin, and to the neutral zone—known as No Man's Land—separating the British holdings from Spain. The galleries reveal little to the outsider except some outmoded guns and a splendid harbor.

The gardens were alive with calla lilies, bougainvillea, and flowering almond trees. The catchment area, covering thirty-eight acres on the eastern face of the rock, provides the only water supply. It was built of concrete and galvanized iron, and the rain water it catches is conveyed through a half mile tunnel to five big reservoirs in the heart of the rock. The storage capacity is 9,000,000 gallons. The neutral zone is a barren strip hemmed in by barbed wire and Spanish and British soldiers.

On the eastern slope, under the catchment area, a few fishermen live in a village called Catalan Bay; there are no other signs of life there. But the western slope swarms with humanity. Gibraltar is not, as some believe, an isolated rock; it is a bit of Spanish mainland jutting out into the sea.

• • •

It has one other tourist attraction—one missed by our group of sightseers. It has Europe's only colony of wild monkeys. The Barbary apes cavort around an old Moorish castle, but they are to be seen only in the early morning. And what tourist is going to get up at 5 a. m. to see a monkey? Legend has it that when the Barbary apes die out the Lion will lose Gibraltar. The government is seeing to it that they don't die out.



Gibraltar, towering symbol of British power.

INTERESTING SIDE TRIP.

Chicago, March 5.—To the Travel Editor: Motorists driving to Florida on route 41 may take an interesting side trip to the site of the Confederate prison at Andersonville and lose little mileage by so doing.

At Barnesville, sixty-five miles south of Atlanta, take route 7 to Fort Valley, and at Fort Valley change to route 49, and ten miles south of Montezuma on the left side of the road is the cemetery where 14,000 Union soldiers are buried. Most of them died in Andersonville prison. Many northern states have put up monuments in this cemetery, and the state of Illinois has a splendid one.

About a mile beyond the cemetery is the United States government reservation where the Confederate stockade that held 43,000 Union prisoners is located. A small stream runs through it just as it did in civil war days.

At the superintendent's house a plan of the stockade hangs on the wall in the hallway and this should be looked at. One may then drive along the well marked outline of the stockade and see the general plan of the prison.

Do not fail to go to Provident spring. The story is that there was a drought in the summer of '64 and water was low in the stream that ran through the stockade. The prisoners prayed for water and one night this spring began to flow where before there had been dry land. The government vouches for this and has built a substantial stone building to protect the spring, which still flows.

Much controversy concerning the treatment of Union prisoners at Andersonville raged after the civil war and the Confederate officer in charge was hanged.

W. F. HODGSON.

GOING SOMEWHERE

Travelers southward will find this the most beautiful time of year to visit Charleston because its famous gardens are at the height of their beauty. Azaleas twenty feet high, camellias and giant wisteria vines are found at Magnolia gardens, which spread over twenty-five acres; the Cypress gardens, twenty-three miles north of Charleston, are noted for their lakes, tuberous plants and great trees, and the Middleton gardens are examples of landscaped beauty at its peak.

The Garden club of Georgia announces its annual pilgrimage to Georgia homes and gardens, now in progress and continuing until April 3. Historic and grand old mansions in Thomasville, Savannah, Macon, Columbus, Athens, and other towns are open to the public during these days, and garden lovers will be able to visit fifteen outstanding gardens in Atlanta alone.

Eastern cities will be only twenty-four hours away from "deepest Alaska" and the Arctic circle this spring in the joint service of United Air Lines and Pan-American, which connect at Seattle. United also announces plane-steamer service for those who wish to make the inside passage voyage, the plane service making it possible for passengers to enjoy the eight day boat trip to Alaska and also the attractions of the Pacific northwest all within a two week period.

Travel lectures: At the Lena Barr Morse Travel club meeting on Saturday at 1 p. m. at the Graymont hotel Mrs. Ira M. Freeman will present films on the Fiji islands; William J. Tonesk will give a talk on "Lands of the Midnight Sun," illustrated with natural color films tomorrow at 8:15 at the Edgewater Beach hotel, Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Windermere East hotel, and at 8:30 at the Lake Shore Athletic club, and next Sunday at 8:15 p. m. at the Orrington hotel, Evanston; the Rev. E. V. Dailey will give an illustrated talk, "Journeying Though Jerusalem" at University college, 28 N. Franklin street, on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Loyola Service guild.

The Devoe & Raynolds company is awarding prizes totaling $2,020 in cash in a Travel Poster contest. The first prize of $1,000 will be given to the poster which best illustrates one or more of the varied features of travel. Originality, dramatic appeal, and simplicity will also be considered in the final selection of the judges among whom are Norman Rockwell, Jonas Lie, and Don Herold.

Two special trains on the Monon railroad have been assigned to golfers and fans who are going to French Lick springs for the Midwest Amateur Golf tournament, which will be held from March 31 to April 2. A field of 600 players is expected.

With the spring season just around the corner, substantial reductions in steamship fare on all "Lady" liners of the Canadian National steamships to the British West Indies are applicable for all "round voyage" passengers sailing during the months of April and May, says the passenger trafic manager of the company. "This reduction in fare will apply to the three 'Lady' ships sailing fortnightly from Boston to Bermuda and the other eleven ports en route to British Guiana, and also to the two 'Lady' ships sailing April 1 and 15 from Boston, and later fortnightly from Montreal to Bermuda, the Bahama Islands and Jamaica," he reports.

That Droll Fellow Fields!

By CHARLES COLLINS

NARRATION of the complete story of W. C. Fields, puffy-faced comedian of the movies, is in order. He is one of the most eccentric figures on the screen, and his grotesque characterizations, unique in their vein of humor, have established a tradition which, in a lesser degree, resembles the Charlie Chaplin cult. The facts of his career as entertainer, now in its forty-second year, have not been exploited clamorously, for the bulk of cinema publicity goes to the beautiful women and handsome heroes of motion picture tales. The homely mug of this notable clown has not inspired the historians and gossips of Hollywood to any extended literary efforts.

● There is an odd quality in Fields' comic method which suggests a foreign origin, and many people have believed that he is English. He is, however, more American than many of his colleagues and rivals; he was born in Philadelphia in 1879, and his ancestry runs back into the colonial stock. The idea that he might not be of the native born comes from the background of his technique. Fields is fundamentally a pantomimist, a dumb-play comedian, and in this branch of the art of entertainment English mummers have always been leaders. Charlie Chaplin, also a pantomimist, learned his tricks in the London music halls. Years in Europe and the British colonies as a vaudeville performer preceded Fields' rise to fame on the American stage. He was a vagrant cosmopolitan, plying his trade of comic juggler around the world.

● In 1914 Fields traveled from Fremantle, in western Australia, to Rochester, N. Y., a journey of twenty-nine days, to accept an offer to appear in "Watch Your Step," a revue in which Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle were starred under the management of Charles B. Dillingham. He was dropped from (Continued on page two.)

W. C. FIELDS SAYS—

"I will live to be 112 years old, and I deserve it, for I've gone out of my way to live the wrong way."

"Children are largely brats; youth should be reserved for old codgers like me."

"A man once said to my father: 'I've never met such a repulsive child as your son. He probably will grow up to be a juggler.'"

"I became a juggler because I wanted a job that didn't require me to get up early in the morning."

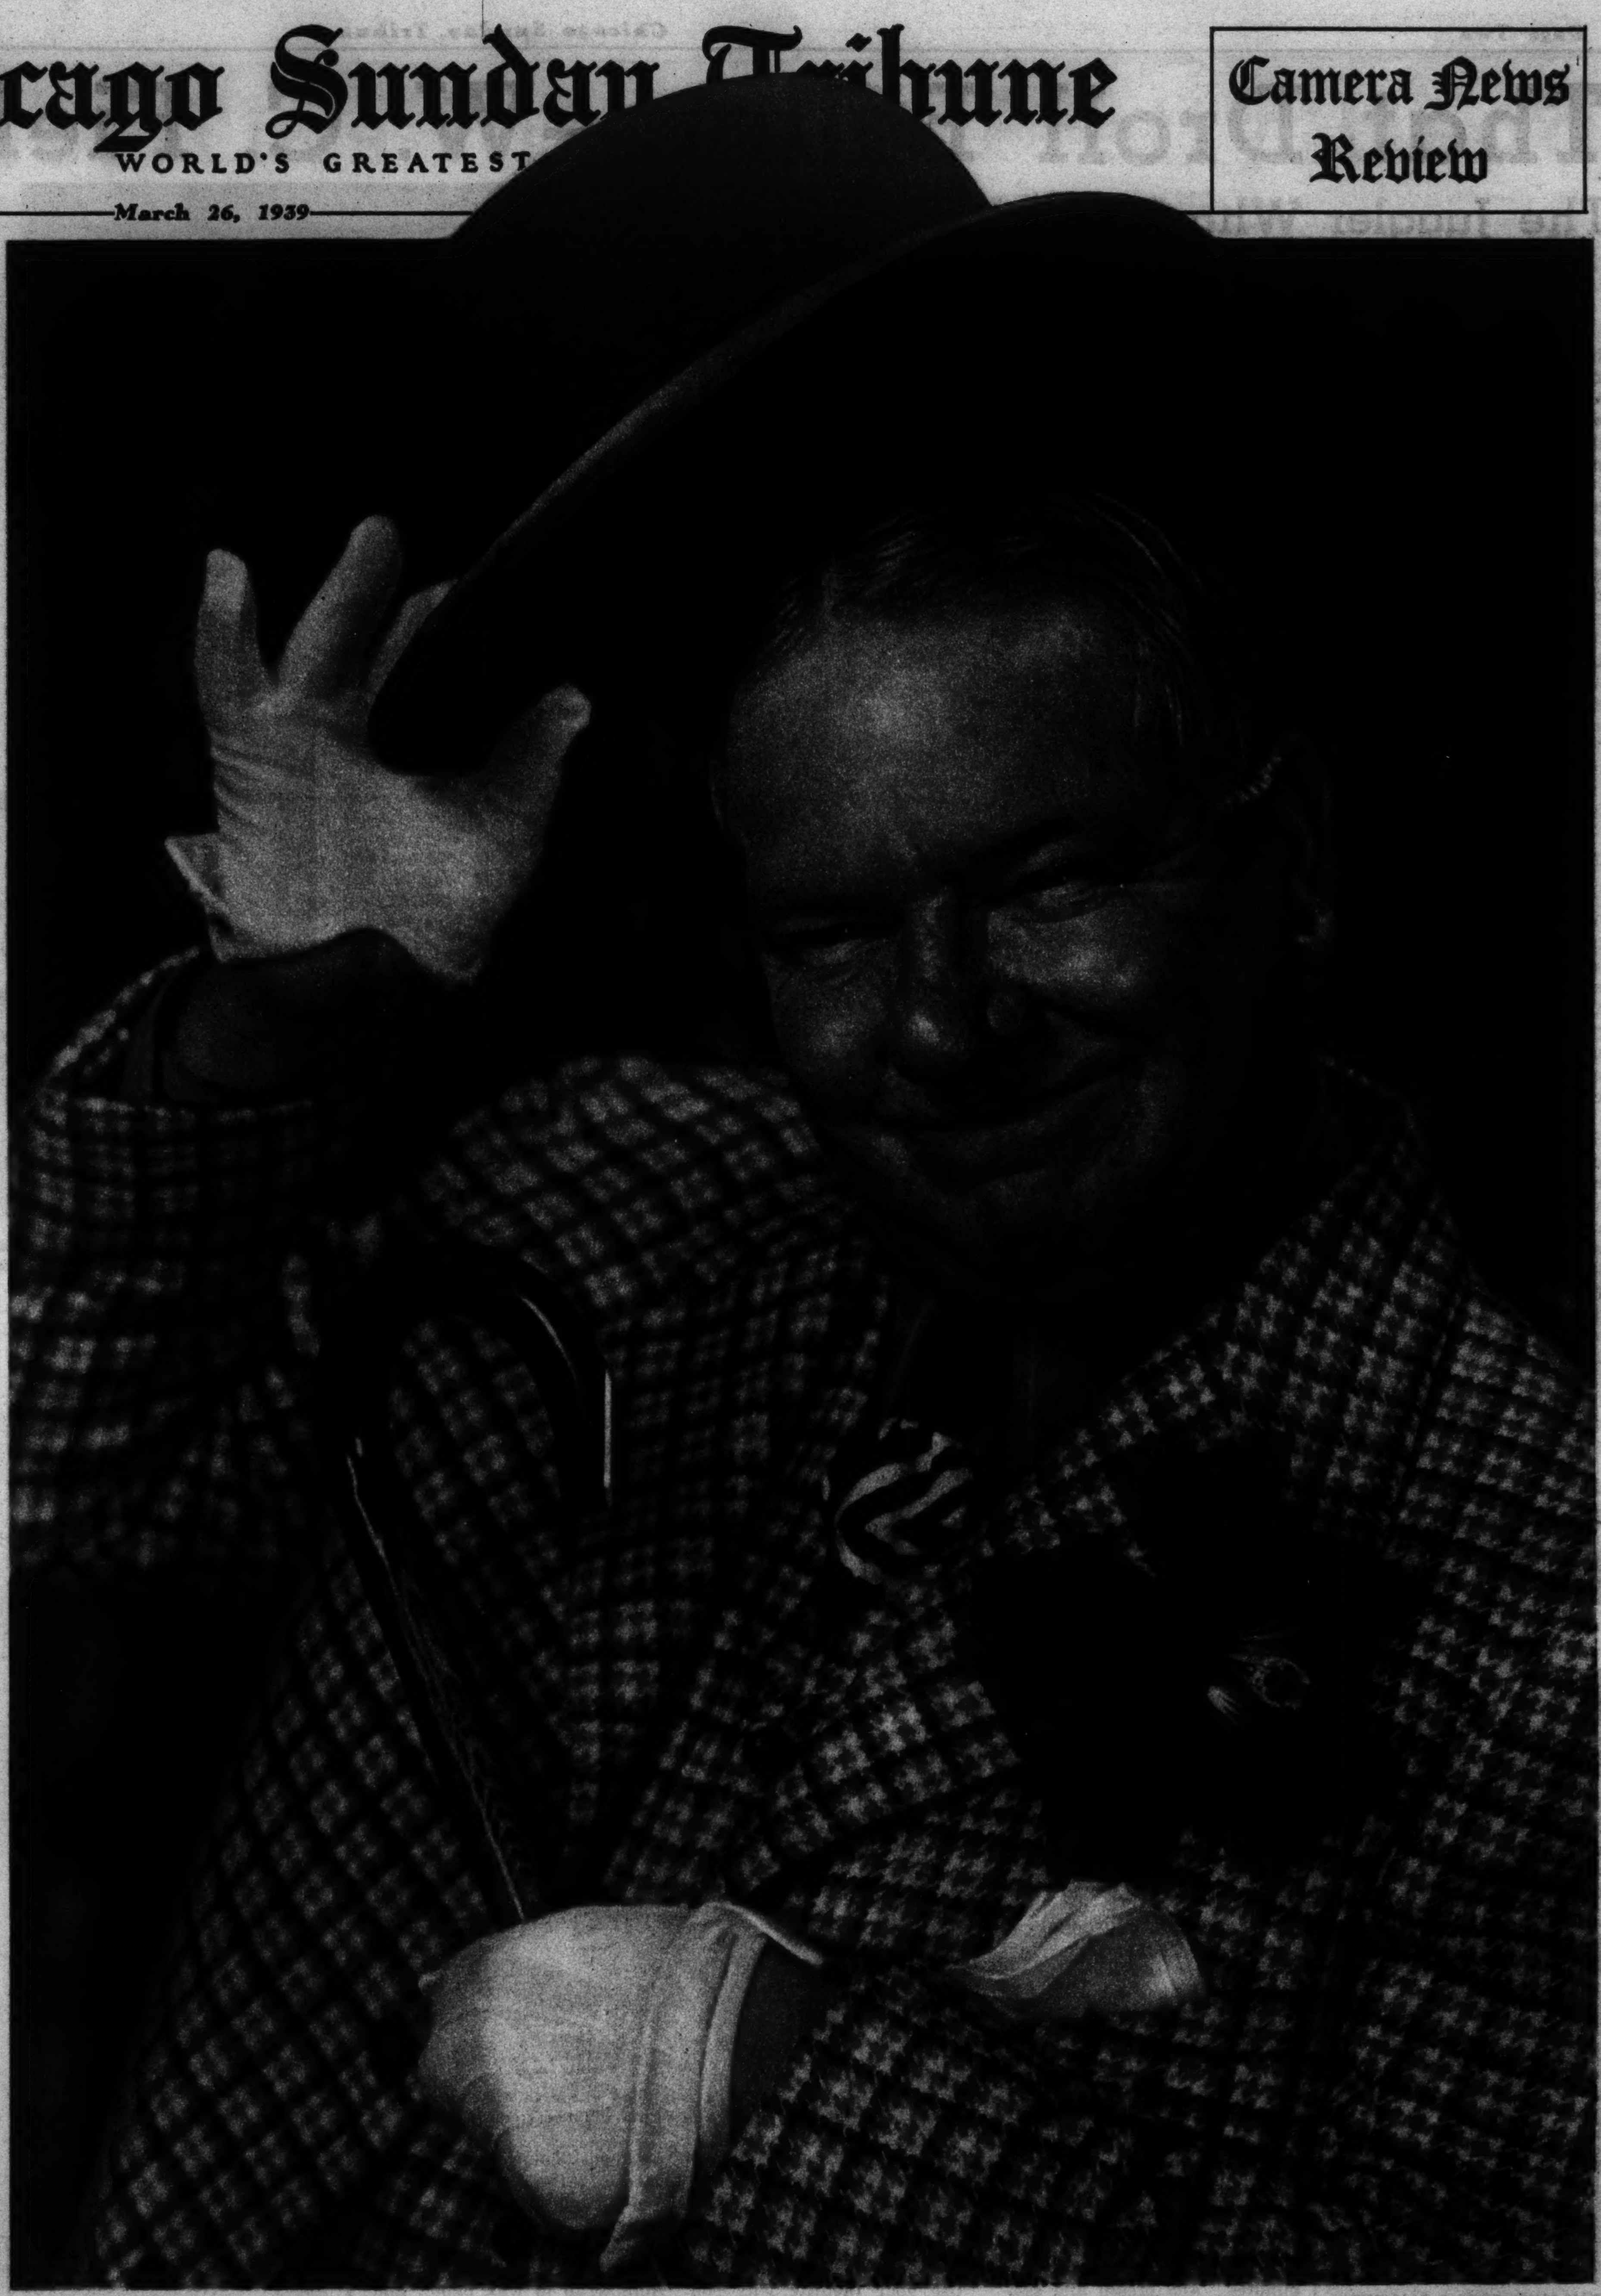
"My nose has an almost spiritual quality to its phosphorescence. A lot of liquor has flowed under the bridge of that nose."



The Tribune color camera records the odd quality in the comic methods of W. C. Fields.

He descends from the obsolete silent films.

As the Great McGargle, with Rochelle Hudson.

As a spectator at a movie rehersal.

The Juggler Who Turned Out to Be an Actor

the cast after the tryout performance. He claims that his twenty-nine days of travel for one night's performance gives him a world's championship for misfortune in theatrical life.

Nevertheless this rebuff was the luckiest event of his life. Gene Buck, song writer and first lieutenant of Florenz Ziegfeld, saw that performance as a scout for the great revue producer, and immediately engaged Fields for the next "Ziegfeld Follies." He recognized in this parody juggler, who concealed great skill in the art of legerdemain under a pretense of pathetic clumsiness, a performer of striking novelty. The laughter Fields evoked at the "Follies" Broadway première proved that a new star had been discovered by the resourceful Flo.

Fields was prominent in seven productions of the "Ziegfeld Follies" series; he became a standard personality of these famous entertainments. He began as a dumb-play performer, in comic sketches developed from mishaps with billiard balls, golf clubs, and other paraphernalia, without changing his characterization, which was that of a shabby-genteel fellow on a silent jag. After a few years he began to speak a word now and then, and it was discovered that the Fields voice also could make the customers laugh—perhaps because it was so weak and plaintive. It was like the bleat of a disconsolate lamb. And thus Fields became a talking comedian as well as a pantomimist. No other comedian in history has had such a feeble pipe; the wags of the stage are normally shouters and bellowers.

The "Ziegfeld Follies" productions in which Fields appeared were: In 1915, with Leon Errol, Ed Wynn, Ann Pennington, Bert Williams, and Bernard Granville; 1916, with Ina Claire, Bernard Granville, Ann Pennington, Bert Williams, Fanny Brice, and Carl Randall; 1917, with Fanny Brice, Bert Williams, Will Rogers, and Peggy Hopkins; 1918, with Eddie Cantor, Harry Kelly, Ann Pennington, Will Rogers, and Marilyn Miller; 1920, with Bernard Granville, Ray Dooley, Marilyn Miller, Bert Williams, Eddie Cantor, and the Fairbanks twins; 1921, with Fanny Brice, Van and Schenck, Ray Dooley, and Raymond Hitchcock; and 1925, with Ray Dooley, Will Rogers, Peggy Fears, and Ethel Shutta.

Dunkenfield was his birthright name; it suggests a Pennsylvania Dutch ancestry. After attending the public schools of Philadelphia long enough to get all the formal education that a future movie star might need he went out into the world in search of adventure in a way that was characteristic of American boyhood in the 1880s. He ran away from home and became a juvenile tramp. His vagrancy, however, was fired with an ambition; he wanted to become a juggler, and he practiced the art diligently during two migratory years, earning a meager livelihood meanwhile at odd jobs. At the age of 18 he became a professional in a summer park at Norristown, Pa., on a salary of $5 a week, from which the management deducted $1.50 as a commission for its kindness in employing such a young and inexperienced performer.

A burlesque show comedian named Watson, himself destined to rise in the profession until he became known all over the country as "Sliding Billy," soon found a better job for young Fields at Fortescue's Pier in Atlantic City, where he earned $10 and "cakes," i. e., his board. He had to serve as a "drowner" as well as a juggler; he would put on a bathing suit, wade out into the surf, and then yell for help. When rescued he would be brought into Fortescue's resort to be drained out over a barrel; and there the curious bystanders would assemble to watch the resuscitation and perhaps buy beer and sandwiches.

When the drowning season closed he went to New York, of course, and promptly found employment with a small touring company that had a program of vaudeville acts and dramatic sketches. Fields juggled, and also acted, according to his own vague ideas about that aspect of the show business. His salary was $18 a week, and he asserts that he never saw a cent of it for three seasons. The manager would pay for his troupe's board, lodging, and transportation as long as box office conditions permitted; then he would abscond, leaving the players stranded. Then Fields' tramping experience would become useful and he would beat his way back to New York in true hobo style, and would do it all over again the next year. This sounds like bitter experience, but Fields was grateful for it. Under the auspices of this fraudulent manager he ate regularly, slept in good beds, and became a master juggler.

After this apprenticeship Fields rolled along the gypsy trail of the vaudeville circuits in great comfort. He was adept in a style of entertainment that was always in demand; he secured good bookings; he was never out of work. A juggler is a true internationalist, at home wherever he can find a hall to exhibit his tricks. His first New York engagement was at the London theater on the Bowery in 1898, soon after which he went to Europe and kept on moving around the world. He appeared at Johannesburg, South Africa, before the Boer war had ended, by slipping through the British military lines. He turned up at Pago Pago, Samoa, long before Somerset Maugham wrote the story about Sadie Thompson that was dramatized as "Rain." He made his London debut in 1901.

At the Winter Garden in Berlin he made a discovery that has served to guide jugglers and pantomimists ever since. It ought to be called "Fields' law." His act failed there, and he did not know why. He returned to the same theater later and succeeded. Then it dawned upon him that on his first engagement he had been preceded by a troupe of trained horses. Hence Fields' law: Never follow a horse act; never follow any kind of act that makes considerable noise. After such a racket an audience is not prepared to give its attention to silent byplay.

Fields' technique all through his stage career, and to a large extent in the movies, is based upon the manipulation of various objects with split-second timing of movements. In the shop talk of the amusement profession, he is a "prop" comedian. This is a more ancient and possibly more honorable branch of the trade than that practiced by the dialog comedians—the wags who chatter wittily or make strange noises with their mouths. There is a feud between these two branches of the funnyman business that runs back, no doubt, to the mummers of ancient Greece and Rome.

Ed Wynn may be selected as a representative of the chatterboxes who regard performers like Fields as old-fashioned and who stigmatize their offerings as "dumb acts." Therefore let us recall what Wynn did to Fields in the latter's first year with the "Ziegfeld Follies," and also what Fields did to Wynn. The story is a sprightly illustration of the difference between the two schools of comic thought—the wise-cracker and the slapsticker.

In that revue Fields was giving his billiard table act, now to be found in his movies; laughter from the audience was frequent and regular. One night the customers began laughing off schedule, so to speak, and in a derisive way. He was puzzled for several minutes; then he discovered that Ed Wynn was lurking under the billiard table, making comic faces and behaving generally like a "flycatcher." (This is a bit of stage slang which designates a performer who interferes with a colleague's performance by making gestures, unseen by the latter, such as pretending to capture an imaginary fly.)

"If he does it again I'll kill him," was the ultimatum issued by the usually mild-mannered juggler to the management that night after the performance. Wynn was informed; he laughed it off.

• • •

A few weeks later Fields again found Wynn under the billiard table catching flies. Without an apparent break in his routine of tricks he worked into a favorable position and then, reversing his cue, he swiftly dropped the butt of it down on Wynn's head. It was no love tap; the stroke was hard enough to drive a nail. Wynn gave one deep groan and rolled over on his back, "out" for a count of ten or longer. The audience laughed in high glee, for it looked like good, clean fun. The stage manager wanted to ring down the curtain, but Fields nodded him out of the impulse and calmly went on with his billiard ball tricks, while Wynn, after recovery, augmented the laughter with occasional lamentations.

Fields and Shirley Ross in "The Big Broadcast."

In the "Ziegfeld Follies of 1918" there was a rough comedian named Harry Kelly, then better known than Fields, who also thought that this upstart should be suppressed. Kelly had been assigned by the librettists to the rôle of Fields' caddie in his golfing travesty. His behavior in that capacity took the form of flagrant and willful interference with Fields' delicately adjusted system for arousing laughter; "flycatching" again, always a fighting issue between comedians. This time Fields waited until he met his annoyer backstage after the show; then he smote him, suddenly and furiously. When the fight (probably a draw) had ended, Kelly resigned as Fields' stooge.

"Anybody will be better than Kelly," proclaimed the enraged juggler. "Give me that stagehand!"

The mechanic to whom he pointed was a dwarflike creature with a huge head. He accepted the job, handled it perfectly, and became Fields' best-known helper. That's how stooges are born.

Fields' movie career began soon after his first season with the "Ziegfeld Follies," in 1915, when he appeared in slapstick comedies produced by the Gaumont firm in Long Island City. Thus he descends from the obsolete silent films, to which his pantomime was perfectly adapted, and Hollywood of the talkies regards him, with his background of twenty-four years before the camera, as a veritable Rip Van Winkle. In recent years his deftness in characterizing pompous old duffers and amiable frauds has won him recognition as a creative actor with an unusual style. He may use the slapstick freely (the directors clamor for new versions of his familiar tricks), but he deserves to be called an artist. From the juggling of billiard balls he has risen to a mellow interpretation of the immortal Mr. Micawber in "David Copperfield."

It's How, Not What, You Serve

By MARY MEADE

IT ISN'T so much what you serve as how you serve it that builds your reputation as a good or poor hostess, an excellent or mediocre cook.

Baked chicken isn't so much of itself—but baked young chicken in mushroom cream, served as it is pictured on this page, really is something! Jelly roll is a good old-fashioned dessert which might possibly be taken indifferently were it just jelly roll. This one is more—it's filled with strawberries, fresh ones, and the topping is whipped cream cheese. Try both these good foods for the next company meal if you're one of the army of women who are always seeking "some different way to fix it."

YOUNG CHICKEN IN MUSHROOM CREAM

(Serves five)

- 1 young roasting chicken, about 3½ pounds
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup fat
- ¼ to ½ pound fresh mushrooms
- 2 cups cream or thin white sauce
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- Grated rind of 1 lemon
- 1½ tablespoons sherry
- Seasonings

Disjoint chicken, dip in seasoned flour, and fry in fat until golden brown. Place in casserole. Sauté the mushrooms in the same skillet about five minutes. Add cream and seasonings, lemon juice and rind, and sherry and pour over the chicken. Bake covered until tender, 1 to 1½ hours. The sauce should be thickened by that time. Good news: Roasting chickens are from 20 to 25 per cent less in price than they were last year.

STRAWBERRY JELLY ROLL

Use your favorite jelly roll recipe, which I hope will be the one printed not so very long ago in this column. You'll need besides a quart of fresh strawberries, ¾ cup sugar, and 2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese. After baking the cake and cutting off the crisp edges, spread thickly with the strawberries, which have been cut fine and mixed with the sugar. Roll, wrap in wax paper, and allow to cool. Slice and top each portion with a spoonful of cream cheese which has been softened with milk and whipped with an egg beater.

Here's an attractive way to serve young chicken in mushroom cream. Add frills to the drumsticks and let them adorn the top of the casserole.

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Please inform me who played the part of Susie in "Boy Meets Girl" on the stage. Was it Marie Wilson, who played it on the screen? I am under the impression it was somebody else and would be glad to know who it was. Thank you.

MISS JOSEPHINE ROSS.

Editor's note: Polly Walters played the rôle of Susie on the stage, and Marie Wilson played the same part in the screen version. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: Again I highly praise Bette Davis; her supporting cast in "The Sisters" also deserves much commendation.

I think Miss Davis shows she is a truly great actress in this production, and her outstanding ability is repeatedly being recognized as quite miraculous.

Therefore I believe "The Sisters" should be put on that "must see" list, and soon every one will agree with me in saying three cheers for three sisters who make this unforgettable story possible. Sincerely, ROSLYN NEWMAN.

Editor's note: I like your stationery.

Dear Miss Tinée: I saw "Submarine Patrol" recently. I think Richard Greene is tops. He not only has the right kind of looks, but he has a taking personality as well. I prophesy that in a year or so he will be stepping in line with the first row. He really should be there now. It takes a star to act the part of a rich man's son—fraternize with the hard-working gobs and be the "lover-lest" lover a girl ever wanted, and all in one breath, too. All hail to Richard Greene, the movie king of 1940.

Thank you. I like your column.

MYRTLE DE LINE.

Editor's note: Richard and I thank YOU.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like to know who it was that played the part of Deanna Durbin's mother in "That Certain Age." My sister said it was Irene Dunne, and I said it was Irene Rich. Could you please tell me who is right? Thanks a lot.

LOUISE YARGER.

Editor's note: You are right, Louise, for it was Irene Rich who played the rôle of Deanna's mother in "That Certain Age."

Story of a Shampoo That Does More Than Wash

By ELEANOR NANGLE

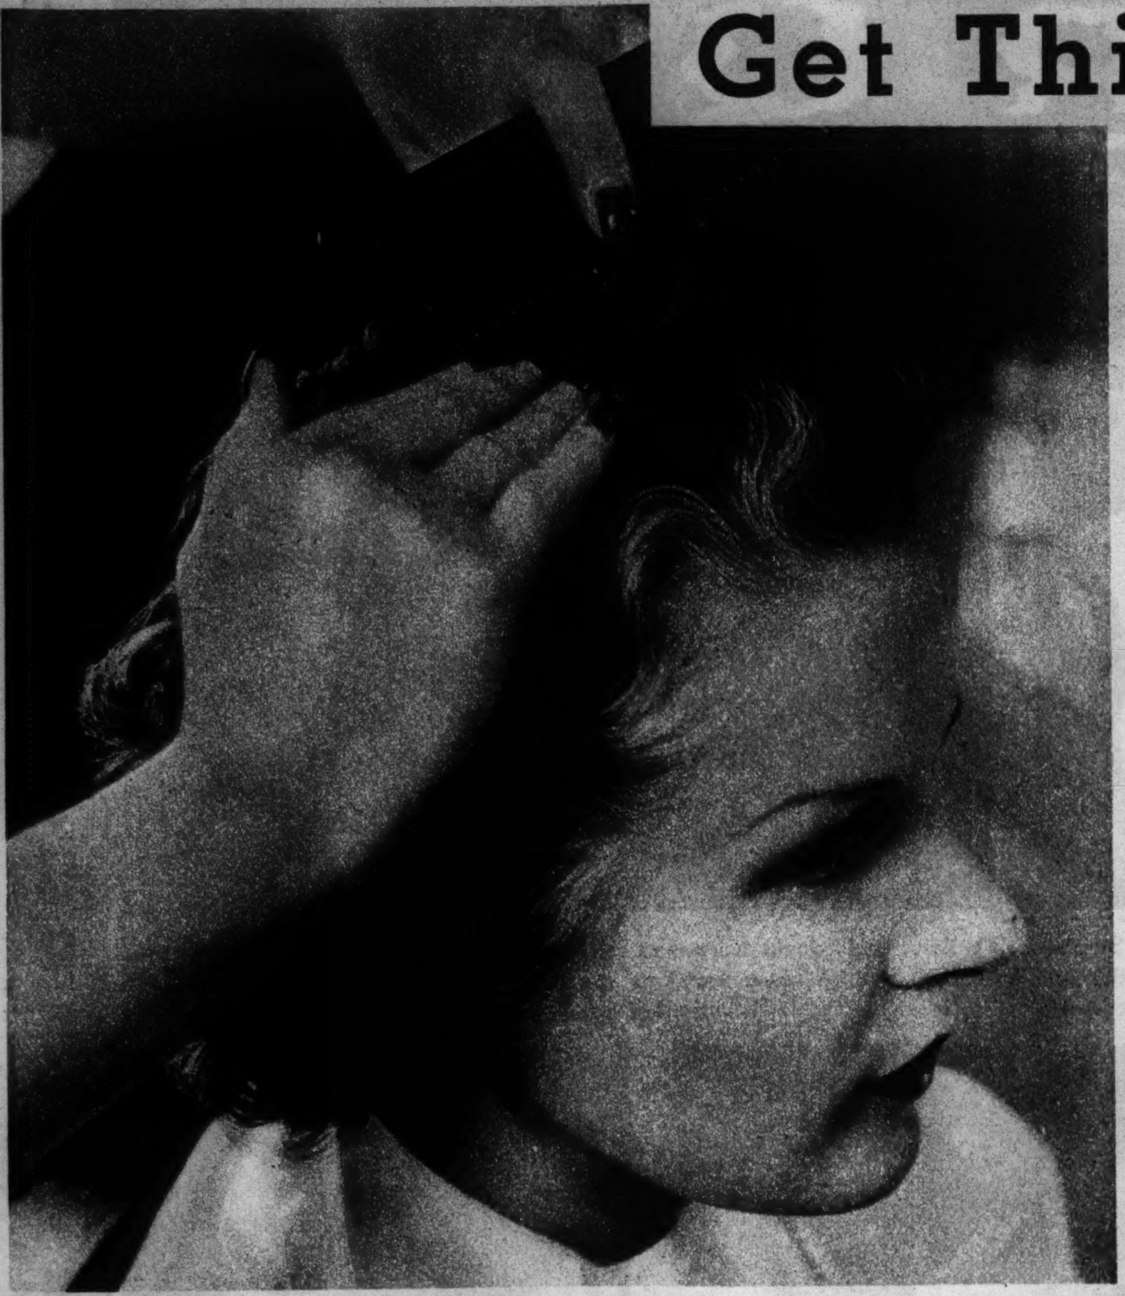
UNTIL SHE realizes that hair has no life independent of the scalp a woman will get nowhere in her pursuit of hair luster. She can wash it, wave it, slather it with external shiner-uppers, but it's a wild goose chase unless her scalp is stimulated and kept clean.

One of the oldest methods of hair treatment is becoming increasingly popular in Chicago. A suds shampoo, with no soap actually touching the hair, is one feature of it. A course of treatments using preparations designed for individual scalp requirements is usually taken once or twice a year—the first one to recondition the hair and scalp, the second to prevent the need for corrective measures. Throughout the year the shampoos are given whenever the patron feels the need of one.

The first step in a first treatment would be the application of an herbal ointment to the scalp to loosen the normal or abnormal accumulations. All through the treatment an unusual comb, with extremely large teeth that will not tear the hair, is used for parting. The scalp massage that follows is a scientific one that stimulates the scalp but relaxes the patron.

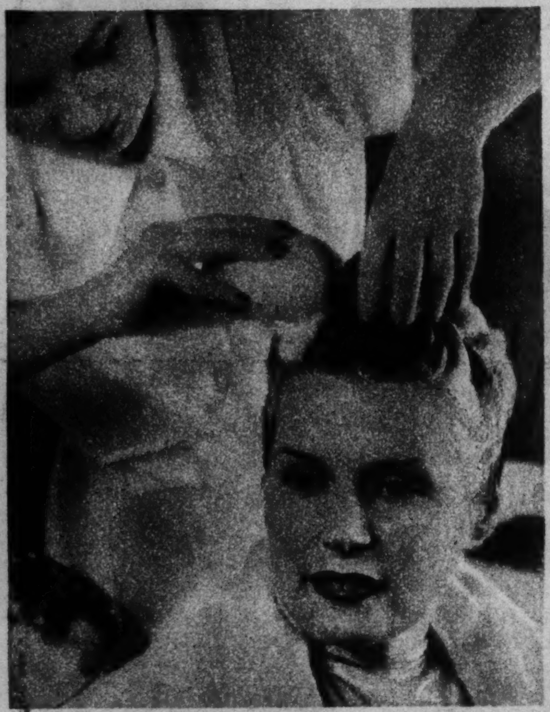
Herbs (again chosen for individual needs) are used in the hot water, also a cake of special soap made, we're told, of table olive oil. This soap, as we have said, never touches the hair. Instead a deep-sea sponge, covered with thin white cloth, is laden with suds and used to scrub the scalp and to clean and polish the hair shafts. It's a lengthy shampoo that combines massage and hair polishing most efficiently. Rinsing is a thorough but pleasant process, with herbs used generously. After this more massage, expert brushing, and hand drying.

The course of reconditioning treatments has been known to accomplish miracles in the way of transforming dull hair into the vibrant, flattering face frame it should be. And these luxurious shampoos are hair beauty guardians in themselves. They've been found particularly effective in keeping hair of delicate coloring from fading.



First step in an unusual hair treatment to restore health, sheen, and softness to neglected locks is the application of herbal ointment to dislodge scalp accumulations.

At right: Ointment is worked into the scalp by scientific massage designed to improve circulation and prepare the scalp for the shampoo.



No soap touches the hair. Only rich lather is used, with scalp gently scrubbed and hair polished with a soaped sponge.

At right: Herbs are used in the final rinsing waters, after which the hair is hand-dried and properly brushed.

After a scalp treatment and a good shampoo the hair lends itself beautifully to a becoming hairdress. It will keep its softness and luster until the next shampoo. (Tribune photos by Frank Moore.)

Diesel Is Put to Many Uses

● Last Sunday the author described the development of the Diesel engine and the way in which it operates. Uses to which the engine has been put are discussed in this second and final article.

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

WHEN Dr. Rudolph Diesel invented the engine named for him he was seeking a very definite solution to a very aggravating problem—the inefficiency of the simple steam engines of the late 1800s. Those engines utilized only 6 to 8 per cent of the actual value in their fuel. In 1897 he produced an engine that worked. Its history since then is a dramatic chapter in transportation history.

Back of the rise of the Diesel is a basic fact—it is inherently the most efficient type of engine yet developed. The steam turbine converts only 15 to 27 per cent of its fuel into useful energy; the gasoline engine, at its best, 22 to 28 per cent. The Diesel converts 32 to 38 per cent.

It has other advantages. It does not get so hot nor waste so much heat as a gasoline engine. It works as efficiently at low speeds as high. And, generally speaking, it has a longer life.

Another present advantage of the Diesel is low fuel cost. In place of the coal dust of Dr. Diesel, operators of his engines now use a petroleum distillate. Contrary to a rather prevalent belief, Diesels do not run on crude oil. The type of petroleum distillate used for running the Diesel-electrics that pull the new streamlined trains is about equivalent to the No. 3 furnace oil used for heating homes.

The cost of producing this distillate at the refinery is about the same as the cost of producing gasoline, but gasoline sells at retail at about two and a half times as much. However, the best argument for the Diesel is that no matter what the cost of the fuel, this engine burns it at higher efficiency than any other engine would.

In the early days Diesels had to be made very heavy to stand up under compression. And although the weights have been cut from the old 250 pounds a horsepower to 17 in some of the streamliner engines, it is still at its best when weight is not a factor in its use. Also it is at its best in large sizes. These facts account for much of its popularity in the stationary and marine fields.

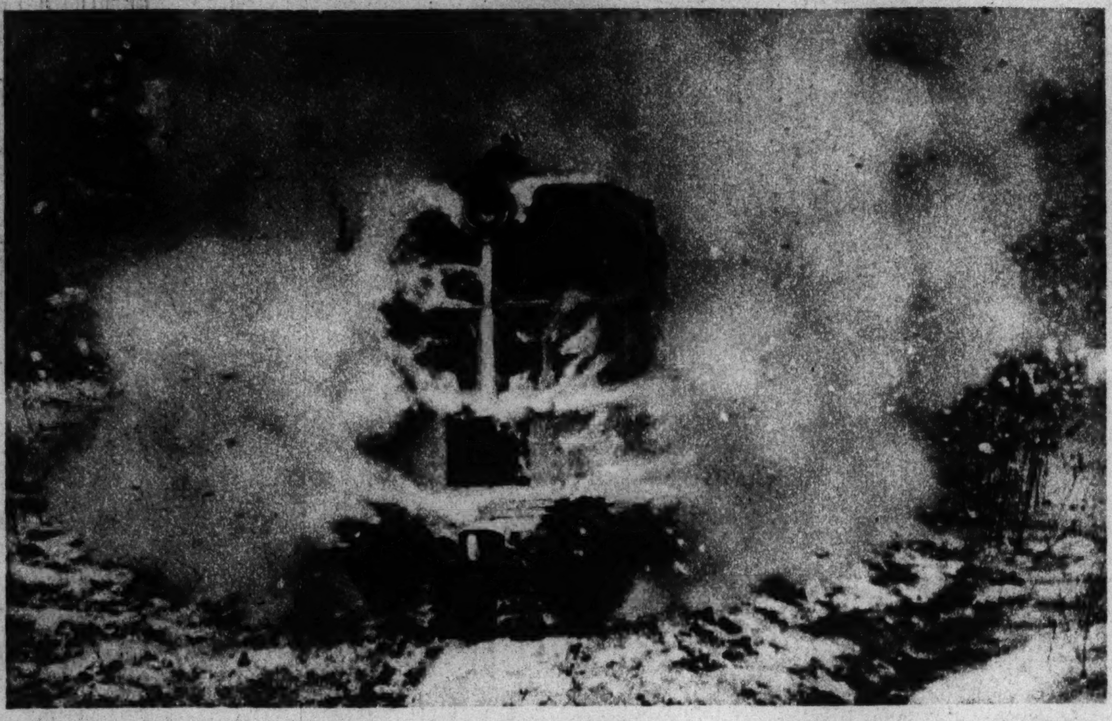
It is not, broadly speaking, so easy to transmit Diesel power, when varied speeds are needed, as to transmit gasoline power. The streamline trains have their Diesels to generate electric power, which is the force that drives the wheels. Again speaking generally, the Diesel does its best work when running at a constant speed over a long period.

• • •

In Copenhagen, Denmark, a utility company is using the biggest Diesel in the world to generate electricity. It produces 22,500 horsepower. Its cylinders are 33⅛ inches in diameter and have a 59-inch stroke. A medium-sized man could hide comfortably in one cylinder. The makers have boasted they can build an engine twice as large.

For small vessels the Diesel is now the favorite motive power. Tugs, ferries, freight and passenger ships of larger size use this engine to great advantage. Hotels, office buildings, and manufacturing plants are coming more and more to the Diesel, and often find they can make their own electricity more cheaply than they can buy it from utilities.

In the railroad field, where mobility is important, the development in the last few years is startling. There are the 6,000-horsepower giants of the Seaboard Air Line railway which draw trains consisting of standard weight cars between Washington and Miami. There are the 5,400-horsepower engines that pull the City of Los Angeles and the City of San Francisco between Chicago and the Pacific coast. And there are the greyhoundlike smaller Diesels that pull streamliners on the shorter runs.



The Zephyr slices through a snowdrift. Diesel-powered streamliners such as this have proved highly efficient in all weather. (Photo © Burlington Railroad.)

Junkers Diesel-powered plane in flight.

Excavating shovels and tractors now frequently are Diesel-powered. We see owners of heavy truck and bus fleets changing from gasoline to Diesel engines and claiming that—for the long-haul business, at least—savings are tremendous. Some say 3 to 5 cents a mile.

Performance and economy records of Diesels in railroad use have been remarkable. A Burlington Zephyr on a special run between Chicago and Denver traveled the 1,017.2 miles at an average speed of 83.33 miles an hour. From Lincoln, Neb., to Denver it traveled the 482 miles, during which it climbed 4,035 feet in elevation, at an average speed of 88.69 miles an hour. About 1,560 gallons of fuel at a cost of $62.40 was used. The train weighed 518 tons and carried about 180 passengers.

The Union Pacific drove its streamlined M-100001 across the country on $83 worth of fuel, about 2⅓ cents a mile. A standard steam locomotive would have used $300 worth of fuel.

Manufacturers are now striving to adapt the Diesel economically to the needs of the small power user. One in the midwest is making a stationary five-horsepower engine which, with an electric generator, takes up a space 5x2x2 feet. It must also have a 100-gallon tank of cooling water.

The generator produces enough energy to light fifty 60-watt lamps. It is claimed that a farmer could keep this in his garage, run it when he needs it, and be out only 2 cents an hour for fuel oil and lubricating oil. But there is a fly in the ointment. The engine and generator cost $850. Interest and amortization would cost a great deal more than operation. It is reported that one manufacturer is now developing a low-cost Diesel of only three horsepower.

Experiments have been made toward putting Diesels in passenger automobiles. As a matter of fact, if you want a Diesel car you can get one by paying the price. There is no definite information to prove the Diesel pleasure car is a success. The biggest automobile makers don't think it is "at present."

However, the Chicago Motor Coach company is happy with its new Diesel-powered buses. On Feb. 18 it put five Diesel buses in operation and now has fifty in use. Officials said that the Diesel buses are much smoother in their operation than the gasoline-powered buses. The smoothness is attained through the use of a "torque converter" similar to the "fluid drive" used on certain Chrysler and British cars. Officials say it is too early to tell much about fuel savings.

The savings in fuel are not so important for the auto as they appear at first glance. Gasoline cost is only a fraction of the total cost of running a car. Nor would a longer-lived engine, such as a Diesel, be of much value. Even as it is gasoline engines become obsolete far more often than they wear out.

• • •

Going back to streamline trains, let President Hamilton of the Electro-Motive corporation tell about them.

"There was a great deal more to designing the streamline train than merely finding a Diesel engine for it," he said. "Many other things contribute to its present success. This is so true that if the effective Diesel had come along much before it did we wouldn't have had enough 'know how' to introduce it into the streamliner.

"The railroads began experimenting in 1905. E. H. Harriman was one of the early backers. In 1909 General Electric entered the field and built in all about ninety motor cars.

"They were better than the early ones, but not completely successful. During the war the automotive industry took a try at it. The start was made by putting a truck with flanged wheels on the rails. But the industry was dragged off into new fields by the problems that came up, and, indifferently successful, gave up its attempts.

"About 1921 there was a general belief that steam would have to remain almost the sole power for railroads. But in 1922 and for some years afterward Electro-Motive kept trying to find the right way out. When we started, 200-horsepower gasoline engines were the limit. We built them up to 900 horsepower finally, and that was as far as we could go practically with the gasoline engine.

"From 1930 to 1932 there was little progress. But in 1932, about the time General Motors absorbed this company, there began a rapid development of the Diesel engine. A two-cycle engine was brought to a rapid state of commercial value, and we had the power to drive the streamliners in 1934."

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

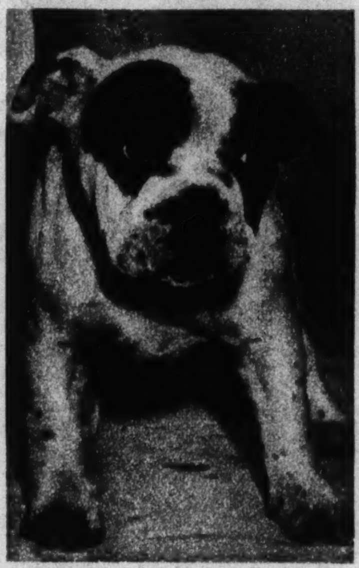
Shows Offer Opportunity to Learn

THERE is hardly a city in the United States that isn't within easy driving distance of a dog show at least once a year—so rapidly has grown the fascinating hobby of exhibiting well bred dogs. These exhibitions not only give the average owner an opportunity to see dozens of breeds at one time but also some of the more uncommon kinds of dogs—the breeds that he won't see on the street or in the average home.

Supporting these shows and the kennel clubs back of them is important for several reasons. In the first place, a show gives families an opportunity to look at the breeds in which they are interested, see the types that breeders now are producing, and talk with experts who may give a lot of information about a breed, its traits and correct conformation.

A dog show is not only an institution fostering competition to see who can breed the dog most nearly approaching the ideal type, but it also is a big, exciting school for all of us who own dogs. And the faculty consists not only of the dogs themselves but the men who show, breed, and judge them.

The Bedlington terrier being held by Marsha Hunt, motion picture actress, is a rather uncommon breed which was developed in England. Although it comes from game terrier stock, its exact origin is shrouded in mystery.



A three-month-old bulldog named Cuddles, facing the camera for the first time.

One opportunity that the public usually neglects at a dog show is the chance to get acquainted with professional handlers, watch them use their stripping knives and other grooming accessories, and thus learn some of their tricks in making a terrier look neat and trim. Hundreds of thousands of terriers look too much like unkempt strays, due to the fact that they are not groomed correctly.

If you own a nice looking purebred and have an idea that you would like to exhibit the dog in a show, you can go to a dog show and get acquainted with handlers who will be glad to advise you on the routine of training the pup for his debut.

• • •

Many people who own dogs agree that any one who is thinking about buying a dog for the home never should miss a dog show, which is a sort of show window of the world of dogs.

During the last month we have talked to many prospective dog owners who were inquiring about breeds and kennels. A number of them told us that they were going to go to the next show in order to look at different breeds and talk to breeders with the idea of making up their minds about the dog they wanted for their home.

Sponsors of some of the American shows at last have awakened to the fact that the public is eager to learn about qualities of the breeds and the value of training for dogs. And they also want to be amused while absorbing information. So the showing of motion pictures on dogs and obedience training classes is getting more attention at shows. After seeing the obedience tests at the Westminster Kennel club show in New York, watching the enjoyment of the spectators around the ring, and hearing the comments on how interesting these tests are, it's safe to predict that soon every show in the United States will feature such tests.

DOG NOTES

Robert Montgomery, film star, owns English springer spaniels and has handled his own dogs in field trials.

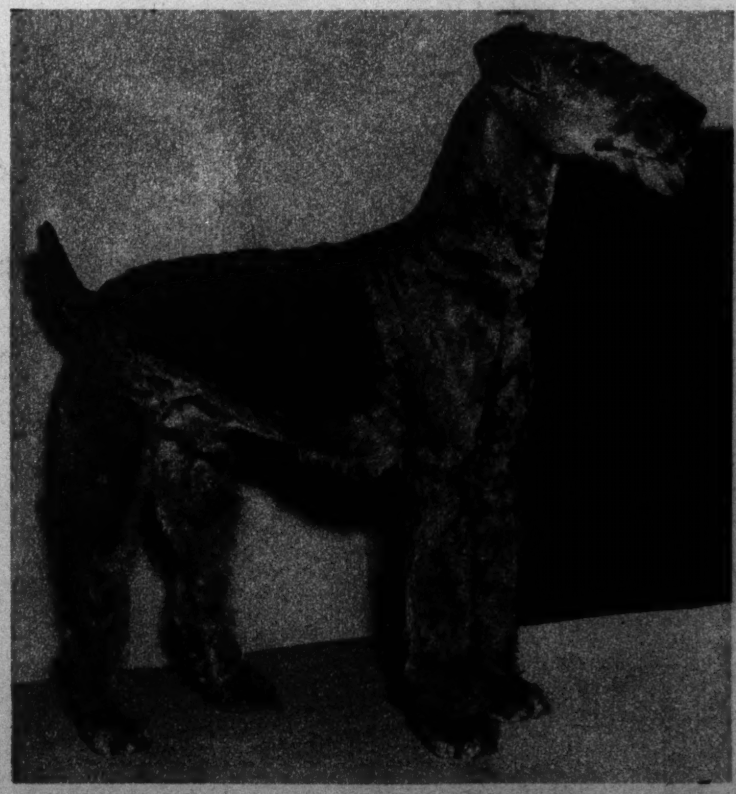
Fossil remains of a little-known dog of the Pliocene period have been unearthed in the Mojave desert. The probable age of the animal has been estimated at between seven and eight million years.

"The Dog Book," the illustrated guide on dogs and their care prepared by this department, is now in its second edition. The handbook (30 cents by mail) contains information on the care, training, and feeding of puppies as well as adult dogs.

A Boston terrier owned by John Chaddock, Benton Harbor, Mich., is now a seasoned political campaigner. Ginger, the dog, helped elect his master to the office of registrar of deeds in his home county by carrying a "Vote for Chaddock" sign on his dog jacket. Chaddock gives the dog much credit for helping him win the election, because he says people on the street never forgot the sight of the doggy politician.

Hair clipped from dogs is now being used for the heads and beards of marionettes. Imitation hair for puppets was formerly made of wires, cotton, or strings, but hair from dogs is more realistic.

The rat terrier is not a recognized breed. The Manchester terrier and the smooth fox terrier are the dogs most commonly thought of as rat terriers, but there is no distinct breed by that name. Most of the terrier breeds are adept at catching and killing rats.



Champion Rockley Roasting Hot is the unusual name of this good looking Airedale terrier which is neatly trimmed and groomed for the show ring.

The Flying Box Car

Artist's conception of the method of loading the proposed freight plane. It is designed to carry loads as heavy as army tanks.

Freight Plane Will Open New Transport Field

By WAYNE THOMIS

FREIGHT by air. Canadians are accustomed to this thought. So are the gold miners of New Guinea, the business men of South America, the miners and Indians of Alaska. But not the citizens of the United States. Yet the day soon will be here when the transportation of certain kinds of freight inevitably will be handled by airplane.

This is the conviction, at least, of a Chicago aeronautical engineer, Ben O. Howard. And Howard, to meet this market, has designed and now is preparing to build a cargo-carrying airplane that he facetiously calls a "flying box car."

Ben O. Howard

It is intended to carry a load of about four tons at a cost per mile that will permit its operators to charge rates that will not materially exceed present rates for carrying of parcel post packages and small railway express shipments by railroad trains, and yet provide a fair margin of profit.

The airplane is to be a working ship, able to justify its operation without air mail contracts. It is to be constructed so that it can be flown with equal ease and lack of maintenance and repair difficulties on the Arctic circle or on the equator. It is to double as a transporter of heavy mining machinery, supplies, live stock, or as a carrier of war supplies, troops, heavy cannon, shells, or even entire light tanks if necessary.

It is not intended for the transportation of passengers. It will have none of the soundproofing, the luxurious seats, the iceboxes, and the cooking gallies of the aristocratic transport airliners that now ply the country's airways. This particular airplane is to be an aerial freighter, as practical, as stripped of fuss and feathers as one of the modern oceangoing freight steamers that earn their way by the amount of goods and materials they carry in their holds.

First of all, the airplane has been designed to make a profit from its flying. It is designed to carry an 8,000-pound pay load at a cruising speed of 149 miles an hour. With all this its total direct operating cost is to be only 26.2 cents a mile. This contrasts with operating costs of about 65 cents a mile for the Douglas and Lockheed airliners that now are standard equipment on the nation's major passenger air lines. And these luxurious airliners carry a pay load of approximately 6,500 pounds when loaded for a flight of only 600 miles.

Requirements for a freighter on which no passengers are to be carried are quite different from those of a gleaming passenger ship. And in every possible way Howard has made the most of his opportunities to improve the money-making characteristics of the particular plane he is designing for its particular freight-carrying job.

First of all, the Howard freighter is to have an unobstructed hold 8x8 feet by 24 feet long. This gives a cargo capacity of 1,536 cubic feet for the four-ton cargo. And the loading of this airplane is to be simplified by the hinged tail. Howard designed this ship so that its loading can be accomplished in the easiest possible fashion. There will be no jockying and prying of cargo to get it aboard this freighter.

• • •

After the plane has landed the pilot will open a valve and the entire tail of the machine will swing aside. This will leave an opening eight feet square into which the freight can be loaded. The loading operation can be direct from motor truck or railroad freight car into the plane. When the cargo is aboard the tail will be swung back into position and locked securely into place. Then the machine will take off on its journey to its destination.

The tricycle landing gear, having proved its worth in the DC-4, the DC-5, the army's new attack-bombers, and even in the new Lockheed multi-engined pursuit plane, also is used for the freighter. But this gear will be fixed, and streamlined to present as little drag as possible. This will eliminate the weight and complication (and consequent expense) of a retractile gear. Yet the cruising speed of the ship—approximately 150 miles an hour at 62.5 per cent full power—will be within probable requirements for a freight-carrying plane.

The freighter is to be a large plane, gross weight 20,400 pounds, with an empty weight of 10,000 pounds. The wing will have a total area of 1,000 square feet, and the machine will have two engines that may range from 750 to 1,100 horsepower each. It will be of a high-wing design, with twin stabilizers and rudders at the tail—much like the Lockheed planes.

It is to have a climb of 1,000 feet a minute, to land at 63 miles an hour through use of Howard high-lift flaps. It is to have a ceiling on one engine of 9,000 feet and to take off after a run of less than 300 yards. The cockpit will be arranged for its operation by one pilot.

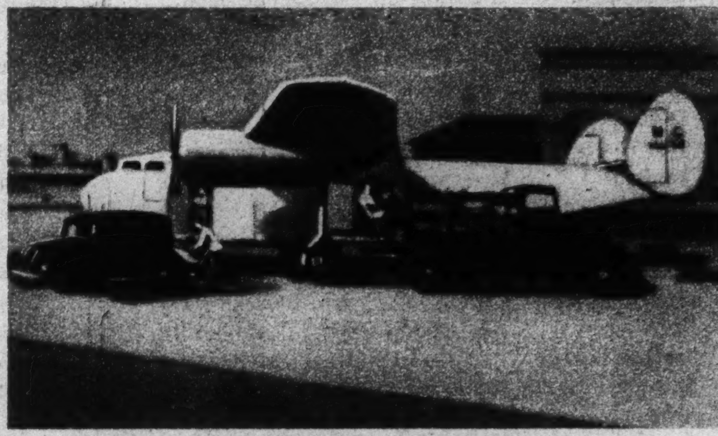
The structure is designed for ease of repairs. The wing, in one solid structure like the Fokker wooden wings of the 1920s, will be constructed of wooden spars and ribs, with a covering of one of the new phenolic plywoods that are impervious to temperatures and to water. The entire wing will then be fabric covered, as in the small Howard DGA series of passenger planes that have been shown to be among the best in their class for the last four years.

• • •

The fuselage will be of welded steel tubing. The cargo and nose sections will be covered with dural sheets. The rear section will be fabric covered, with a catwalk within for inspection purposes. The stabilizers and elevators at the tail will be wood with plywood covering, while the rudders and fins will be of tube construction, fabric covered.

"The swinging rear end of the fuselage allows the greatest conceivable loading possibilities," said Howard recently. "Parcels as large as the inside dimensions of the cargo hold may be loaded through a rugged end door that will swing downward to serve as a convenient ramp."

Instead of using new and highly expensive aircraft engines and propellers for this machine, Howard envisions the purchase from the commercial air lines of discarded motors and propellers. Present-day motors are discarded after about 3,000 hours of operation and propellers after 1,500 hours of flying. This is a safety measure taken merely to insure perfect operation while flying passengers, but there is every reason to believe that engines and propellers have an indefinite life. They could be used on freight airplanes because only one life would be involved.



Loading the plane in manner normal for smaller parcels.

"A cargo run is obviously a desirable means of proving self-reliant ability of junior pilots as well as a way to retain the investment otherwise lost when certain pilots, for different reasons, become disqualified for further duty on passenger runs," said Howard.

Cost estimates based on the calculated performance of this cargo airplane indicate that all first-class mail could be carried by air in such ships at a profit to the government and to the contractor without any increase in the 3 cents an ounce cost as at present.

Furthermore, it is indicated that express and freight could be carried at less than one-third of their present costs in such ships and still insure a sizable profit for the freight carrier.

FOUR EARLY BIRDS

By BOB BECKER

● JOHN JAMES AUDUBON developed his fame as an authority on birds from the hobby of a rather petted childhood. Born in 1785 in Santo Domingo, now Haiti, where his father, Lieut. John Audubon, French naval officer, had a plantation, Audubon developed an early interest in bird and animal life. He started his collection in Santo Domingo and continued it in Paris, where he attended military school and art school, both briefly, and later still on his father's farm near Philadelphia. Audubon's paintings have been criticized from various angles, but none denies him the credit for an inestimably valuable introduction of American bird life. He was one of the first artists to paint birds in natural poses, and his earliest exhibitions had a wide effect, even in literature. The Audubon publishing work became a family affair, Mrs. Audubon supporting the group while her husband got his start, their son John later assisting in the collecting and painting, and another son, Victor, taking over the business management.

FEW BIRDS that come north in the early spring get a heartier welcome than the purple martin. A useful member of the swallow family, the martin spends the winter in Brazil. It makes a leisurely migration flight, usually arriving in Texas late in February and then slowly working north to keep pace with spring's advance. There have been years when these birds arrived in the lower Lake Michigan area late in March or by the first of April. But its average arrival date is April 15. These birds take a heavy toll from the insect population.

Preceding the purple martins are the red-headed woodpeckers, which have an average arrival date of April 1. It's not difficult for these gayly colored members of the woodpecker family to migrate ahead of the martins, for they do not cross the Caribbean into South America to spend the winter. In fact, some may stay north all winter if they have an abundance of acorns on which to feed. Noisy, active, and bright colored, the red-headed woodpecker is one of the most conspicuous early spring migrants in the middle west.

The beautiful plumage and sweet song of the rose-breasted grosbeak make it a favorite with thousands of bird fans. The grosbeaks sometimes appear late in April, but their average arrival date is around May 1. The grosbeak's music is melodious. This migrant spends the winter from southern Mexico and Yucatan southward to Venezuela. It gets a double welcome from farmers because of its beneficial food habits. Thousands of destructive potato beetles, chinchbugs, tussock moths, and other insect pests which damage the farmer's crops are consumed by these beautiful birds.

Tangled thickets and ornamental shrubbery are among the favorite retreats of the catbird. With habits somewhat similar to those of the southern mockingbird and a repertoire of songs almost as varied, the catbird unfortunately mars its spring concerts with occasional catcalls. From this habit has come its name. It may winter from the gulf states down through Panama, coming north in the spring to arrive around the first of May.

WORSTED-TEX SUITS

In The British Lounge* Model

Lined with Super-Celanese Rayon

$40

In the photograph above you see the refinement of the Worsted-tex Suit in both fabric and tailoring. If you could feel the cloth itself — even if you don't know a thing about fabrics — you would at once notice that it has a finer, softer touch — a pliant drapiness — more like the famous imported worsteds of England.

If you could run your hands over the lapels, the front of the jacket, the collar and the shoulders, you would immediately appreciate the softness of the tailoring — the moulded softness that means so much in comfort, ease, better fit and greater satisfaction.

It is this superb quality of fabric that makes possible the famous British Lounge* Model described at the right.

Every detail is refined — even the zip on the trousers is the fabric-covered invisible Kover-Zip — no metal shows.

The British Lounge Model

This model is an entirely new conception in men's clothes. It is revolutionizing the men's clothing business because it makes men look more nearly as nature intended—broader at the shoulders, fuller at the chest, slimmer at the hips and taller. Yet there is nothing extreme about it. It is a gentleman's suit of clothes.

Don't Endanger Your Children's Health by Giving Them Unknown "Bargain" Remedies to Take.* ALWAYS ASK YOUR DOCTOR before giving ANY *preparation you don't know all about Mothers—if you love your children, never give them unknown "bargain" remedies to take without asking your family doctor first.

And when giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, if your doctor says, "Get Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" — do exactly that. Never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone — but always ask for "Phillips'."

Doctors know how marvelously gentle it is for youngsters. Favored by medical men for three generations as a standard, reliable and proved preparation.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form — tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips', and a big box costs but 25¢ at your drug store.

A small bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs only 25 cents. So — anyone can afford the genuine. Careful Mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

For Teeth That Glisten

Do as your dentist does
when he cleans your teeth—use POWDER

NOTHING else cleans and polishes teeth more quickly and leaves them more naturally white—than POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—almost always uses powder.

All Cleansing Properties

As it is only the powder part of most dentifrices that cleans, a dentifrice that is all powder just naturally cleans effectively. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—all cleansing properties.

For over seventy years many dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because normal teeth simply cannot remain dull and dingy looking when it is used.

No Acid, No Grit or Pumice

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling with natural brightness. It will also leave your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is a special dental powder developed for HOME USE by a distinguished practicing dentist. Free from all acids, grit or pumice, it cannot possibly injure or scratch the tooth enamel as years of constant use have shown. Even as a neutralizer in acid mouth conditions, Dr. Lyon's is an effective antacid.

Brush your teeth with Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder regularly—consult your dentist periodically—eat a diet rich in minerals and vitamins, and you will be doing all that you can possibly do to protect your teeth.

Costs Less to Use

Dr. Lyon's is more economical to use. In the same size and price class it outlasts tooth pastes two to one. Even a small package will last you for months.

HEADACHE strains your NERVES

Take Bromo-Seltzer. Millions do!

ELY CULBERTSON knows what iron nerves a bridge champion needs. A master of the game—he's author of the famous "Gold Book of Contract Bridge," producer of the game, Autobridge.

CULBERTSON in action: crucial moments in a tense game of contract. What to do?

FINESSE succeeds! Mr. Culbertson says: "I prefer Bromo-Seltzer. It leaves me more alert."

CAMILLA W. MOSS, director of Hostesses, Inc., arranges innumerable parties for well-known men and women; for recreation, she skis, dances and sails.

HEADACHE disturbs your nervous system. That's why headache is best treated with a remedy made to do at least 2 things . . . relieve PAIN—steady your NERVES. Bromo-Seltzer does both. Tests by a group of doctors have proved this fact.

Next time your head aches, take Bromo-Seltzer.* It relieves pain fast—and you feel less nervous, less dragged down!

When headache comes, think of your nerves — take BROMO-SELTZER

FOLLOW TODAY'S EXTRA SKIN CARE

Often Sings at charity affairs—The Lady Alexandra Haig, daughter of the late Earl Haig, Britain's famous military figure. "Now that 'skin-vitamin' is in Pond's Cold Cream, I'm even more enthusiastic about cleansing my skin with it."

Daughter of the Earl and Countess of Mayo. Deeply interested in acting, The Lady Betty Bourke has studied 4 terms at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. "I've always depended on Pond's to smooth my skin so make-up has more charm and glamour."

In Britain, as in America, smart society women are quick to grasp the meaning of the new skin care. Vitamin A, the "skin-vitamin" so necessary to skin health, is now in every jar of Pond's Cold Cream. Skin that lacks this vitamin becomes rough and dry. But when "skin-vitamin" is restored, it helps make skin soft and smooth again. Use Pond's night and morning and before make-up. Same jars, labels, prices.
